Strandquist News

F. Myrtle Vagle • 436-2133

The weather in northwest Minnesota is doing its best to give us a late fall season. The soybean crop is ripening and will be okay even if it was put in late due to excessive rainfall this spring. The farmers are lifting beets and digging potatoes as fast as they can. That makes the seniors in Karlstad real happy because as soon as they are done digging and storing their potatoes, Roger and Judy Bogestad will donate all their potatoes for another year to the mealsite. This is one reason why we have been able to keep the food program on the up side. Thank you Roger and Judy, and their crew who for several years have had the potatoes ready for us when we came to get them.

Betsy Thompson accompanied Lucille Wikstrom to Thief River Falls on Saturday for a noon Gideon Auxiliary luncheon meeting at the Best Western. Later, Isaac, Betsy, Richard and Carol Thompson and Elmer Holmstrom joined Nelson LeDoux for supper to celebrate his birthday.

On Monday evening, Juna Kasprowicz was hostess to her mom, Judy Kleinvachter at the Paradise restaurant in Strathcona for dinner. On Sunday afternoon, Judy was in the group of relatives who had a potluck dinner and a "look-see" at the beautiful new home of her granddaughter Tracy and Jeremy Folland.

Roy heard that a killer frost is due and he just came in with a bucket loaded with beans. He doesn't save anything for Jack Frost and went to pick the beans in the back of the house. He will never give up that farming streak he has.

No one is saying that tax bill was a bad idea

Recently, I have received a number of news releases regarding what the new tax bill means. Each news release has expounded on a different possibility. The truth is, nobody seems to have a full grasp of what's going to happen.

The Taxpayers League, for instance, wants us to believe that rural districts are getting a better deal. A representative of the Greater Minnesota Cities organization visited with me the same week this news release came out, and assured me that wasn't the case. He pointed out that the Taxpayers League was neglecting to point out that urban areas received their tax cut in the form of the elimination of school district property tax levies. On the other hand, rural Minnesota residents who live in property poor districts, received a comparable benefit from the elimination of the property tax levy for education, elimination of taxes on farm land and an increase in local government aid.

In another example, a statement from the Minnesota Chamber of Commerce recently upset the Mayor of Thief River Falls. Apparently, they said that taxes have been stabilized at the state level and now if they go up, business leaders should talk to their city, county or school district representative.

Mayor Borsheim and others pointed out that legislators included in their projections for the tax bill, the fact that cities would levy more to make up for losses in aid. Borsheim said Thief River Falls received an increase in local government aid. The city's proposed 7.5 percent increase in the levy, however, would raise enough only to pay the projected debt service increase. By the way, the tax levy cap for Thief River Falls is 15 percent, but the city doesn't want to increase taxes that much, and has been trying very hard to reduce the increase below 7.5 percent. City officials also admit, that while they are proposing a 7.5 percent increase in the levy, they don't know what this means to local taxpayers because there have been so many changes.

Some state officials have also been echoing the Chamber's sentiment — that any increase would be due to increases at the local level. No one at the state, however, has been talking about the fact that the state is now in the property tax business. In 2002, citizens will see a new line item on their tax bills from the state, which hasn't had a property tax levy since 1968. A League of Minnesota Cities representative, who recently visited Thief River Falls, also added that the state's property tax will automatically increase by the amount of inflation each year. I'll bet there are a lot of government units out there that would like to have automatic increases built in to their property taxes.

For years Minnesota has struggled with its reputation for high taxes. Many believe that the state property tax makes Minnesota less competitive. It also places the tax burden solely on the backs of Minnesotans.

So what's going to happen? I don't know, and I honestly don't think anyone else does either.

Strikers:

Don't give up on principles

The timing of the strike by state unionized employees is unfortunate. Rest assured that it was not timed to take advantage of the Sept. 11 terrorist attack on the United States. The strike threat existed long before the terrorist attack.

Striking employees and the governor of Minnesota have all mentioned that the timing is unfortunate. Despite the poor timing, both sides, felt strongly enough about their positions that they could not reach an agreement.

While in New York, Governor Ventura said he took offense to criticism of his trip to New York because of the strike. I'm not sure who criticized the governor or whether this is what's called a "straw man" argument, which is an argument that can be easily defeated; but I, and many other Minnesotans, would agree that strikers will be going home to families and their children every night, while many in New York will not. His presence in New York also fulfills a promise to Minnesotans and symbolizes a unity of purpose and hope for New Yorkers.

The problems in New York have an impact on Minnesota as well. The impact from the loss of air travel and tourism will be felt for a long time and by many people. The impact is being felt by everyone from airline employees to taxi cab drivers here in Minnesota. Many Minnesotans have lost jobs because of what happened in New York and Washington, D.C., and are now wondering where their next paycheck will be coming from.

Should union employees just give up and accept what they consider to be unfair, just because of what happened in New York and Minnesota? No. Union employees should stand up for their principles and fight for what they consider to be right and fair. I respect that and others will too. Standing up for what one believes in, is in essence, what makes each of us Americans. Strikers should be forewarned however, that that same right applies to those who disagree with their position.

Sen. Stumpf encourages Secretary of Transportation to support area needs

Sen. LeRoy Stumpf

by Sen. LeRoy Stumpf

This week, I am sending a letter to U.S. Secretary of Transportation Noman Mineta regarding the future of airline service to our region.

As has been widely reported, Northwest Airlines, regional carrier — Mesaba Airlines — has filed a notice of intent to completely discontinue air service to Thief River Falls, effective January 1, 2002. While I understand that Northwest, Mesaba and other airlines must act to preserve their businesses in the wake of the terrorist attacks, it seems unfair that their proposed solution will simply create problems for the businesses and travelers in our region.

I have pointed out to Secretary Mineta that just as the events of September 11, 2001 continue to disrupt the lives of Americans far removed from the crime scenes on the East Coast, the stoppage of regular air service would create a profound disruption to our region's economy.

I have given the Secretary some background on our region, including the number of large employers and small businesses whose economic future depends in part on reliable air service to the Twin Cities.

Put quite simply, those businesses and the jobs they provide serve as an oasis of new economic activity in a region that has traditionally relied heavily on agriculture for its economic base. As most of the communities in our region are six hours or more by car from the Minneapolis/St. Paul International Airport, commercial air service from Thief River Falls is a vitally important link for business travelers.

The City of Thief River Falls, which operates the regional airport, has filed an official objection with the U.S. Department of Transportation. Don Stewart, the city's community development director, has done an outstanding job of making the case for the continuation and improvement of air service to Thief River Falls. He would like folks to know that the airport is still open, and that airport users in Northwest Minnesota should call him with any questions they might have about continued air service, or how they can help. Already, a number of community and business leaders in the region have been instrumental in the creation and filing of the objection, but more support can only help. Don can be reached at 681-2500.

Further, the City of Thief River Falls has provided a great deal of evidence as to why air service should actually be increased to three week-day flights to and from the Minneapolis/St. Paul Airport. The midday flight was extremely popular for the two years it was available, and I gave my strong support that it be resumed.

It is my hope that we can prevent the depraved actions of a few terrorists from inflicting further damage on Northwest Minnesota's economy. As always, I value your input on this and other matters of importance to the people of our region and encourage you to share your thoughts directly with me, with Congressman Peterson, with Senators Wellstone and Dayton, and with the U.S. Department of Transportation.

Household income safety net might be better than commodity programs

(Sixth in a background series on the prospective 2002 Farm Bill)

by William F. Lazarus

The U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) has spent nearly $70 billion on federal farm programs since 1996, and those payments have made the difference between profit and loss for many farm operators. The "Federal Agricultural Improvement and Reform (FAIR) Act" expires in 2002. And as discussions about the next farm bill gain momentum, we might consider how the goal of farm household income support fits within U.S. farm policy, and how to achieve that support.

The goals of farm policy were stated by the 21st Century Commission on Production Agriculture as:

--Producing an abundant supply of quality agricultural products at fair prices.

--Maintaining a prosperous, productive economic climate for farmers.

--Maintaining strong family farms as a dominant part of the production system.

--A high quality of life for all individuals living in rural areas.

The commission's wording is broad and open to different program approaches. One way to interpret their use of the terms "prosperity," "family farm" and "quality of life" would be to focus on assuring a minimum standard of living for farm households. The mention of "reasonable prices" also implies attention to controlling production surpluses as well as avoiding shortages. "Quality of life" and "family farm organization" also imply protecting the environment and slowing industry consolidation.

I use the term "household income safety net" to refer to ways to target farm program payments to households based on some measure of income or living standard. The idea gained visibility when Secretary of Agriculture Dan Glickman called 1999 the "Year of the Safety Net." Economists at the USDA Economic Research Service (ERS) have analyzed several safety net approaches. Their conclusions are presented on the USDA website at: http://www.ers.usda.gov/Emphases/Rural/. The safety net concept might be of interest to those in the Minnesota farm community who are looking for alternatives to traditional farm programs.

The USDA-ERS analysis looked at how the cost to the government and the distribution of benefits across different farm sizes and regions would compare to current direct payments if government assistance were based directly on financial need. They used various target levels of farm household income and implied operator hourly earnings to measure financial need. They found that lower-income farmers would benefit relatively more under the safety net scenarios, while farmers producing selected commodities would benefit less than under current farm programs.

Minnesota farmers overall could receive either higher or lower payments than currently, depending on the income measure used. For example, if payments were made to bring farm household income up to 185 percent of the poverty line, the cost to the government would be about the same as current programs. (The poverty line for a family of four was $16,400 in 1997; 185 percent of this amount is $30,340). It was estimated that this scenario would have cost the government a total of $21 billion over the three years 1998-2000, compared to the $19.5 billion actually spent.

The income safety net approach is not new. It has precedents in a number of nonfarm federal programs. While the safety net approach might help small farms, it has received mixed reviews so far. According to the May 2000 issue of "Agricultural Outlook," the analysis has been criticized because of a perceived association of income transfers with social welfare programs.

Critics favor price supports over the income-support approach since commodity price supports carry less of a negative "social welfare" image. Still, small family farms often have relatively high production costs; so price supports that help low-cost producers expand and prosper often don't help them much.

If it smells like "Pork," it is "Pork"

Onion pungency test development ($250,000). Ornamental fish cultivation ($198,000). Cranberry and blueberry breeding ($220,000). A gizmo to de-bone salmon ($645,000).

Each an academic project funded at your expense, at the behest of a congressman in pursuit of re-election.

Should the nation's taxpayers be spending millions of dollars on onion pungency studies and anti-salmon-bone technology, especially when the normal application process is being skipped entirely?

The career politicians in the Congress seem to think so. According to the Chronicle of Higher Education, over the past year our representatives have splurged more than $1.7 billion on federal grants for just such academic projects, earmarked for the home districts of powerful legislators, bypassing the burden of formal and competitive proposals to the relevant federal agency.

"There is no accountability to the American taxpayer," says James Savage, a professor of government at the University of Virginia and author of Funding Science in America: Congress, Universities, and the Politics of the Academic Pork Barrel. Savage notes that in recent years, some "$7 billion of taxpayer funds have been used, not to support the best scientists, or support the best research labs, but are distributed by way of political influence."

Don't expect the self-described worthy recipients to cry foul when their congressman funnels your tax dollars to them. All's fair in love and world-saving.

"What we're doing in trying to cure cancer, feed the hungry across the country and . . . the world, is critical research that needs to be done," says Steve Knorr, a lobbyist for the University of Missouri.

The routine of formally applying to an agency for funding doesn't guarantee that the best researchers will fetch the limited funding available. Some have even raised the question of whether government should be shepherding scientific and other research to begin with. But if government is to be involved, surely the process should not be allowed to degenerate into a mere political plum grab-fest.

But that's what has been happening, and the problem is only growing worse. Academic pork is in fact 60 percent fatter than it was just a year earlier, according to the Chronicle.

Can we be sure it's pork? Well, let's think about this. Nine of 10 states that got the most grant money happen to have legislators heading up the relevant congressional committees. Meanwhile, nine of 10 states at the bottom of the grant heap have no committee heads in their congressional delegations. Just the kind of pattern you expect to see when career politicians are putting personal careers ahead of the common good.

It's not as if the congressmen are scrambling to provide special funding for universities in states and districts not their own. Consider the example of the University of Missouri, where they are curing cancer and feeding the world. Over the past decade, science-grant earmarks for the school had averaged about $1.7 million a year. This year, the figure has suddenly jumped to $12 million, thanks to Missouri Senator Chris Bond, who sits on the appropriations and budget committees.

The state of New Hampshire wasn't doing very well in the academic pork-stake either. . . until Congressman Judd Gregg was tapped to head up a subcommittee overseeing the Commerce and Justice Departments. Now Dartmouth is getting an $18 million earmark to study cybercrime. And the University of New Hampshire is reeling in $14 million for a marine lab and a pier.

All the earmarking has "nothing to do with good science," notes Professor Savage. "It's all about political influence and who you know. . . It hurts scientists who legitimately compete for federal money, submit proposals, and have them turned down."

"The contest will be divided into three divisions: A, fifth and sixth grade; B, seventh, eighth and ninth grade; and C, 10th, 11th and 12th grades. There will be three prizes in each division: first $5; second $3; and third $2. Mantoux Test To Be Administered To New Students

"The Thief River Falls public school health council has arranged with Dr. Baldwin Borreson, superintendent of Oakland Park sanatorium, to administer the Mantoux tuberculin test to new pupils in the public schools, Mrs. Margaret Race, school nurse, stated this week.

"Explaining the Mantoux test, Mrs. Race said, 'The Mantoux is a simple made by placing a small amount of tuberculin between the layers of skin on the forearm. If this area becomes red and raised in 48 hours, it means that the test is positive and that the person has been exposed to tuberculosis. It does not mean that the disease is present. This must be determined by a chest x-ray, which is the follow-up procedure on all reactors.'"

STOPS WORK
Thief River Falls Lumber Company's Mill.
IS CLOSED DOWN
Season's Cut Was a Very Large One.

"The Thief River Falls Lumber company's big mill at this point, which has been running night and day since the 11th day of April, a period of over six months, will be closed down for the season today. The cut this year has been the greatest in the history of the mill and although shipments have been exceedingly large there is at present over 4,000,000 more feet of lumber in the yards than there was when the mill closed down last fall. The company has a number of logs in the river at present, enough to keep the mill running next spring until the logs to be cut this winter can be brought here.

"The benefit of this institution to Thief River Falls has been great. Nearly 300 men have been employed by the company at high wages and thousands of dollars have been turned in the business channels of this city by the lumber company.

"A crew of men will be put to work this morning repairing the mill and making improvements getting it ready for next season's business."

SMALL POX
May Be Many Cases This Winter.

"Unless a great deal of care is taken there will probably be a large number of cases of small pox in this city next winter. The Indians on this end of the reservation are mostly sick with this disease and a guard is now stationed at the bridge across the Thief river and no Indians are allowed to come into town.

"There is said to be about thirty cases in Red Lake Falls, and also a number in Crookston and St. Hilaire. Thus far the city has been fortunate in that no cases of smallpox exist here.

"Dr. E. H. Breckman, medical inspector of the state board of health, was in the city Monday looking after the Indians. He also visited Red Lake Falls."

The St. Hilaire Graded School.

"The school of our village has grown both in number of pupils and intellectual force from a common district school to a state graded school under the principalship of J. B. O'Brien, ably assisted by a strong corps of teachers.

"At the beginning of the spring term last year State Graded School Inspector W. A. Rankin visited the school and so favorable did he find the workings of the school and the high standard of the pupils that he solicited the members of the board to have the school placed on the graded list. This was effected to the satisfaction of all parties and the $400.00 state aid for last year's work has been received by the district treasurer. At the beginning of the term this year the four rooms were so crowded that it was deemed prudent to hire a fifth teacher. The Dahlen building was rented and fitted up as a primary department with all necessary paraphernalia, and a seating capacity of 48.

"The following pupils received state certificates at the examination last June:

"George L. Netteland in Arithmetic, Senior Arithmetic, English Grammar, Geography, U. S. History, Physiology.

"Ester M. Olson in Elementary Algebra, Arithmetic, U. S. History.

"Huldah C. Gigstad in English Grammar, U. S. History

"Mabel P. Hannay in Arithmetic, U. S. History

"Edith B. Dahl in U. S. History

"Tessie McCaffrey in Geography

"Herman F. Anderson and Amer C. Matheson, not pupils of the school, received certificates, the former in Physiology and the latter in Geography.

"The school work this year is well under way. The pupils and teachers are working in harmony and with the cooperation of the parents, this year promises to be the most successful one in the history of the school."

REGULAR BOARD MEETING
INDEPENDENT SCHOOL DISTRICT #564
THIEF RIVER FALLS, MINNESOTA
September 10, 2001, 7:00 p.m.
S.D.S.C. Conference Room A

A regular meeting of the Independent School District #564 was held on Monday, September 10, 2001, in the Conference Room of the District Service Center. Chair Steve Young called the meeting to order at 7:00 p.m.

The following Board members were present: Carl Clark, Barb Kalinoski, Jean Larson, Mike Spears, Randy Twistol, Mike Barry and Steve Young. Clerk Jean Larson established that a quorum was present.

A motion was made by B. Kalinoski and seconded by M. Spears to approve the agenda as amended. Motion carried unanimously.

Recognition was given to the Family Bowl who donated $500.00 to the School District and $300.00 to the Challenger Elementary PTSP.

Roy Lunde of Brady, Martz & Associates reviewed the 2000-2001 Audit Report. The district looks to be in good shape, but we do have to be aware of the declining enrollment in upcoming years and prepare for the loss of funding associated with declining enrollment.

Elaine Grovum, Special Education Director, updated the Board on the changes that have taken place in the program and the goals of the program for the future. The district served 415 students last year on IEP's and it looks as though the numbers for this year will be very similar.

Barb Kalinoski updated the Board on the MEC Center. The track at the MECC was used very little this summer. They are looking at having the Track Club taking over the track for next summer. The group will be reviewing the master plan of the MECC facility. The plans have waivered from the original draft and the master plan needs to be updated. There will be one soccer field completed.

Harry Nelson, Business Manager, reviewed the resolutions on the agenda for rental space. There have been increases in rent of approximately 2.5%. He also discussed the change order for the FMS parking lot.

Irv Peterson, Superintendent, updated the Board on upcoming fall area meetings. The district has expressed interest in participating in the "Don't Laugh at Me" Program, which will be put on by the state and deals with students & bullying. Representatives from each school will attend. Brittany Larson was the only TRF student listed in the academic all-stars publication who were honored at the state fair. Irv provided the Board with information on his upcoming schedule.

Randy Twistol reported on the NWSC meeting. The Drug & Violence Program, which is funded by membership from local schools, may be eliminated due to low enrollment. Seven districts have joined the Reading Recovery Program. They are hoping for eight districts to break even.

Mike Spears and Barb Kalinoski updated the Board on the Curriculum Meeting. Michelle Naplin will serve as the committee chair and Penny Langland will serve as vice chair. They will be working on setting up goals. There are a few new parent members this year. They also reviewed the summer school programs and staff development activities that took place last year.

Steve Young reported that the new director of SEE will be Brad Lundell.

A motion was made by J. Larson and seconded by B. Kalinoski to approve the Minutes of the August 27, 2001 Regular Board Meeting and the August 29, 2001 Special Board Meeting as amended. Motion carried unanimously.

This summer, the City of Thief River Falls completed work on the emergency vehicle underpass. CP Rail allowed the city to improve the emergency vehicle underpass, which is strictly for emergency vehicles. It is a unique underpass because the bottom of the underpass is 30-inches below normal river water elevation. It had to be that low to allow the newest fire truck and ambulances to pass underneath the railroad tracks. It allows about eight inches of clearance for the newest fire truck. Drain tile is used and underneath the concrete at the lowest point, is a catch basin. All of this drains to an all-weather, maintenance-free lift station on the east side of the tracks. That water is pumped back into the river. Also added to the project is a permanent sidewalk on the side of the road. A railing will be added along the top of the retaining wall. The project cost approximately $40,000.

Positives stressed in schools

by Kathi Carlson
Reporter

In a cabinet report to the board of education Monday evening, Franklin Middle School Principal Bob Wayne expounded on the many positive things happening at his school and thanked the school board for all of its support in making these things possible. "And no," he quipped, "I'm not looking for money."

Assistant Principal Shane Zutz also addressed an interested board, detailing the school-wide reading goals that have been implemented at Franklin Middle School this year.

Zutz told the board of education that a goal to raise the overall reading comprehension test scores by 20 percent has been set and involves the commitment and focus of every staff member at the school.

Every grade level, Zutz said, has individual goals and ways of promoting the cause. Sixth grade students are participating in a reading challenge, and seventh grade teachers are using different reading games to excite their students about reading. Eighth grade students have had the "eye-opening" experience of seeing their test scores and where they stand on a comparison graph. From that knowledge, he says, individual students are setting their own reading goals.

Generally, silent reading time has been increased, and students are required to carry a book with them to be read during free time. The increased reading time, Zutz and Wayne said, has resulted in better behavior.

The board will look forward to another report regarding the reading goal from Franklin Middle School administrators at the end of the school year.

On hand to hear Wayne and Zutz's report as well as a presentation by curriculum coordinator Carol Ihle were members of Boy Scout Troop 59 and their adult leaders. Board chair Steve Young encouraged Ihle and business manager Harry Nelson to explain their jobs to the Scouts who were at the meeting as part of their Citizenship in the Community merit badge.

TRF Council approves objection to request to end air service

by Kate Morberg
Reporter

The Thief River Falls City Council approved the City's objection to the notice of termination of scheduled airline service by Mesaba Aviation, Inc. Official notice of termination was received by the City on October 3.

Arctic Cat, Inc., and Digi-Key Corporation have expressed concern over air service termination. Individuals who must visit their businesses, are many times dependent on air service to accomplish this. These businesses, along with others from the area, stated in letters that their growth and expansion in this area was based on good air service. Losing air service could result in loss of business growth.

The City has requested that appropriate action be taken to ensure air service continues out of the Regional Airport. It was also suggested that a minimum of three inbound and three outbound flights on weekdays, and two inbound and two outbound flights on weekends. In May 2001, Mesaba reduced the number of flights per day from three to two. This type of flight schedule is said to be inconvenient and less user-friendly.

The council approved a resolution appointing Juran and Moody, a division of Miller Johnson Steichen Kinnard, Inc., as financial advisors and authorizing the sale of Water Treatment Plant refunding bonds. Juran and Moody has advised the City that refinancing of said bond issue is possible on a current basis, based on interest rates presently available for the issuance of new bonds. The City wants a minimum savings of 2.3 percent by refinancing the bonds. The bonds' current interest rate is 5.75%. Since the bond market is so low, it is felt that bonds could be payed off by selling new bonds. The anticipated interest rate is 4.5%.

The council approved the following items from the agenda: authorized payment of September prepayments and first half of October bills; approved calling for a hearing on October 23 at 4:55 p.m. to vacate a portion of St. Paul Avenue North; approved hiring Robert Huot to fill the part-time driver/collection position in the Sanitation Department; approved low bid of Earl F. Anderson Company for playground equipment

United Way of TRF kicks-off 2001 campaign

by David Hill
Editor

Thief River Falls United Way recently began its 2001 fundraising campaign. The campaign benefits as many as 39 local and state non-profit agencies that address human service issues in the community.

"We're looking forward to another year," said local United Way Board Chairman Dave Onkka. "Every year we get many applications for funds, and a few new applications. We like to help as much as we can, but we see a growing need every year," said Onkka.

In the past several years, the local agency has not identified a monetary goal for the effort, focusing instead upon the local need. The 2000 United Way campaign, however, generated $109,423 in contributions. How much assistance local agencies receive, depends on local contributions from the community. These contributions have provided assistance to over 30,000 individuals.

Onkka invites everyone from the community to become involved. It's never easy to find all the volunteers you need, said Onkka, and there's a need for volunteers to serve on the board, review applications and deliver supplies, so everyone is welcome.

This year volunteers for the local United Way fundraising campaign will include students from Key Club and the National Honor Society from Lincoln High School in Thief River Falls. Onkka said it's completely voluntary on the part of the students, and it has been working out real well.

Onkka pointed out that the key to the United Way's success is the volunteer. "Because of countless

A Thief River Falls man has been branded a hero.

On October 3, Cliff Larson received recognition at the 2001 Ageless Hero Awards Program in the Mall of America for his extensive community involvement. Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Minnesota honored 14 of Minnesota's Ageless Heros during the ceremony.

Larson said he started volunteering so he had something to fill up his time.

"I'm not the type of person who can just sit and do nothing," said Larson.

Willingly, he speaks about his life and where he has been. There is never a boastful tone, a true hero, he gives without expecting.

"Of all the volunteer-related things I've done, the best thing has been working with children," said Larson. "They get to be just like grandchildren."

Watching the kids grow-up into accomplished young adults has been Larson's reward. He says he isn't able to work with children as much as he would like to anymore, but the gap is filled by spending time with his six grandchildren.

Nominating Larson for the award was Elaine White, who has worked with him on a number of committees and boards. She calls him a "reference library for children who need a little extra help."

Larson volunteered as a math tutor at Challenger Elementary School in Thief River Falls for eight years. Larson was first asked to help a new student get caught up with his schoolwork. From there on, two or three times a week he would tutor fifth-grade students in math. He also assisted kindergarten, first- and second-grade students at science fairs.

Larson has been a member of the Minnesota Office of Citizenship and Volunteer Services' Advisory Committee since 1992. As a member of MOCVS, he does fundraising for the group, and informs legislators about older adult and volunteer issues.

The nomination letter stated that friends describe him "as a person who's extremely kind, a hard worker, an organizer, he motivates others," and "as a doer."

> "I'm not the type of person who can just sit and do nothing," said Larson.

Larson put these words into action when a 94-year-old volunteer won the MOCVS Acts of Kindness Award, but was unable to attend the award ceremony due to health reasons. Even though he didn't know the individual, Larson brought her award and three legislators to her home in Badger for the presentation.

In 1996, Larson was named Pennington County's Outstanding Senior Citizen. He and recipients from other Minnesota counties were honored at the Minnesota State Fair that year. It was here, he received word he had been named one of Minnesota's two Outstanding Senior Citizens for the year. There was a male and female winner. Although his wife had been informed, Larson was left in the dark.

He said he was busy congratulating the other winner, and didn't even hear the announcer call his name. It was truly a surprise.

How it all began

Larson began volunteering after retiring from his job of 35 years as resident engineer for the Minnesota Department of Transportation in 1985. His volunteer career began at the Heritage Senior Center in Thief River Falls. After this, Larson said he started "branching out" and began donating his time in other areas.

In 1977 he helped to start the winter...spring...summer...fall...Talk with your children about sex.

They need to hear it from you!

"Actions speak louder than words." With this adage in mind, parents often believe that their values are transmitted to their children on a daily basis. For the most part, this is true. However, the youth culture created by the media and the dangers presented by early, unprotected sexual behavior, demand healthy supportive conversations between youth and their parents. Talk with your children about sex. What they need to hear will change with your child's age but no matter what age your child is, he/she needs to hear it from you!! On Wednesday, October 24, look for Middle Adolescent Parent Tips (14 to 16 years) and on Wednesday, October 31, look for Late Adolescent Parent Tips (17 to 21 years).

EARLY ADOLESCENCE

Otter Tail announces feasibility study for second plant at Big Stone

Otter Tail Corporation CEO John MacFarlane has announced that Otter Tail Power company has entered a two-year business development study to investigate the feasibility of another electric generating plant on the site of the existing Big Stone Plant near Milbank, S.D.

"The decision," said MacFarlane, "is not to proceed with construction, but rather to perform further due diligence regarding the project and the region's anticipated energy needs. Based on studies that point to a potential energy shortfall in the Mid-Continent Area Power Pool by 2007 and our long-standing commitment to meet our customers' energy needs in a low-cost, environmentally responsible manner, we see this as a prudent act of stewardship."

In making the announcement, MacFarlane said that a recently completed study includes estimates by MAPP and a highly regarded independent market analyst that energy consumption in the region will increase by 15 percent to 25 percent during the next decade. "We think it's essential to respond to that knowledge," he said. "The study also points to a highly efficient coal-fired plant in the 600-megawatt range as being the most cost-effective choice for helping to meet the anticipated need for increased generation.

"We'll investigate a project that would use state-of-the-art emissions-control technology to make it one of the cleanest coal-burning plants in the world. But because a project of this size requires a considerable amount of discussion, negotiation, and preparation, we won't make a final decision for at least two years. During that two-year period we'll conduct environmental studies, refine the plant's design, arrange for the needed transmission right-of-way, and obtain the essential air, water and operating permits."

MacFarlane emphasized that all of those issues directly affect the project's feasibility. "The decision we make two years from now," he said, "depends on resolving those issues. If the decision is to proceed, construction could begin in 2003 with commercial operation in the spring or early summer of 2007."

Ward Uggerud, Otter Tail Power company's COO of energy supply, emphasized that the proposed plant would be designed with the same concern for efficiency and environmental safeguards as was the existing Big Stone Plant. "During more than 25 years of operation," Uggerud said, "Big Stone has proven that a well-designed, well-maintained coal-fired plant can be an efficient, low-cost energy source as well as an environmentally friendly neighbor. Big Stone II, which would employ state-of-the-art coal-burning techniques and environmental-control technology, would offer further proof."

South Dakota Governor Bill Janklow has expressed pleasure with the decision to proceed with the study. "This project, if completed, would do more than ensure a dependable source of electricity for the region," he said. "It also would be a tremendous economic boost. Representing the largest investment of private capital in the state, it would result in a significant source of tax revenue and millions of payroll dollars to stimulate the state and regional economy. And the emphasis being placed on state-of-the-art environmental controls shows a genuine concern for the environment."

Cold Weather Rule takes effect

Minnesota's Cold Weather Rule went into effect Monday, October 15.

The rule was developed by the Minnesota Public Utilities Commission to help protect residential energy customers from service disconnection from October 15 through April 15 due to non-payment, provided the disconnection would affect the customer's primary heating source.

Customers must qualify for an inability-to-pay plan, quality for a 10 percent payment plan, or mutually agree to a payment schedule. Customers who receive a notice of proposed disconnection must promptly file a Cold Weather Rule Plan form or make arrangements to pay the balance.

Under a change that takes effect this year, households that receive energy assistance automatically receive Cold Weather Rule protection.

FFA officers visit TRF

Three of Minnesota's FFA officers stopped Thief River Falls recently as part of a Business, Industry and Education tour to promote Future Farmers of American throughout the state.

The visiting officers included Ida Matthys of Cottonwood, state FFA vice president; Suzie Ruthemeier of Perham, Region I president; and Jeremy Leitzen of Winona, state FFA treasurer.

On their way to Greenbush/Middle River School, the students spent less than an hour in Thief River Falls, just enough time to be interviewed by Jenny Novak, local FFA president, and treasurer Naomi Kenner, who amassed the information for this article.

The purpose of the tour is to promote Future Farmers of America to local chapters, encouraging members to become more involved. In addition to Thief River Falls, the officers have visited Halstad, Climax, Fertile, Ada-Borup and Crookston. Future plans include visits to Mahnomen, Ulen Hawley, Sebeka and Menahga

In Crookston, the students toured the University of Minnesota, Crookston campus and Dahlgren's.

Tradition was among the reasons the young females joined FFA. Ida said her family was involved, including an older brother who served as a state officer, and Suzie's dad is an FFA advisor who advised her of the many opportunities FFA has to offer. Jeremy says all of his friends are involved, and FFA is "the place to be." He was encouraged, he says, by his high school counselor.

The competitions they have participated in vary from student to student. Ida has participated in poultry and horse competitions while Suzie has taken part in dairy foods, talent and public speaking contests. Jeremy's competition experience includes poultry also, as well as livestock and job interviews.

Prior to becoming a state officer, all of the young people served as regional officers. Jeremy was a reporter, and Suzie served as an acting vice president and is currently a regional president. Ida has held the positions of director, secretary and president. While Ida aspires to become a national FFA officer candidate, Ida and Jeremy are sitting back to see how this year goes.

Responsibilities of the state officers include encouraging FFA members and promoting the organization. Some of the traits they list as important for such positions include willingness to work hard, commitment, knowledge about agriculture and FFA programs and the ability to see and respond to the needs of members across the state.

All three of the young state officers are excited about the upcoming national convention in Kentucky. While it will be the third convention for Suzie and Jeremy and fourth for Ida, all are extremely excited about going.

Each has his or her favorite convention activity, too. Ida loves the laser show and the socialization that includes, she says, "jammin' and standing and yelling." Suzie enjoys the speakers, and Jeremy says his favorite part of the convention is the career show.

As they travel around Regions 1 and 2, the state FFA officers encourage other members to attend the National Convention also. "Everyone should experience it!" say Ida, Jeremy and Suzie.

TRF Library celebrates its 100th anniversary

Association strives to make library a public library

(Note: The following is a collection of excerpts from the historical booklet of the Thief River Falls Public Library, the second of four installments which will appear in The Times during the month of October. The booklet, compiled by Librarian Heidi Hoks for the library's 100th birthday, will be available in its entirety at the library later in the month.)

In the first installment of library history which appeared in the October 3 edition of The Times, the Thief River Falls Library Association was formed and fund-raising activities, including an annual library ball, were held to earn money to buy books and support the new endeavor. During its early years, patrons also paid an annual subscription fee to use the library.

The story continues as the library association finds a home for the library and strives to make the public library "public."

The next order of business for the newly formed library association was to find a place to house the books. According to Mrs. Norman Holen's account in the pamphlet, "Your Library - 1901-1966," the first building to house this public library was probably located on the corner of the alley, just across from the current location of the accounting office of Gale Schmitz, CPA.

As Mrs. Holen stated in her article, "The little library was located on the north side of Second Street, west of the alley between Main and LaBree Avenues, in a small frame building which was loaned to the group rent free by Sherman F. Maples, an early real estate man. This site was later occupied by the Dobner-Meehan Block."

That means the library was housed in a building at the site of the old post office (111 Second Street East). There is some indication, however, that Wiley Tindolph was the real owner of that building or a co-owner. A quote in the October 29, 1901 newspaper indicated that he painted that building (which he owned).

In 1902, the city appropriated $200 to build a one-story library annex on the north side of the old City Hall on First Street and Main Avenue (the site of the present Pennington County Courthouse). This appropriation was the city's first funding for the library. In a newspaper column entitled "Town Tales," Wiley Tindolph did the actually construction of this structure which was comprised of two rooms, one for books and the other for reading and office space for the librarian.

The board of the Thief River Falls Public Library Association was feeling more financially secure in 1902 and hired Mr. L.G. Browning as its first librarian. While his salary was only $14 per month, the library was only open 10 hours a week, from 3 to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday.

The association also felt secure enough to implement a second step in their library plan in 1902, dropping its subscription fee and offering library service free of charge to the public on July 1. This occurred in conjunction with the opening of the new library building that was attached to City Hall. Now anyone, regardless of financial status, could better themselves with books from the public library.

The library association's next challenge was to make the library an integral part of the city.

In the spring of 1903, a bill passed in the Senate which provided for the establishment of public libraries and reading rooms. The measure authorized cities and villages with populations of less than 20,000 to levy a tax of 2 mills annually to provide for a library fund. The bill also stated that all these libraries would be offered to the public free of charge.

This piqued the interest of the library association and in the April 9, 1903 edition of the newspaper, ti was noted that a committee from the library association attended the city council meeting and asked the council for financial assistance. It was noted that the council did not act at that time, and also, that little other business was taken care of as this particular discussion was so lengthy.

Because the library association insisted that the city take action, the city attorney was contacted to look into the matter. He reported back at the end of the month that the city could not legally give the library association any financial aid because the library was privately owned, not the property of the city.

Officially, the public library was originally "owned" by the Thief River Falls Library Association. In order to ensure its continued existence and viability, the association now knew the library had to become part of the city.

Many times after the city attorney's opinion was made public, the city council was approached and rejected this idea. Then, in 1905, the association presented a petition to the city requesting that a proposal to incorporate the library as a city department be placed on the ballot.

On October 26, 1905, the Thief River Falls News reported it as follows: "The ladies of Thief River Falls are going to take a part in the coming city campaign and although they cannot vote, they claim to have much influence.

"They have secured a petition and will have place upon the official ballot the proposition of having the city accept the public library of the city. The library is at present owned by the Thief River Falls Public Library Association, an organization composed of a number of ladies of the city, and they have supported it for a number of years. It has been one of the popular institutions of the town and has a large number of patrons. The ladies believe that it is the proper time that the books and other property of this institution be owned by the city and that a one mill tax for its support and the purchase of new books be levied. At present, the city council pays the salary of the librarian, but as the library property is not owned by the city, the council has no legal right to do this.

"It would seem but proper that the city assume ownership and management of this institution and all should vote "yes" upon the proposition. The increase in tax to the large majority of residents would be but a few cents."

Interestingly, this article was not found in the editorial section of the newspaper but rather on its front page.

LHS Class of 1940 holds 61st reunion

Lincoln High School Class of 1940 held its 61st class reunion on Friday, September 28, at the Best Western Inn in Thief River Falls.

After an afternoon of reminiscing, a banquet was held at 5 p.m. Tables were decorated with blue and gold school colors and centered with lighted candles in vases set on mirrors.

Leonard Furuseth welcomed his classmates, their spouses and guests. Cliff Vigness offered the invocation, and a barbecue rib dinner was enjoyed with Emil Heieren entertaining the group with several harmonica selections.

Art Buringrud brought greetings on behalf of his 1940 class, and sending greetings were Lois Jordahl Dahlen of Willmar; Perry Froseth of Portland, Ore.; Silas Kompelien of Harlingen, Texas; Kay Engelstad of Waterloo, Iowa; Ione Ryan Beck of Waukegan, Ill.; Norma Jean Looker of Mission, Texas; Carrie Groven Vensland of Pequot Lakes; and Carol Hicks Kammerer Everhart of Aurora, Colo.

An impressive memorial service prepared by Cliff Vigness included Cliff reading the name of each of the 38 classmates who have passed away.

Annie and Breanna Gaffny of Eagan, granddaughters of Leonard and Milly Furuseth, entertained the group with several vocal selections and a humorous skit entitled "What's On First?" The entire program was videotaped by Furuseths' daughter, Sandy Gaffny, and Dode Votava Wilson served as the photographer for the occasion.

Following the program, Cliff Vigness gave the benediction, and drawings for door prizes concluded the evening.

Attending the reunion were Marion Holmen Wold, Doris Carlson Stromberg, Gaynard and Ruby Warnecke, Leonard and Milly Furuseth, Emil and Audrey Heieren, Helen Arros Wysoski, Alice Roos, Art and Virginia Buringrud, Bob and Anne Hillyer Kraemer, Kenneth and Lillian Ose, Dode Votava Wilson, Cliff and Katherine Anderson Vigness, all of Thief River Falls; Gordon Dunham of Oklee; Herbert Goethe of Goodridge; Ruth Goethe Schmitz of Mesa, Ariz.; Frances Stenberg Stromberg of Grygla; and Bemeil Nelson and Tillie Gebhardt of Crookston.

Ashley Read entertains area seniors

Ashley Read, Minnesota's current Miss Junior Teen, is on the road, bringing musical entertainment to area seniors.

The 14-year-old Thief River Falls teen puts together a variety show, recruiting family, high school friends and others, including Minnesota State Senator LeRoy Stumpf. Performances are hosted in nursing homes and independent living centers and are free to residents and the general public.

Read got the idea for the variety shows when visiting residents at Valley Home last spring.

Read's next show is scheduled for October in Erskine, hopefully with friends Michelle and Amanda Noreen and a repeat performance by Senator Stumpf. The Noreen sisters play piano and sing, and Senator Stumpf, Read says, is a "real crowd-pleaser" on the harmonica. Read also performs the songs and dance routine that were featured in her successful bid for the Miss Minnesota Junior Teen title in July.

If other senior groups are interested in "booking" Read and friends, they are invited to call her at (218) 683-7318.

OCT. 15, 1923 - OCT. 22, 2000

One year has gone by since God took you home.
Our hearts are still grieving, we still miss you so.
But we all know that it was your time to go.
Thanks for all the wonderful memories
you've given us to share.
Your love and giving spirit was beyond compare.
We will always remember your twinkling green eyes, and the smile on your face.
Those are the kind of memories
you can never replace.
You will always be with us, in our hearts full of love.
We like to think of you looking down on us from above.
We know you're in Heaven, where God wants you to be
Along with His angels for all eternity.
We know that one day we will join you there
But for now our lives will go on Because God keeps us in His care

Lovingly missed by your children, Susie Koland

~~~THANK YOU~~~

On October 4th, the 2001-2002 Prowler Boys Basketball Team sponsored a spaghetti feed at the Elk's. Being somewhat new to the community I was surprised to see the overwhelming support for the young men on our team.

It was a great opportunity for me to meet parents, boosters and friends of the athletic programs of TRF. On behalf of the Prowler coaching staff and the Prowler athletes, we want to say "thank you."

A special thank you goes out to the Elks for their generous donation of the facilities and matching funds up to $300.00. Kmart, Super One Foods, Danny's Pizza and Dean Foods made significant contributions as well.

Steve Stone did a fantastic job of preparing the dinner, and many parents were active in planning and preparing for the evening at very short notice.

Our players are very appreciative of the support, and we look forward to the upcoming season. It is our hope to play hard, play together, and truly be a team. I think the spaghetti feed got us off to a great start.

Thanks Again!!!

Reflections

by Brittany Larson

This is one of a series of articles that will focus on local senior citizen's memories. "Reflections" is a project by Brittany Larson for the Governor's Scholars program. This program is sponsored by the Minnesota Academic Excellence Foundation (MAEF) and challenges young people to implement positive change in their communities.

It has been said that, in order to be a good doctor, a person must also be of good character. Dr. Ernie Thorsgard is such a person.

The first of six children, he was born in 1923 on a farm in Northwood, N.D. Although he thinks his father would have been happier if he'd gone into the ministry, Thorsgard always knew doctoring was in his future. A voracious reader, he was inspired by the biography of Dr. Livingston, the legendary missionary to Africa. "I was pretty interested in medicine all along," Thorsgard said. Yet probably because of his farm background, he leaned toward becoming a veterinarian, not a physician. His mind was changed when he learned that veterinary schools were nonexistent in Minnesota at the time. "If I'd have really known what I was doing," he said, "I should have gone to Iowa to go to school, but I didn't."

Instead, he opted for Augsburg College, a Lutheran-affiliated school located in the Twin Cities. After only two years, fate flung another twist. "The war (WWII) came and I got an agricultural deferment to work on the farm." Thorsgard obediently returned to southwest Grand Forks County in what he refers to as "a long hiatus" in his educational track. It was back at home where he got to know Ina Sundquist, the Superintendent of nurses at the local hospital. "I guess (until then) I'd been satisfied to just stay home and work and read books," he confessed. "But then, when I met her, I thought, 'I think I want to be a doctor!'"

With rekindled enthusiasm, Thorsgard resumed his education, but this time he enrolled at the University of North Dakota. He acknowledged that getting into UND's medical program "was a little hard . . . but eventually I succeeded." After two years, he received a BA and BSC in premed.

He took his first two years of medical school at UND and then transferred to Vanderbilt University in Nashville, Tenn. "In those days, you could transfer out (more easily) because almost every school had vacancies." These vacancies were the unfortunate by-product of what Thorsgard calls "kind of a vicious system." He explained, "They actually flunked a lot of kids out, which, you know, they don't do nowadays."

It was at Vanderbilt that he earned his MD as a General Practitioner. "Medical school is very strenuous, but I have a lot of good memories," he said. By this time, he and Ina were settling in to married life, having wed in 1953.

Eventually Minnesota beckoned him back with the position of a one-year rotating internship at Minneapolis' General Hospital. He worked every day and was on call every other night. "At that time, Minneapolis General was a real general hospital. Anyone who was indigent had to go there for their care. They couldn't just go to any doctor they wanted." Looking back on it, he now describes the hospital as "kind of primitive."

A significant breakthrough that influenced Thorsgard's doctoring career was the birth control pill. "Before that, I'd have to say that a lot of people had more children than they wanted," he chuckles. "Sometimes," he said, "it was not wise to say 'oh, you're pregnant' and then act happy, because the woman would be very angry about it. That wasn't good news to her." Sadly criminal abortions were not uncommon.

Thorsgard came to Thief River Falls in 1958, launching a 30-year stint at the local clinic. He doesn't deny that many things changed throughout his career, particularly people's expectations of medicine. Today, it seems more difficult for people to understand that there are limitations to what medicine can do. "They think that everything is curable," Thorsgard said. "And yet, they can do so much more for people (today)," he said, noting that "there was a time when old people broke their hips and there was nothing to do for them, and they would die within a short time." Now, this would be solved by surgery or prostheses.

Ambulances were also starkly different. "People were hauled to the hospital in hearses," recalled Thorsgard. So, oddly enough, the vehicles designed for death also assisted in preventing it. Etched in his memory is the time he rode beside a gravely ill patient on a long ambulance ride from Thief River Falls to the Mayo Clinic in Rochester. The patient was so weak that Thorsgard had to physically help her breathe for the entire trip.

With all the demands of the job, it causes one to wonder: did Thorsgard experience pressure? "Oh yeah," he rushed. "Always have; always did. It never quite left you, you know. You hated to hear the phone ring, but in those days they kind of expected that you'd have to work hard. And no matter what came up, you'd have to take care of it."

"Taking care of it" was often just as emotionally trying as it was physically intense. Recalling the stress, he apologizes if he occasionally seemed "crabby." "You worried about people," said Thorsgard. But not all people appreciated his efforts. "It's got more to do with the person you're dealing with than what you do for them," he said. "Some were always appreciative. Others, I felt like I'd saved their lives, yet they weren't thankful."

He goes on to say, "I think doctors have been criticized some because they seem so cold and dispassionate . . . not demonstrative enough. It was a little different time then, than it is now. It was a time when people didn't hug and kiss each other like you do now."

Nonetheless, Thorsgard did express that he misses doctoring. "But now I'm to the point where I don't want to do it anymore." With his signature, endearing smile he mused, "It takes me a while to remember the name of the antibiotic!"

Following Livingston's example, Thorsgard also spent time as a missionary, relocating his family to New Guinea for nine months in 1969-70. Although he retired in 1988, Ernie Thorsgard and his wife, Ina (along with their horses) still live in Thief River Falls. Their three children all entered various fields of medicine, securing Thorsgard's legacy, which is sure to be great.

Down On The Farm

Eric Bergeson

This is the season for church dinners. Catholics, Methodists, Presbyterians, all the various flavors of Lutherans, everybody seems to have their dinners in October. I suppose that is when people are the most hungry. The weather is cooling off, and the body is telling us to put on that extra winter padding.

There could probably be greater interfaith cooperation to avoid overlapping dinners, but I suppose that is asking a bit much. You can't have it all. You can't have your meatballs and expect ham, too. Sometimes you have to pick and choose.

I choose church dinners by food rather than doctrine. Meatball suppers always tempt me. Ham never fails. Turkey is fine, but barbecue of any sort will lure me for sure.

I regard lutefisk as a toxic substance. Let's hope terrorists never get ahold of it, they could paralyze the entire country. I take long detours around lutefisk suppers, just to be safe.

No church wants to be seen as stingy. They load up the plates till they overflow, particularly if you are a male under 40 years of age.

Come back for seconds, they say, there's plenty more in back. There's more potatoes in the oven. We've got way too much cole slaw. Help yourself. Did you get pickles? Aren't you having cake? We have way more beans than we need, take more for crying out loud.

The cake always presents a problem. Here comes the plate loaded with 10 scrumptious different kinds of cake. German chocolate with brown-sugar and coconut frosting, lemon-filled white cake, carrot cake with cream cheese frosting, angel food cake with speckled frosting, the works.

But how do you pick when there are six ladies watching you make your choice? Each one of them, I suspect, brought a cake. Nobody will say which one is theirs. If I choose one over the others, is somebody going to be hurt?

I used to feel bad for the woman who made the cake which nobody is choosing, usually a white cake with an off-color frosting. What if she goes home with a pan full of cake--will the rejection push her over the edge? Shouldn't there be counselors available for that sort of thing?

Lately, I have decided that life is too short. You can't have your cake and eat it too, they say, but you can make sure to eat the piece of cake you want when you have the chance.

I compliment all of the rejected cakes before giving my reason for taking the one I want. This piece is smaller, and I am already full. Chocolate makes me hyper. I had carrot cake for breakfast. Angel food makes my acid reflux act up. Better not take the banana bar. Mervin has his eye on it.

But you know, the ladies probably don't care. For them, this is church dinner #425. Some cakes work, other cakes don't. If there's some left, the old man can work on it for the rest of the week.

SPEAKING OF . . .

Sherry LaCoursiere

...Give Myself a Shake and Turn Myself Around

I'll admit it, I'm nervous about all this stuff that's going on. I'm trying not to let it get the best of me, and every so often I have to stop and give myself a shake because I'm allowing my imagination to run away with me. It's such an easy thing to do.

First came the destruction of the towers in New York. Had you ever seen anything like it except in the movies? Did you see it (how could you not?) - a plane flying into one of the towers, burning, then another plane flying into the tower next to it, burning, then, one after another, the towers slowly rolling down, collapsing. And even more surreal, as each collapsed, the wall of "smoke" that rolled down the street, consisting of the ash and dust from the 100-some story towers. I never thought I would see anything like it in this country. And I saw it over and over and over on every television station I turned on, in every newspaper and magazine I read.

Helping each other was first. Our country picked itself up and got to work - together. We cried when we heard about the deaths. Then we cried out for vengeance. Retaliation was inevitable; it was just a matter of when. We learned all about the enemies we hardly knew we had. We heard the threats of more terror to come. We prepared for war. I watched it all on television, flipping between channels to learn more.

Maybe some of us scoffed when we heard of people preparing for a different type of war. We heard of people buying gas masks, chemical suits, water purifier kits, stocking up on antibiotics. We heard those "naysayers" telling us there might be biological or chemical weapons. We said, "what next?" But I heard them say we weren't prepared for something like that, and it frightened me.

We knew the airlines were taking extreme precautions to keep flyers safe and we figured that would be a deterrent to more terrorism. We heard that crop dusting planes were being grounded all over the country. "Oh, that's too much," we agriculturally-oriented people in the midwest said. We know all about crop dusters. They couldn't hurt us with those things. We saw them all the time. They flew overhead and we hardly noticed them. But they weren't flying any more and neither were the other airplanes. How strange. How quiet it was when there were no airplanes. I found myself cringing and standing very still when I heard one up there in the sky, like I do when I hear the squealing of car tires and then stand still and wait for the crash to come. I'm always relieved when there is no crash. I was now too.

The politicians said to be vigilant, take precautions, be careful. The president appointed a head of Homeland Security. What? What the heck was "Homeland Security" anyway? Sounds like World War II all over again. Were we going backward? The National Guard was put to work guarding the borders of our country and we saw security guards in places we never did before. How could this be possible?

Then the bombing started and then came the anthrax and more fear. Every day I hear of more anthrax cases. I'm sure it is because I had the audacity, when I heard of the first cases, to suggest that the terrorists didn't know what they were doing and were failing to spread the stuff around the way they planned. I should never have said that. I take it back.

They tell us to talk to the children about this terrorism so they can better deal with what is going on. I think it would be best if people like me were kept from talking to children, since we would probably scare them out of their wits and make them much more frightened than they are. I'm doing a good job of scaring myself, so heaven knows what damage I would do to children, talking to them in my condition. Sometimes I think I shouldn't talk to adults either.

Saturday afternoon I think I did the best thing I could have possibly done. I turned off the television sets and turned on my VCR and watched a movie called "A Bug's Life" that I had taped for my grandchildren. They're going to love it next time they come over. I think I'll watch it again tomorrow night.

October 16, 2000.
[illegible] love and miss you dearly!!

HE ONLY TOOK MY HAND

Last night while I was trying to sleep,
Your dear sweet voice I did hear,
I opened my eyes and looked around,
But you did not appear.

You said, "You've got to listen,
You've got to understand,
God didn't take me from you,
He only took my hand.

When I called out in pain that morning,
The instant that I died,
He reached down and took my hand,
And pulled me to His side.

He pulled me up and saved me,
From the misery and pain,
From the disease that hurt my body,
I could never be the same.

My search is really over now,
I've found happiness within,
All the answers to my empty dreams,
And all that might have been.

I love you and I miss you so,
And I'll always be nearby,
My body's gone forever,
But my spirit will never die!

And so, you must go on now,
Live one day at a time,
Just understand –
God did not take me from you,
He only took my hand."

Love you always,

Tsibulsky joins mental health staff at Northwest Medical Center

Psychiatrist, Dr. Mark Tsibulsky, is the newest member of the mental health staff at Northwest Medical Center.

Tsibulsky completed his medical education in Moscow in 1988, and worked as an emergency physician in Russia before coming to North America in 1993. A Canadian citizen, Tsibulsky is a recent graduate of the four-year Hennepin-Regions Psychiatry Residency program in the Twin Cities. Dr. Tsibulsky and his wife, Taya, have purchased a home in Thief River Falls.

"I am very pleased to be a member of Northwest Medical Center's impressive mental health team," said Dr. Tsibulsky. "I consider myself very fortunate to have the opportunity to work with such dedicated and talented professionals, and to live in such a fine community."

Dr. Tsibulsky joins a mental health staff that includes six clinical psychologists, mental health counselors and social workers, and a physician assistant and a physician who specializes in mental health. The staff provides a comprehensive range of mental health services, and serves people from as far away as Park Rapids. Services include inpatient, outpatient, emergency, and employee and employer assistance services. The medical center also provides community-based mental health services in Thief River Falls, Roseau and Bagley. It operates two local off-campus mental health residential treatment facilities, Northern Lights and Pathfinder Children's Center.

"With psychiatrists in very short supply nation-wide, it's especially challenging to recruit one to a rural area," said Dr. Steve Levinson, director of the mental health division. "We're delighted that Dr. Tsibulsky decided to join us and to make Thief River Falls his home."

Former TRF man retiring from Alexandria PD

According to the Alexandria Echo Press, Jim Smidt retired from the Alexandria Police Department on October 7, after 29 years as a peace officer.

He left his former home north of Thief River Falls to attend the law enforcement course in Alexandria. Smidt's parents are Albert and Pearl Smidt of Stephen.

Upon graduation, he worked for Renville County as a deputy, the Douglas County Sheriff's Water Patrol, and the Thief River Falls Police Department before being hired in Alexandria in 1981.

Smidt said he loves his job protecting the public, but admitted that his body is telling him its time to slow down.

Looking back over his career, Smidt said its a job that has lived up to his expectations, because day after day he has had opportunities to help people in need.

Despite his retirement, Smidt won't stop teaching first aid and CPR classes. He has done this for many years, and feels its an important service to the community. Its that commitment to helping people that made Smidt join law enforcement in the first place.

Smidt said he will miss working with other officers.

"I don't care what color uniform they wear, we're all one family of law enforcement officers," said Smidt

Chief Dispatcher John Braseth said Smidt will also be missed. Braseth said its obvious that Smidt really cares about people, and "he has the ability to get to know people from all walks of life, and they trust him."

Smidt said that throughout his career, one of his main goals has been to treat people with respect. He takes pride in treating people the way he would want to be treated.

Eric Chester, Lakewood, Colo., spoke to area teens and adults about "Generation Why" and WHY2K compliant schools at the Thief River Falls City Auditorium on October 9. Students also listened to a "self-esteem" message by Alicia Haviland from Northwest Medical Center in Thief River Falls, while adults went to a seperate meeting. Among the topics addressed, were self-esteem, acceptance, violence and tolerance, peer presssure and alchohol and drugs. The event started at 9:00 a.m., and lasteduntil 3:00 p.m.

ON THE OTHER HAND

Kate Levinson, Lincoln High School

Friday morning at 5:00, 47 tired art school students from Lincoln climbed onto a too-small school bus headed for the cities for their annual trip. I was one of them. Sharing a seat with Dane Froiland meant there was little room for me. As a result, I spent much of my time in the aisle of the bus. It was fairly comfortable, considering it was the floor. By the time we arrived – seven hours later – I had lost count of bathroom stops.

Weary from the long ride, we climbed off the bus at the Ordway Center for the Performing Arts in St. Paul. Fighting to keep our eyes open, we watched an educational performance by a Cuban woman named Albita. Speaking through an interpreter, she explained and performed with her band the three styles that contribute to Cuban music.

Next, we were cut loose at the Minneapolis Institute of Art. Everyone seemed to find an area they enjoyed – modern, renaissance, impressionism. I loved it all. The little kid inside me wanted to run around, touching things and chattering with delight.

For dinner, we were seated next to the stage at Famous Dave's, a barbecue restaurant. When the piles of meat arrived, we attacked. Onlookers must have assumed we hadn't eaten in days. All through the flying utensils and ketchup bottles, we were entertained by live blues music blaring from the stage.

After supper, we went to the Music Box Theater in downtown Minneapolis to see Triple Espresso. This musical production was billed as a "highly-caffeinated" comedy with only three actors who got us laughing right away.. The theater was filled with tear-stained cheeks and aching stomachs from watching them perform music and magic, pantomime and parody. This show was the highlight of the trip for most of our group.

On Saturday, we went to the Chanhassen Dinner Theater to see the musical My Fair Lady. The energetic cast, bright costumes and memorable songs dazzled us. Lines of "I Could Have Danced All Night" swirled in our heads all weekend.

For our evening meal, we traveled to the Old Spaghetti Factory. We waited and waited. By the time all of our meals were served, it was time to go. So, sauce spraying and ice cream dripping, we rushed back to the bus.

We made it to the Guthrie Theater barely in time for an Irish play called Da. It was about the relationship between a father and son as the son looks back on his life. Because the play was very complex, some of it went over our heads. However, it was nice to see a different type of performance.

Needless to say, it was hard to drag ourselves out of bed on Sunday morning after getting very little sleep the night before, but somehow we did. We got back on the bus and drove to the Walker Art Gallery and Sculpture Garden. While some of us looked at the modern sculptures and exhibits and took pictures, others visited the Basilica of Saint Mary across the street.

Next, we tried to locate food in downtown St. Paul, which was quite a task for our large group. We all found something eventually, whether it was a bagel shop, a candy store, or a Charlie Brown statue on the sidewalk. Surprisingly, we were more or less on time meeting at the McKnight Theater.

The show we saw there, Bingo, was a musical comedy that was interactive. At the beginning of each act, the audience received Bingo cards and was encouraged to play along with the actors. No one in our group won, but it was a fun show to watch.

Again, we loaded the dreaded bus, but this time it was to head home. Some people slept, some talked, some sang or played guitar. Because I still didn't have a seat to call my own, I decided to do a little of each . . . well, except for playing guitar. It was my bus version of musical chairs. Whenever someone stood up, I sat down. It was a good way to talk to new people. The best part of the trip was noticing the diversity. Not only did it show in the art but also in the people. I've noticed that people with strong interests in the arts have strong personalities to match, which can be an especially big problem in large groups of teenagers. The cliques and stereotypes existed even within our group. Despite our obvious differences, we all did a good job of respecting each other's opinions.

The trip was also a good way to broaden our horizons and see that anything is possible. It was inspiring to realize that the achievements of famous artists started out as dreams, just like ours. All I wanted to do was come home and create my own masterpiece.

PARENTING TIPS
Early Childhood Screenings

Children grow at different rates. This is normal and healthy. But then how do you know if your child has a delay in some area of development? One way to find out is to take your child to early childhood screening. The Minnesota legislature requires all children to be screened prior to entering public school, preferably around age 3 1/2 to 4. The purpose of the screening is to celebrate your child's strengths and to identify health and developmental delays early. Early detection of delays can reduce the need for costly care at a later time. All Minnesota school districts provide Early Childhood screening free of charge. However, parents may choose to have a comparable screening done by a public or private health care provider.

The Thief River Falls Early Childhood screening clinics are held monthly at Challenger Preschool. If you have a child who is four years old and who has not yet been screened, please call 681-8670 for information or to make an appointment.

SOMETHING TO TALK ABOUT

If your child is going to be screened, talk with him about it ahead of time. Tell him that you will be with him the whole time. He will have his eyes and ears checked and be asked to play some games.

Christmas Seal campaign underway

The American Lung Association of Minnesota kicked off its Christmas and Holiday Seal campaign in Minnesota.

This year's theme is "Christmas Seals can help cure asthma." Asthma is one of the leading serious diseases affecting children and adults. Asthma continues to increase and rose a staggering 85 percent from 1982 to 1997. The disease affects one in five Minnesota households, and donating to the campaign will help further the research into treatments and a cure for this devastating disease.

The annual Christmas Seal Program began in 1907 to attack tuberculosis, which was the number one cause of death at that time. Today, holiday seal funds help fight lung disease of all types and are used to educate the public on a variety of topics such as asthma, smoking prevention and occupational lung health.

Over a million households across Minnesota have received their Christmas Seals and appeal letters. "We encourage everyone to use these colorful seals on mail and packages," said Gladys Goecke, senior director of direct mail and volunteer programs at ALAMN. "They are a very visible way of showing that people care about the continuing fight against lung disease."

TAD camp held for area students, teachers

Twenty-six fifth-grade peer educators and their teachers or parent volunteers from seven schools participated in a Tobacco, Alcohol and Drug Use Prevention Camp at Camp Minne-Wa-Kan near Cass Lake on September 27 and 28.

Participating schools were Goodridge, Grygla, Kittson Central, Lancaster, Marshall County Central, Plummer and Stephen-Argyle. A total of 32 students, teachers and parent volunteers were present. After the event, students returned to their classrooms, and taught classmates about the dangers of chemical use.

The TAD Project began in 1989. It is operated by a volunteer task force, which is open to the public. Its goal is to educate youth to the dangers of chemical use and thus prevent chemical use by children.

Hospice manager attends seminar

First Care Hospice manager Marinell Waterworth, RN, CRNH, attended a two-day course on end-of-life care held in Denver September 10-11. Waterworth was one of 100 competitively selected nurses from across the United States who attended the training program.

The program, held in partnership with Last Acts, is entitled "End-of-Life Nursing Education Consortium" and is designed for nurses who provide continuing education programs.

The program's goal is to provide nursing continuing education providers with information on end-of-life care and resources to integrate end-of-life content into their inservice programs or courses. Nurses spend more time with patients who are facing death than any other member of the health care team. Studies have shown, however, that many nurses feel inadequately prepared to provide the comprehensive care so important at the end of life.

A comprehensive curriculum will be sent to all Minnesota colleges that have nursing degree programs. The curriculum addresses issues surrounding nursing care at the end of life, including pain and symptom assessment and management; cultural considerations; ethical/legal issues; communication; grief, loss and bereavement; preparation and care for the time of death; and achieving quality care at the end of a patient's life.

Waterworth plans to utilize the information she gained by providing training to physicians, nurses, nursing home staff, students and hospice workers. Both the training in Denver and the curriculum development and distribution were funded by the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation.

"The speakers and participants were deeply impacted by the attacks on New York and Washington that took place during the conference," Waterworth said. "The mood was very sober as people wondered what would happen next. Since my return home, I have appreciated hospice's role in grief support, not just with our patient families, but with the community. We offer grief support groups and education sessions twice a year for anyone who has lost a loved one."

For more information about grief support groups or training, contact First Care Hospice at 681-6189.

Minnesota customers experience decrease in gas prices

Northern Minnesota Utilities residential customers' bills for October gas usage will average 42 percent less than the same period a year ago, a company official said today.

During the 2000-2001 winter season, historically high wholesale natural gas prices caused U.S. utility customers, such Northern Minnesota Utilities, to experience significantly higher gas bills. Since earlier this year, gas prices have declined sharply, bringing bill relief to consumers, according to Rory Lenton, community relations director for the company.

Wholesale market prices for natural gas are currently about $2 per 1,000 cubic feet, compared to approximately $5 a year ago.

"Based on current market conditions, unless winter weather is extremely cold, gas customers will see much lower prices during this heating season," Lenton said.

For October gas usage, a residential customer of Northern Minnesota Utilities using 44 ccf of gas would pay $23.94, a decrease of $17.54 from 2000.

"Northern Minnesota Utilities provides gas it purchases for customers without a price mark-up," Lenton said. "The company's rate of earnings is regulated by state and local government agencies and is based on delivering gas to customers."

Lenton explained that lower U.S. gas prices are caused mainly by the following factors: U.S. gas storage is currently 20 percent above the same time last year, an overall decline in the U.S. economy has decreased gas usage causing downward pressure on gas prices; large manufacturing and chemical facilities have decreased natural gas usage due to declining U.S. economic conditions; and increased U.S. natural gas drilling in 2001 resulted in increased gas supplies available for consumption.

Lenton explained that gas service bills are composed of three main components: gas cost, transportation and distribution.

The eXtreme team returns to TRF Oct. 17

The eXtreme team will return to Thief River Falls on Wednesday, October 17, to kick-off a four-day event of music and uplifting drama. The team will be in concert at the Open Arms Christian Fellowship, 401 St. Paul Ave. South, Thief River Falls, at 7 p.m. nightly through Saturday, October 20. Each evening's presentation will be new and different. While geared for teens and young adults, the eXtreme team has a wide age appeal, and no one is excluded from attending.

The eXtreme team is a seven-person ministry team focusing on reaching Generation X with the radical love of Jesus Christ. Twenty-six-year-old Brian Yaeger, director and member of the team says, "Generation X belongs in the spotlight, working for God." At first this was only an idea that Yaeger held, but he talked about his dream and the eXtreme team, as it is now known, emerged as other people across the nation joined him in acting on this conviction. The results have been nothing less than spectacular.

The team is designed to create revival, inspire service and outreach, and empower local ministry in youth across North America. Yaeger, along with team members Jasmine Banna, age 20, Jeremy Carscallen, age 20, Jonathan Platt, age 20, Randall Goulard, age 20, Ryan Payne, age 21, and Chris Picco, age 22, bring multiple talents to their ministry. Their biggest passion, however, is letting local youth and youth leaders create their own event. Hospice Care

Kelly Rogalla (left), public relations and marketing representative for First Care Medical Services, congratulates Mary Fran Zeller, Hospice Chaplain, for her dedicated service to hospice patients, families, staff and volunteers.

Hospice recognized contribution of chaplain

Mary Fran Zeller is being recognized by First Care Medical Services for her dedicated service to hospice patients, families, staff, and volunteers.

Kelly Rogalla, public relations representative for First Care Medical Services in Thief River Falls, explained that Zeller serves as a volunteer Hospice Chaplain providing spiritual care to hospice patients and their families.

First Care Medical Services provides Hospice patients the opportunity to have spiritual care services. Spiritual care, said Rogalla, is an important part of the overall hospice mission and is included in hospice Medicare regulations. At the patient's request, Zeller develops a spiritual care plan with the patient and coordinates services with the patient's own parish clergy. Zeller can provide visits, prayer, scripture reading, or spiritual care defined by the patient.

Zeller was led to service for hospice clients after her first husband was diagnosed with cancer and utilized hospice care in 1987. From that experience, she gained a profound respect for the type of care hospice can provide, and took steps to become part of the hospice team.

Zeller is a certified chaplain through the National Association of Catholic Chaplains (NACC). She received training through a trauma hospital in Kansas City, Mo. She has also served as a pastoral associate in a large suburban parish providing outreach to the elderly, homebound, and hospitalized patients.

Rogalla said that since Zeller joined the Hospice care team last year, patients and families have expressed thanks and words of praise for her work.

Zeller averages 15 hours of patient care and 230 miles every month, oftentimes traveling to communities surrounding Thief River Falls.

First Care Hospice is a non-profit organization, providing physical, emotional and spiritual care to terminally-ill patients and their family members.

for L. B. Hartz Park; approved allocating Liquor Fund reserves to close out the River Dredging Project $67,873.56; approved additional compensation for Dale Narlock, Line Superintendent for emergency work with the City of East Grand Forks; approved the buying of new folder/inserter equipment from Red River Mailing Equipment out of Fargo, N.D.

The council approved the following items from the consent agenda: approved designating the week of October 7 through 13 as the fifteenth annual Public Power Week; approved charging off delinquent utility bills to be certified to the Pennington County Auditor for collection; approved closing out three debt service funds; approved a salary progression raise for Scott Berto driver/collector in the Sanitation Department.

Clean-up proposal at Airport Fuel Farm site approved

The Council approved the proposal from Northern Environmental for corrective action design for the Airport Fuel Farm site clean up.

The site's underground fuel tanks were removed to comply with Minnesota Pollution Control Agency guidelines. Ron Lindberg, from the Thief River Falls Office of Public Works, said the City opted to replace the tanks with above-ground tanks because they are easier to maintain, according to MPCA regulations.

Based on MPCA requirements and Northern Environmental's understanding of the site's condition, it was necessary to complete a Remedial Investigation/Corrective Action Design report before closure. The report should be completed within six weeks.

Northern Environmental will likely recommend site closure, since there doesn't seem to be any potential groundwater, vapor or surface water receptors that will be affected.

Council approves airport maintenance and operation agreement. The Thief River Falls City Council approved the grant agreement for airport maintenance and operation.

The agreement is between the state of Minnesota acting through its Commissioner of Transportation and the City of Thief River Falls. It will remain in effect for the State fiscal years 2002 and 2003. In part, the City agrees to the limits of State cost participation based upon a formula using runway infrastructure costs. The State will reimburse the City for two-thirds of the direct, actual maintenance and operation costs not to exceed a base amount of $62,388 of State aid for each fiscal year. The State will also reimburse the City for two-thirds of all expenses associated with registration and attendance to maintenance training. The reimbursement will not exceed $1,000.

The airport must pass periodic inspections by the Office of Aeronautics for compliance with the rules of the Department of Transportation and with this agreement. If the airport is not maintained, no reimbursement will be made.

The City will be responsible for mowing the area, and clearing snow from at least one landing area, associated taxiway, and apron if the airport is to remain operational during the winter months.

Fargo Country Suites naming rooms after regional cities. The City Council accepted a proposal to have a room in the Fargo Country Suites named after Thief River Falls. In order for a city to participate, it must donate one matted and framed print depicting their city, along with a sheet of its history.

Retirement. The Council accepted the retirement of firefighter Neil Gillespie.

The City Council approved the following items on the agenda: approved payment of second half of September bills; approved the Personal Protective Equipment Policy covering all City employees; approved the revisions to the Employee Safety Handbook; approved rental of space in the City Auditorium for the Thief River Falls Credit Bureau; approved advertising for two open firefighter positions; and approved extending the calendar year time and working hours for a temporary Sanitation Department Employee.

first Kiwanis Club in Thief River Falls, and has since recruited 75 members. He is a chairperson of the Lutheran Social Service Senior Dining Project Council, Vice Chair of the Retired Senior Volunteer Program, a member of the Concert Association Board of Directors, and a member of the Advisory Committee for the School Volunteer Program. The list does not end here. Cliff has had an exceptional life and serves as a role model to many.

The American Heritage Dictionary defines a hero as "a person noted for feats of courage or nobility of purpose, especially one who has risked or sacrificed his or her life," and ageless is defined as "seeming never to grow old."

These definitions ring true for Larson. He has selflessly given his time- not because he has to, but because he wants to. Seventy-six years ago, this man was brought into the world. It is said that every life has a special purpose, but it's up to the individual to put it into action. Larson has done this. Over the years he has touched hundreds, possibly thousands of lives, and there are many more to come.

Where he's been

"I've lived all over the world," was Larson's response when asked how long he has been in Thief River Falls, and where he has been before. A briefing on his incredible life issued proof to this statement.

Larson was born in Hibbing, and attended high school in Karlstad. Immediately following graduation, he was drafted to serve in World War II.

"I graduated on a Friday in June, and left for basic training the following day," said Larson. "And I shipped out some time in '44."

Among the places Larson was stationed were France, the Philippine Islands and Japan. Serving in the Army Corp of Engineers became a prerequisite for his future career.

After being discharged in 1946, Larson lived in California, and attended the University of California, Berkeley for engineering. After receiving his degree, Larson started working for the Minnesota Highway Department in St. Paul in 1950.

Thief River Falls was his next stop, and has been here since 1951. Carmen Green, a Thief River Falls native, became his bride in 1952. Larson and his wife have two sons, Mark and John, and six grandchildren.

About the award

Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Minnesota spokesperson, Joel Swanson said "it's a chance to highlight and honor seniors who deserve to be recognized."

The honorees were named for excelling in the categories of vigor and vitality, community involvement, love of learning, creative expressions, against the odds, and bridging the generations. Recipients were chosen from 170 entries sent in by nominators from all over the state. The Ageless Heros program is in its fourth year, and recognizes accomplishments of senior citizens from all walks of life.

hours of work by your friends and neighbors, our United Way is able to keep its operating costs at a minimum. This means that more dollars get to programs which help people right here in Thief River Falls."

Local volunteers for the United Way also remind everyone that donations contributed locally, stay here and in the control of the local volunteers. Local volunteers, in fact, set all of the policies and make all of the decisions. This eliminates service duplication, makes local officials accountable for their actions, brings people of all faiths and walks of life in the community together, and helps human service providers improve their management and human service delivery. It also allows the board to respond quickly to changing human service needs in Thief River Falls.

In past years, volunteers have also stressed that this is an opportunity for residents to make a contribution that affects many organizations, and during this fundraising campaign, the 39 or so agencies that receive benefits from the United Way, are not conducting fundraising campaigns at this time.

Human service agencies receiving funds last year included: Boy Scouts, Beltrami County Chapter of the American Red Cross, Children's Home Society, Confidence Learning Center, Crossroads-Displaced Homemakers Program, Courage Center, DARE, Falls Development Achievement Center, Family Advocacy Program, First Care Medical Services, Foster Grandparent Program, Friendship Club, Girl Scouts, Heritage Community Center, Heritage Center Nutrition Council, Inter-County Nursing Service, Kidney Foundation, Leukemia Society of America - MN Chapter, Little Brother/Little Sister, Lutheran Social Services of Minnesota, Minnesota Extension Service, MN Senior Federation-Northwest Region, Northern Lights Book Store, North Country Food Bank, Inc., Northwest Minnesota Chaplains Program, Options, Parents Forever, Pennington County 4-H Leaders Council, Pennington County Attorney's office, Pennington County Humane Society, Plummer Early Childhood Family Education, RSVP, Red Lake Falls Early Childhood Education (ECFE), Respite and Caregiver Support Lutheran Social Service of MN, Salvation Army, Thief River Falls Early Childhood Family Education Program, TRF and Pennington County Safety Camp, Umbrella Tree Children's Safety Center, and Violence Intervention Project.

The TIMES

Cloquet receiver Jeff Lano was pulled down by Thief River Falls defensive back Robby Anderson in the first quarter of Friday's high school football game at the Multi-Events Center. The pass play netted the Lumberjacks just three yards. The Prowlers won the Super Sea Range contest 33-20.

TRF win streak is now at five

■ Prowlers add Jacks to conference conquests

With time running out in the first half, underdog Cloquet had played Thief River Falls to a 14-14 draw. But the Lumberjacks wanted more; they wanted a lead at halftime. Instead, the visitors found out first hand what the rest of the Super Sea Range Conference already knew – the Prowlers have the league's biggest breakaway threat in Jon Swanson. The 5-10, 180-pound halfback took off on a 79-yard tie-breaking touchdown run with 29 seconds left that led to a 33-20 high school homecoming football game win.

It was the fifth straight victory for the Prowlers – all coming at the expense of their first-year conference foes – after a pair of season-opening losses. They finish the regular season tonight (Wednesday) with a Super Sea Range Conference game at Hibbing.

Cloquet played Thief River Falls even-up until Swanson's game-breaker. The Lumberjacks turned the opening kickoff into a 10-play, 64-yard touchdown drive that ended on a 39-yard pass from Josh Gerard to Anthony Hagen. The receiver was covered on the play, but still made an over-the-shoulder catch down the left sideline with 5:07 elapsed.

The Prowlers, after losing a first-possession fumble at the Cloquet 19, scored as soon as they got their hands on the ball a second time as Swanson started to the right, cut back and weaved his way through the Lumberjacks' defense untouched on a 68-yard run with 1:03 left in the first quarter. The difference at that point: Thief River Falls' Stephan Hahn added the conversion kick; Cloquet's Joe Seppa missed his attempt.

A 10-play, 80-yard Thief River Falls drive that featured a 30-yard run by Swanson and a 20-yard gain by halfback Trent Christensen made it 14-6 when Swanson squirted through the left side from three yards out and Hahn made the kick with 6:48 remaining in the first half.

Cloquet answered with its own 10-play scoring drive, this one covering 61 yards. An 11-yard gain by Sam Homan on an option pitch, a diving catch by Homan on an 18-yard pass from Gerard and a 14-yard run by Gerard on a quarterback sneak were the big plays that led to a touchdown by Steve Johnson, who nudged his way into the end zone with 2:51 on the clock. A Gerard-to-Justin Burslie conversion pass tied it at 14-all.

Four plays later the Prowlers punted, giving the Lumberjacks the ball at the Thief River Falls 48 with 1:04 left in the half.

That's when the game-turning sequence began. Looking for points and momentum heading into the locker room, the visitors put the ball in the air three times – all incomplete. That forced a punt fielded at the Prowlers' 21 with 39.1 seconds still showing on the clock.

On first down, Swanson picked up his blocks on the right side and out-ran the Cloquet defense the rest of the way. It took him 10 seconds to cover those 79 yards. Hahn's third kick of the half made it 21-14.

"With the backs we have, it doesn't matter where we're at on the football field," said Thief River Falls coach Jeff Mumm. "We can grind it out, or we can break a big one."

Indeed they can. The Prowlers rushed for 466 yards – their entire offensive output. Every member of the starting backfield had a run of 15 yards or more. Swanson finished with 246 yards on 16 carries (a 15.4-yard average); fullback Eric Berg picked up 76 yards on 12 attempts (6.3); Christensen contributed 53 yards on 6 rushes (8.8); split end/flanker Dan Almquist wound up with 49 yards on 4 tries (12.3); and Robby Anderson tacked on 28 yards on 3 quarterback keepers (8.3).

They run behind a line whose starting unit includes center Brent Fulton, guards Nathan Olson and Trevor Swanson, tackles Peter Mehrkens and Trevor Christensen, and tight end Walter Forney.

"Our offensive line is undersized," said Mumm, "but when they look in a mirror, that's not what they see. They see a physical football player who will beat his opponent off the ball."

If the touchdown at the end of the first half didn't win it, then the one at the start of the second half did. The Prowlers punted four plays into the third quarter, but got the ball back when the Cloquet return was fumbled away at the Lumberjacks' 48-yard line.

Five plays later Almquist took an inside counter to the left and went 39 yards for a score.

It became 33-14 on the next Thief River Falls possession, a 6-play, 63-yard march that included three carries by Berg for 35 yards, one by Swanson for 13, and one by Anderson for 15 and a touchdown as he worked his way through a crowd on the left side with 4:35 remaining in the third quarter.

Final touchdown of the night came on a 27-yard Tom Sewell pass to Hagen with 2:25 to play. That pass, along with a 41-yard breakaway earlier in the quarter by Johnson, represented the only Cloquet offense of the second half.

"Cloquet did a few things to us offensively early," noted Mumm. "They spread things out and got some yards. But our kids adjusted and shut them down pretty well in the second half."

Tennis season continues for Heather Hanson, Eryn Clow...

Two Prowlers advance in 8AA

Thief River Falls' Heather Hanson and Eryn Clow extended their 2001 girls high school tennis season with top-four singles finishes at the individual portion of the North Sub-Section 8AA tournament Thursday on the Center Club Fitness courts in Grand Forks, N.D.

The second-seeded Hanson beat Liz Schulte of Brainerd, Randi Hoxie of Fergus Falls and Kim Lindblom of Fergus Falls to reach the finals of the 16-player field before losing to top-seeded Erin Sullivan of Bemidji.

Clow advanced with wins over Kaley Costin of Moorhead and Michelle Wien of Perham to clinch a Section 8AA tournament berth before losing to Sullivan in the semifinals. Lindblom then beat Clow in the third place match.

Neither of the Prowlers' doubles teams advanced in post-season play.

Third-seeded combination of Beth Padilla-Maggie Stock posted a first round win over Dominique Seifert-Reyna Reiwer of Perham, but lost in the quarterfinals to Chelsea Hendricks-Lindsay Skramstad of Alexandria.

A similar fate befell Kara Larson-Stacia Kalinoski, the second Thief River Falls doubles team. They beat Melissa Jones-Laurie Verant of Alexandria, then lost to second-seeded Megan Whalen-Megan Steiger of Brainerd in the quarterfinals.

Top-seeded Melissa Fogelson-Lindsey Folkert of Bemidji defeated Whalen-Steiger in the finals.

A day earlier, Thief River Falls was a runner-up finisher to Bemidji in the North Sub-Section 8AA team tournament.

Section 8AA team and individual tournament matches began Tuesday and will be completed today (Wednesday) at Elk River.

Bemidji, a 6-1 winner over Thief River Falls in the North Sub-Section team tournament finals last week, drew South Sub-Section 8AA winner St. Cloud Tech as an opponent in the state tournament-qualifying team title match that kicked off the Section 8AA competition.

Prowlers second in two standings

Heading into the 2001 regular season high school football finale tonight (Wednesday) at Hibbing, Thief River Falls finds itself sitting in second place in both the Super Sea Range Conference and the Section 8AAAA standings.

A victory over the Bluejackets would assure the Prowlers of at least holding onto those spots, and could, if combined with other results, propel them to the head of the class.

In the Super Sea Range Conference, first-year membership has been a learning experience for the Prowlers and their followers. The title will be based upon winning percentage, an area where a 6-1 Duluth Denfeld squad has a .857 to .833 edge over a 5-1 Thief River Falls team.

Denfeld finishes the regular season this week against inter-city rival Central. The Hunters edged the Prowlers 20-14 back on Sept. 7, but two weeks later they dropped a 35-12 decision to Duluth East – a team Thief River Falls beat in Week 3 by a 27-18 margin.

However, the Hunters' league advantage over the Prowlers isn't a result of their head-to-head meeting. Instead, it stems from Denfeld wins over Hermantown and Virginia, who, along with Greenway, International Falls, Crosby-Ironton, Two Harbors, and Eveleth/Gilbert, make up the Sea Range Conference.

Results of games involving teams from the two groups – the Super Sea Range and the Sea Range – count in each other's standings.

Meanwhile, the Section 8AAAA standings, determined by points of various amounts based both upon results and the classification of the opposition, show Detroit Lakes and Thief River Falls 1-2 after Week 7. But a Detroit Lakes loss at the hands of Rocori and a Thief River Falls win over Hibbing could reverse those positions.

Section 8AAAA playoffs start with Tuesday, Oct. 23, quarterfinals. With a seven-team field, the top seed will receive a first-round bye and move into the Saturday, Oct. 27, semifinals. Those games are all played at the site of the higher seeded teams. Championship game will be played Thursday, Nov. 1, at the Fargodome.

Playoff positions will be determined today (Wednesday) in a meeting of Section 8AAAA coaches at Wadena. With their new conference affiliation, the Prowlers did not face any Section 8AAAA teams this fall.

Sartell is the defending Section 8AAAA champion. A year ago, Thief River Falls opened the playoffs with a 20-13 win over Fergus Falls, but lost a 13-12 semifinal decision to Sauk Rapids.

Stephan Hahn (29) watched his extra-point kick sail through the rain towards the uprights following a Thief River Falls touchdown in Friday's high school homecoming football game against Cloquet. Robby Anderson was the holder on the play. Hahn is a foreign exchange student from Germany who has been doing all of the place kicking this fall for the 5-2 Prowlers.

Pioneers football team playing for second, playoffs

Hopes of repeating as the Northern Division champion evaporated for Northland Thursday in a 42-13 Minnesota Community College Conference loss to Vermilion. Both teams were 2-0 in division play heading into the showdown at Ely.

With the title all but conceded to the Ironmen, the Pioneers headed into the two-game, final week of the 2001 regular season trying to secure an MCCC state playoff berth as the Northern Division runner-up.

Northland took a 3-4 overall record into a 7 p.m. Tuesday home finale against Rainy River at the Multi-Events Center. The Pioneers will be right back at it Saturday with a 1:30 p.m. game at Itasca that completes the schedule.

Vermilion jumped out to a 14-0 first quarter lead, doubled that for a 28-0 halftime cushion, and maintained a 35-7 third quarter spread.

"We were dropping balls," said Northland coach Guy Finstrom. "Our passing game didn't come through for us. We weren't making catches we normally make."

Northland touchdowns came on a 5-yard run by Steve Crummy and a 20-yard run by Maurice Johnson.

"We moved the ball," explained Finstrom. "We had 22 first downs – that should have won the game. But we couldn't finish. We were inside their 20 twice in the first half and didn't score."

State playoff semifinals will take place Saturday, Oct. 27, at the site of the Northern and Southern Division winners.

Following blockers, Thief River Falls halfback Trent Christansen (34) went through the middle of the Cloquet defense for a 16-yard gain on this first quarter carry in the Prowlers' homecoming football game Friday at the Multi-Events Center. Thief River Falls won 33-20.

MCCC Northern Division volleyball...

Northland sweeps Spartans for third

Monday, Northland swept Fergus Falls, the last place team in the Minnesota Community College Conference Northern Division volleyball standings. Tonight (Wednesday) the Pioneers' task becomes a little tougher as they close out the 2001 regular season schedule by hosting first place Central Lakes. Match time is 6:30 p.m.

Northland had earlier guaranteed itself of a top-four Northern Division finish and an MCCC state tournament berth. The 30-23, 30-14, 30-14 win over the Spartans clinched the No. 3 spot. Tonight, the Pioneers can play the role of spoiler. A win over the Raiders would drop the Brainerd team to second in the Northern Division and give Rainy River the title.

"We started off slow, but once we got going, we were pretty dominating," said Northland coach Mike Zachow after the win over Fergus Falls pushed the Pioneers to 18-7 for the year and 9-4 in the Northern Division.

Zachow said middle hitter Kylie Rogalla had an attention-grabbing performance, and he was quick to cite the play of outside hitters Becky Bray, Mandy Caspers and Amanda Spong.

Fumbles cost RLCC in 32-18 Friday loss

Red Lake County Central fumbled nine times, and lost six of them, in a 32-18 high school football loss at Waubun Friday.

The Bombers turned the Mustangs' mistakes into a 26-0 lead – more than enough to weather a second half comeback by the visitors.

Red Lake County Central collected 398 yards worth of offense in the rain, but couldn't turn those numbers into touchdowns because of the fumbles.

"Before we knew what happened, we were down 20-0," reported Red Lake County Central coach Gary Brantl. "We would turn the ball over, and they would score."

Adam Koralewski carried the ball 22 times for 183 yards and two touchdowns to lead the Mustangs' offense. He also had a pair of pass receptions for 47 yards.

Also playing key roles in the Red Lake County Central attack were Mitch Rystad, who rushed for 57 yards on 17 carries; Carl Dugstad who was 8-for-7 passing for 118 yards and a touchdown; and Ryan Paradis, who caught 6 passes for 71 yards and a touchdown.

"We had a pretty good night offensively," noted Brantl. "Give our kids credit. They battled the whole night. Down 20-0 early was reason enough to fold it up, but they didn't. They hung in there."

Jesse Lhotka, a 1,000-yard rusher this fall for the Bombers, scored on runs of 17, 5 and 62 yards. "He's a good back," acknowledged Brantl.

Defensively, Koralewski and Thor Vettleson were both in on 9 tackles; Paradis and Wade Longtin were both in on 8 stops; while Dugstad was involved in 7 tackles.

The loss dropped the Mustangs to 2-5 heading into the regular season finale Tuesday against Win-E-Mac.

RLF rally overtakes B/G-MR lead, 22-15

Red Lake Falls scored 16 unanswered fourth quarter points Friday to beat Badger/Greenbush-Middle River 22-15 in high school football.

The visiting Gators led 7-6 at halftime and had a 15-6 lead through three quarters, but wound up losing for the sixth time in seven starts.

Badger/Greenbush-Middle River had some success running the ball against the Red Lake Falls defense, with a 280-yard night on the ground led by two runners who gained over 100 yards – Ben Huener with 124 yards on 22 carries and Dane Hanson with 114 yards on 20 attempts.

A second quarter Hanson touchdown run from a yard out and Jeremiah Kern's extra-point kick provided the Gators with their halftime edge.

Kyle Kjos caught a 26-yard touchdown pass from Jason Smith – the Gators' only completion of the night – and Hanson scored on a two-point conversion run for the nine-point third quarter advantage.

The three Red Lake Falls touchdowns all came from long range. Cory Cardinal scored on runs of 38 and 44 yards, while Dusty Arlt and Jesse Gagner hooked up on a 40-yard scoring strike.

In addition to their offensive efforts, Huener came up with an interception he returned 43 yards; Kjos averaged 42 yards on 3 punts; and Kern was named as the Gators' Defensive Player of the Week by the coaching staff.

Badger/Greenbush-Middle River closes out the regular season tonight (Wednesday) against Warren-Alvarado-Oslo.

NCTC program given academic recognition

■ Northland women's basketball

School personnel at Northland Community and Technical College were informed recently that for the third straight year the women's basketball team at the two-year Thief River Falls school has received national academic honors.

The Women's Basketball Coaches Association annually ranks the nation's junior and community college basketball teams in a Top 25 Academic list, based upon grade-point averages. The figures are released after all institutions finalize grading for the previous year.

Northland's 3.364 GPA in 2000-01 ranked the Pioneers fifth on the national charts. It was a climb of four spots over their 1999-2000 ranking.

Topping the latest list was Seward County Community College of Liberal, Kan., with a 3.661 GPA.

"Our consistent achievement as an academic team shows the quality of education and the caliber of student athletes at Northland," said Mike Zachow, Pioneers head women's basketball coach and the school's current interim athletic director.

The 2000-01 Northland women's basketball roster included sophomores Nicole Nordin, Lancaster; and Andrea Remick, Red Lake Falls; and freshmen Tumi Johnson, Fosston; Nicole Wiseth and Beth Olson, Thief River Falls; Amy Metzgar, Hoople, N.D.; Jacqui Karl, Waubun; Destany Graham, Frazee; Misten Hoie, Bagley; and Candice Solie, Fertile.

A carry by Thief River Falls quarterback Robby Anderson went for 12 yards before Cloquet defenders came up to stop the quarterback keeper during Friday's high school football match-up. The Prowlers beat the Lumberjacks 33-20.

Pioneers second at CanAm tournament

Rainy River has Northland's number this fall. The two Minnesota Community College Conference rivals have met five times on the volleyball court, and the Voyageurs have won each time out, including two victories at the CanAm Invitational Friday and Saturday hosted by Providence College in Otterburne, Man.

The four-team event began with a Friday round-robin schedule when Northland went 2-0 by beating Providence 25-15, 25-11 and Trinity from Ellendale, N.D. 25-12, 25-9, but lost to Rainy River in similar 2-0 fashion, 25-18, 25-17.

In Saturday's trophy bracket play, first-day results were repeated as the Pioneers defeated Providence 26-24, 25-9, 25-9, then lost to Rainy River in the finals, this time by frustratingly close 25-23, 25-23, 25-19 scores.

"The tournament went fairly well for us," reported Northland coach Mike Zachow. "It would have been nice to beat Rainy River, but we played pretty well, and we had a lot of fun."

MCC volleyball team third at Warroad

Marshall County Central finished third at the Warroad Invitational high school volleyball tournament Saturday, and in the process nearly doubled its victory total of the 2001 season.

The Nordics, who began the day 4-15, lost to Kittson Central 2-0, but defeated Badger/Greenbush-Middle River 2-1 and swept the Warroad junior varsity 2-0 in the pool play portion of the tournament.

Those results put Marshall County Central in the third place match against Chisholm, an encounter won by the Nordics 2-1.

"We really needed a win," said Marshall County Central. "It's been a long time. We've been struggling lately. The kids were getting down on themselves."

During the tournament, Jorgenson said sophomore Jordan Holthusen became an offensive force in the middle, and senior Amanda Maurstad came off the bench to fill a key role at the service line.

Section 8AA boys and girls high school cross country championships will be held Thursday, Oct. 25, over the Pine Beach East Golf Course at Madden's Resort on Gull Lake, north of Brainerd.

The girls 4,000 meter race starts at 3:30 p.m., followed by the boys 5,000 meter race at 4:15.

Mustangs beat Bears

It was a sweep, but it wasn't easy. Red Lake County Central improved its record to 17-5 Monday with a 15-9, 16-14, 15-12 high school volleyball win over host Clearbrook-Gonvick.

"It was pretty sluggish volleyball on both sides," admitted Red Lake County Central coach Nancy Bray. "It was a Monday match – we weren't quite in it."

The Mustangs were breezing with a 10-2 second-game lead before the Bears rallied to tie it at 14-14 and force an extension.

Game 3 was a back-and-forth affair that was tied at 11-11 before the Mustangs took control down the stretch thanks in part to 94 percent serving.

Red Lake County Central was scheduled to play a make-up match at Warren-Alvarado-Oslo Tuesday to finish the regular season.

DNR responds to petitions

Minnesota Department of Natural Resources has issued formal responses to two petitions seeking environmental review of Off Highway Vehicle (OHV) Trail System Plans for northwestern and northeastern Minnesota. The petitions were filed with the state's Environmental Quality Board (EQB).

In a formal response to the petitioners, the DNR has agreed to environmental review for some specific projects, but dismisses the request for an Environmental Assessment Worksheet for the entire planning process.

Such a broad request for environmental review is not provided for under Minnesota law. Environmental Assessment Worksheets (EAW), as called for in the petitions, are to be done on specific projects, not agency plans.

The DNR determined that three projects in northwestern counties are exempt from an EAW. Two of those projects have already been completed and have been in use for five to six years. The other is an enhancement of an existing trail that has been in use for more than 20 years.

One project in northeastern Minnesota, the Moose Walk/Moose Run Trail will be subject to an EAW, as required under state law. The DNR found that a second project will not require an EAW because there is no evidence of significant environmental impact.

The DNR will hold both petitions for a year, as they pertain to 35 projects in northeastern Minnesota and 19 in northwestern Minnesota. The DNR agrees that if any of those projects are proposed for implementation during that time, a determination will be made on the need for an EAW.

Dennis Asmussen, director of the DNR Trails and Waterways Division, acknowledged the environmental concerns. "Of course, we should have environmental review," Asmussen said. "Our trails planning is done with input from many different DNR disciplines, as well as extensive public comment. We always strive to minimize environmental impact."

Duck season opens with a bang

Opening week of this year's duck season was considerably better than the past few years, but much work remains to be done to restore and improve fall migration waterfowl habitats in the state, according to Tim Bremicker, Wildlife Division director for the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources.

"Minnesota remains a premier waterfowl state. We traditionally have more waterfowl hunters than any other state in the nation, but we have lost ground within the Mississippi Flyway and nationally," Bremicker said. "Even as our locally breeding ducks and continental duck populations were increasing, Minnesota saw declining fall use of wetlands and lakes that traditionally provided excellent hunting."

Wildlife managers and conservation officers report that the opener was good in many areas of Minnesota and fair in others, with some hunters having excellent success. Reports of two to three ducks per hunter were common, although the average was closer to one duck per hunter in some areas. Blue-winged teal were common in many areas and contributed significantly to early season success. Blue-winged teal are usually the earliest species to migrate. In some years teal are largely absent from many areas by the time Minnesota's season opens. In addition to blue-winged teal, the leading duck species harvested by hunters who were bag-checked opening weekend were mallards, wood ducks and, in the north, ring-necked ducks.

There was also movement of Canada geese, even with the mild weather the opening weekend, including many reports of small migrant Canada geese in the state over opening weekend. Typically, duck hunting slows for a few weeks following the opening weekend, but as cold fronts move through the state, they will likely bring in some new birds.

"While the relative abundance of ducks early in the season this year is encouraging, we have a lot of work ahead of us to turn things around over the long term," Bremicker said. "The DNR will need the help of private conservation groups, other agencies, landowners, interested citizens and policy makers who want to make a difference to improve waterfowl habitats and improve resting and staging areas to restore Minnesota's waterfowl pre-eminence."

The DNR, with the help of a number of conservation organizations, recently finalized a two-year action plan, "The Challenge to Restore Minnesota's Wetland and Waterfowl Hunting Heritage," as the first stage of a long-term plan to restore and improve degraded habitats, provide fall refuge and security areas, and improve waterfowl hunter satisfaction.

For the latest waterfowl migration reports and to see details of the two-year action plan to begin to restore Minnesota's wetland and waterfowl hunting heritage, check the waterfowl hunting area of the DNR Web site at www.dnr.state.mn.us.

Canvasback season is open Oct. 13 to Nov. 1

Department of Natural Resources wildlife officials remind duck hunters that the canvasback "season within a season" opened for 20 days beginning Saturday, Oct. 13, and closes at the end of shooting hours Thursday, Nov. 1.

"The federal framework limited states in the Mississippi Flyway to no more than 20 days of hunting for canvasbacks because populations of this large diving duck have declined in recent years," said Ed Boggess, assistant director of the DNR Wildlife Division. "Minnesota selected an open season from Oct. 13 to Nov. 1 to minimize harvest of local Minnesota canvasbacks, which are taken at a disproportionately high rate early in the season, and to time the season when migrant canvasbacks are most common in the state."

Because the period from Oct. 13 to Nov. 1 is the only time canvasbacks may legally be taken, it is even more important than usual that hunters take care in identifying ducks before they shoot, Boggess said. The Minnesota Waterfowl Hunting Regulations Supplement contains information on how to distinguish canvasbacks from similar species. While canvasbacks may be found anywhere in Minnesota, hunters are most likely to encounter them in the state's western half and in the Mississippi River pools and backwaters in southeastern Minnesota.

Wildlife Research Center will sponsor 2001 MDHA deer tag strap program

A recent news release announced that deer tag straps would be available only to Minnesota Deer Hunters Association members through the fall issue of the group's Whitetales magazine. However, Wildlife Research Center, a scent and scent eliminator products company located in Anoka, has provided a sizeable contribution making it possible for the MDHA to distribute the straps to more of the state's 450,000 deer hunters.

Thanks to the sponsorship, tens of thousands more tags will be produced and distributed through retail locations where MDHA Hides For Habitat drop boxes are located.

"Besides being a wonderful tool for deer hunters to use when tagging harvested deer, we hope that distributing the extra deer tag straps at Hides For Habitat drop box locations will encourage hunters to donate harvested hides," says Wildlife Research Center Co-Founder/Co-Owner John Burgeson. "This sponsorship gives our company an opportunity to help deer hunters and ultimately help deer through promoting Hides for Habitat."

Last year deer hides donated to the Hides for Habitat program generated over $171,000 for habitat acquisition and rehabilitation benefiting nearly every game species in Minnesota. With the fur market sagging, MDHA expects lower prices this fall but also more hides to be donated.

"I can't thank Wildlife Research Center enough," said MDHA Executive Director Mark Johnson. "For years Wildlife Research has generously supported MDHA, including 2001 being the second consecutive year of sponsoring the Hides for Habitat billboard campaign. This extra gift is really appreciated and will make many deer hunters very happy."

Starting approximately Oct. 20, straps will be distributed statewide to retail locations where the orange MDHA Hides For Habitat drop boxes are located. Due to limited quantities, not all 450,000 Minnesota deer hunters will get a strap.

To locate the hide drop location nearest you, log onto the MDHA website at www.MnDeerHunters.com<http://www.MnDeerHunters.com>), or call the MDHA state office at 800-450-DEER.

Recreational motor vehicles...

Drivers should know the rules

Popularity of recreational motor vehicles (RMVs) has skyrocketed in recent years. Off-road vehicles (ORV), all-terrain vehicles (ATV) and off-highway motorcycles (OHM) have become common equipment for many hunters across the nation. But as popular as they have become, RMVs can either be a useful tool or ruin the hunting experience and damage natural resources, according to the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources.

An RMV is any motorized, wheeled or tracked vehicle that is designated for use off of a public roadway. They generally are used to transport persons for recreational purposes. RMVs provide greater access to areas previously accessible only to walking hunters. They also may make carrying out game easier. But overuse and inappropriate use can negatively impact public lands, big game and the overall hunting experience.

Hunters who plan to use RMVs this fall need to be aware of regulations that govern their use, according to the DNR. It is illegal for hunters to carry a firearm on any recreational motor vehicle unless it is unloaded and completely enclosed in a case. Bows must be unstrung or enclosed in a case. Special restrictions or prohibitions on RMVs apply on various types of public lands, including wildlife management areas, scientific and natural areas, state parks, and state and national forests.

In most instances, RMVs must be registered with the DNR. An individual must be at least 18 years old to register a recreational motor vehicle. Registration is valid for up to three years. Anyone who sells a recreational motor vehicle must provide a bill of sale to the buyer.

It is illegal to use a motor vehicle, motorcycle, all-terrain vehicle or snowmobile to chase, run over or kill wildlife. A permit to shoot from a standing recreational motor vehicle may be issued to a licensed hunter who has a permanent physical disability that is more substantial than discomfort from walking.

"Being a responsible RMV user goes further than just following the laws," according to Capt. Jeff Thielen, DNR Enforcement Education Program coordinator. "There is an ethic to RMV use that hunters should follow.

"Hunters on RMVs should keep in mind the impact of RMVs on other hunters," Thielen said. "In most cases it comes down to using common sense."

Thielen said riders can follow some simple guidelines to minimize the effect of RMVs on sensitive areas:

1. Know and follow the RMV regulations for the area in which you are hunting.
2. Stay on designated trails and roads.
3. Be courteous and pull to the trail side and shut off your engine to let horses pass so the animals won't be spooked.
4. Wear blaze orange, a helmet and other safety gear while riding an ATV or OHM.
5. Properly tag deer, elk, moose or bears before using a RMV to remove them from the site of a kill. Licensed firearms deer hunters may operate ATVs and snowmobiles before legal shooting time (one-half hour prior to sunrise), from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m., and after legal shooting hours (one-half hour after sunset).
6. Don't trespass on posted lands; always ask first.
7. Don't scout for or track game from an OHV.
8. Don't scare game when someone else is stalking or is on a stand.
9. Don't take shortcuts or create new trails.
10. Don't disturb livestock with RMVs.

Minnesota pheasant season is under way

With pheasant hunting in Minnesota now open, the Department of Natural Resources has some last-minute information and advice for pheasant hunters.

"Even though ring-necked pheasant roadside counts were down 50 percent from last year," said DNR Wildlife Division Director Tim Bremicker, "hunters should still be able to find good numbers of roosters in areas with a good mix of nesting and winter habitats."

Generally the better prospects are in areas with good winter cover where pheasants were better able to withstand last year's long winter with deep snows, Bremicker said.

Habitat conditions remain poor for grassland wildlife throughout most of Minnesota's pheasant range due to intensive farming and a 33 percent decline in Conservation Reserve Program acres in the pheasant range, down from the peak of 1.2 million acres in the early 1990s. Only 3 percent of the farmland landscape in Minnesota is enrolled in conservation programs.

Hunting Outlook

Most severe pheasant population declines were in southern and west-central Minnesota, where winter cover is more sparse. Counts in east-central and central Minnesota remained above average. Despite the statewide decline, fair numbers of birds should still be found in portions of east-central, southwest and central Minnesota, according to the DNR. By scouting around, hunters should still be able to find a few local hot spots in other regions.

While the cold, wet spring definitely reduced production of pheasants in the main part of the nesting season, it is still unknown how the hot, dry conditions in late June and July affected late hatched birds. Those conditions were excellent for pheasant brood-rearing and renesting. Pheasants are persistent renesters if initial nest attempts fail and hens are in good condition. Young, late-hatched broods are undercounted in roadside surveys, so DNR wildlife managers won't have a good indication of the strength of the late hatch until reports start coming in from hunters.

The DNR estimates that pheasant hunting prospects should be similar to, or slightly better than, those in 1997 following the last severe winter, when hunters harvested about 250,000 roosters. For more detail on the August counts and a map of general hunting prospects, check pheasant hunting information on the DNR Web site at www.dnr.state.mn.us.

Always Ask First

The DNR reminds hunters that there is one sure way to have an enjoyable pheasant hunt on private land and avoid problems associated with trespassing: "Always Ask First."

Wayne Edgerton, the DNR's agricultural policy director, said the trespass law in Minnesota has been changed this year, so pheasant hunters or other outdoor recreationists could find themselves in trouble if they do not familiarize themselves with the change.

"Basically, the change this year from previous years is in the interpretation of what is considered agricultural land as it pertains to the trespass law," Edgerton said.

As noted on page 12 of the 2001 Minnesota Hunting and Trapping Regulations handbook, all planted grassland and hayland and other woody plants that are harvested for their fiber within 15 years of planting meet this definition, including grasslands enrolled in the federal Conservation Reserve Program, Conservation Reserve Enhancement Program, or the state Reinvest in Minnesota Reserve program. As always, any land that is plowed or tilled, has standing crops or crop residues, or that is fenced to enclose domestic livestock is also defined as agricultural land.

These lands do not need to be posted to prevent unauthorized trespass. However, land that is covered by brush or trees, including CRP, CREP and RIM Reserve land that has brush or trees (except short-rotation woody crops as defined above), does not meet this definition and must be posted or verbal notice given to trespassers before enforcement action can be taken.

"Trespass is the biggest problem landowners have with hunters," Edgerton said. "It is critical for hunters to have good relationships with landowners, especially because more than 95 percent of the land in the pheasant range is privately owned."

Information about the trespass law can also be found on the DNR Web site at www.dnr.state.mn.us.

The Lions Club of Thief River Falls recently donated $1,000 to the Thief River Falls Public Library. Funds raised from a pancake breakfast fundraiser held on Sunday, October 7, were more than matched by the membership. This donation will be used to enhance the section of the library dedicated to assisting individuals with visual impairments. Lions Club President Mike Melby presented the donation to Heidi Hoks of the public library.

Crossroads Displaced Homemakers program holds annual meeting

Crossroads Displaced Homemakers Program board of directors held its annual meeting at noon on September 6 at the Evergreen Eating Emporium in Thief River Falls.

Outgoing board members Shannon Olson, Linda J. Johnson and Kate Schmalenberg were recognized for their service to the program, and incoming board members Claudia Barton, Gary Hutchinson and Dean Bernard were introduced.

Crossroads Director Sue Dupree presented the annual report, and the guest speaker, a former displaced homemaker, discussed how she overcame a family tragedy five years ago. With the help of Crossroads and others, she was able to get training and is now successfully employed in a non-traditional career.

Crossroads is a private, non-profit program dedicated to helping persons in transition. Its office is located in the Qwest building on 4th Street and LaBree Avenue. Crossroads has served persons in transition who are looking for meaningful employment since 1984. The program is funded by grants from the Minnesota Department of Economic Security, United Way, donations and foundation grants.

Currently, Crossroads is offering a workshop series entitled, "Keys to Unlock Your Future," on Thursdays from 10 a.m. to noon and 5:30 to 7:30 p.m. Displaced homemakers who could benefit from the program are encouraged to call 681-8158 or 800-450-8158 for more information or to register.

Beadwork to be exhibited at Bemidji State University Talley Gallery

The Native American beadwork of Marcie McIntire will be showcased in an exhibition entitled "The Foliate Design Spectrum of Anishinabe Beadwork" from October 30 through November 17 in the Talley Gallery at Bemidji State University.

Located in the Education-Art building, the barrier-free gallery is open at no charge from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Thursday and from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Friday and Saturday.

An opening reception for the artist will take place on Tuesday, October 30, from 3 to 4:30 p.m. with a gallery talk presented by McIntire.

A member of the Grand Portage Chippewa Tribe, McIntire has spent many years studying the floral and geometric designs of this Ojibwe art form. She is recognized across the region as an accomplished artist bringing traditional and contemporary beadwork techniques and designs together.

"Beadwork is an important part of our Ojibwe culture," McIntire says," because it is frequently used to decorate attire and many household items. Our dance outfits consist of beaded garments and accessories, constructed in a variety of techniques."

For 37 years, McIntire has fabricated beadwork, applique, ribbon work, clothing and baskets. Her skills in beadwork and sewing are self taught, and much of her technique comes from watching her mother while growing up on the reservation near Grand Portage.

"Beadwork has been an important art form in my life, because it was widely practiced at Grand Portage. Many of my relatives have done beadwork from time to time," said McIntire. "The production and sale of my work was encouraged by my grandmother who learned the art of beadwork from her grandmother."

INTRODUCING A TRULY EFFICIENT FURNACE
During these times of high energy costs, it makes sense to use a heat source that uses a cost effective and readily available heat source. The Cozy Cornburner heat furnace burns shelled corn. Corn costs less per BTU than other heat sources, plus generates business for farmers. The low cost of shelled corn, together with the efficient burning process of these furnaces & boilers, produces an economical, ecologically safe home heating system.

BURNS CLEAN - NO MORE CREOSOTE
The Cozy Cornburner furnace or boiler feeds corn into the bottom of the combustion chamber, therefore providing the most efficient fuel consumption. The residual ashes (clinkers) are then spilled over the top of the combustion ring into the ash pan. In effect, this self cleans the combustion chamber.

THE FIRST UL LISTED
The Cozy Cornburner furnace & boiler are the first UL listed corn fired central furnaces to be listed by UL. [illegible]

SAFE, COMFORTABLE HEAT
Your home's thermostat controls the fuel feed system to provide a constant temperature. The furnace or boiler will remain lit as long as the bin contains corn, and shuts down automatically if the fuel supply is depleted. The low stack temperature and absence of creosote buildup eliminates the possibility of chimney fire.

A BETTER ALTERNATIVE
The corn burning furnace has many advantages over wood heat. The large storage bin holds up to 10 days supply of fuel, which is fed into the combustion chamber as needed. There's no need to load the furnace or boiler several times a day. The use of corn also eliminates the bark mess, insects, splinters, and storage and handling problems connected with wood fuel.

QUALITY CONSTRUCTION
The Cozy Cornburner furnace and boiler feature quality construction for long lasting performance. A one year warranty is included on parts and a five year limited warranty on the burner and heat exchanger.

OK, the strike is over, so now what?

Monday, I went to work with a smile on my face. I was happy, not because of anything I had done, but because the statewide strike of AFSCME Council 6 and MAPE union members was over — for now at least.

According to an AFSCME Council 6 news release, the agreement came at 2 a.m. on Sunday, October 14, at the conclusion of a marathon round of negotiations.

News releases from AFSCME and MAPE said officials were pleased that an apparent agreement had been reached and the strike is over.

For the record, AFSCME reported that the details of the agreement included a 3.5 percent across the board increase effective July 1, 2001, and another 3.5 percent across the board increase effective July 1, 2002. MAPE reported a 3 percent, across-the-board raise of 3 percent, retroactive to July 1, 2001, and a 3 percent, across the board increase effective July 1, 2002. In addition, both reported agreement on numerous minor details, and significant improvements in health insurance benefits.

For now, at least, the strike is over. I remain unconvinced that this agreement won't lead to another strike in a couple of years. I say that because it doesn't seem that anyone is exactly pleased with the result. In AP stories, leaders were quoted saying that they'd hope for more, but decided to end the strike because, "holding out for more likely wouldn't have yielded enough to make it worthwhile."

Additionally, many workers, even local union members, are returning to a hostile work environment. Some employees found unsympathetic bosses, and in other instances, union members crossed the picket line. There are a lot of hard feelings right now, and this doesn't bode well for the future or the public.

Governor Ventura's threat to reduce the work force to pay for the concessions to striking employees does not bode well for the future either. I think that if this happens, union members will have to believe that if they're going to get laid off in the future, then it's much more worthwhile to hold out for more and really make them pay.

For the moment, I'm pleased that the strike is over. I'm pleased because for residents living in a "small community" like Thief River Falls, the issues seem far removed, and a strike like this, pits neighbor against neighbor, friend against friend. I think the "combatants" here, with a few exceptions, are generally ill-equipped to conduct the kind of public-relations battle that striking employees in urban Minnesota can conduct. It's also a frustrating battle that changes minute by minute, and northwestern Minnesota is rarely kept up-to-date on a minute by minute basis. In addition, I think that a majority of people in northwestern Minnesota would rather address work-related issues face-to-face, and not in a public forum.

Yes, I'm happy the strike is over, but I wouldn't be a bit surprised if the same issues surface two years from now.

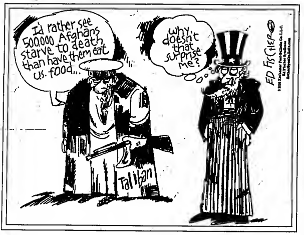
Every journey begins with the first step

Light Up the Night allows many to take important steps in life

Cancer is one of those things in our lives which leaves those of us not facing the disease with a feeling of helplessness, especially when it affects a relative or close friend.

There are things we can and should do. Learning more about cancer and preventutive measures often satisfies our curiosity and assuages our grief. Cash donations to charitable organizations that provide funds for education and research can leave us feeling like we've done something to help; but still, we're often left with a feeling that there is more we should be able to do.

Gail Holland, Northwest Medical Center and several other dedicated volunteers selflessly dedicated their efforts to providing many local citizens with an opportunity do something for themselves that helps in the healing process. In the process, it allowed participants to do something that demonstrates their support for people who have fought, and continue to fight the battle against cancer. The Light Up the Night Walk, which is not a fundraising event, successfully provided more than 160 local citizens an opportunity to celebrate survivorship, as well as an opportunity to honor those who have fought against cancer. Thus, this event allowed many to take an important step forward in recognizing and understanding the impact cancer has had on their lives.



I'd rather see 500,000 Afghans starve to death than have them eat U.S. food...
Why doesn't that surprise me?

Inadequate funding triggers levies

by Sen. Roger Moe

If the school district where you live is offering an operating levy referendum on the ballot this fall, you and your neighbors are not alone. Many schools throughout the state are seeking the support of local voters.

An unprecedented number of Minnesota school districts are asking voters to pass education levy referenda this fall. In fact, 179 school districts are opting for this funding source - more than twice the previous high of 78 school districts in 1997 - and the first time in state history that a majority of school districts are seeking operating levies at the same time.

In our part of the state, 13 school districts are seeking operating levies this fall. In Thief River Falls, a local contribution of $81,150 will yield a total of $436,721, which includes $130,790 in equity aid and $224,781 in state aid.

Schools across the state are faced with potential teacher and staff cuts, increased class sizes, fewer curricula choices, transportation problems, and higher fees for student participation in programs that required only nominal fees in the past.

If local levy referenda are approved, property taxes may increase for homeowners. If they fail, the quality of public education in these school districts may be put in jeopardy. These are difficult choices for taxpayers.

In our part of the state, though, there is good news to report. Most of the school districts in Northwestern Minnesota are considered "property poor," so the vast majority of the operating levy dollars will come from state equalization aid. In fact, many districts will receive 80 percent, 90 percent, or even 95 percent of the new funding from state aid if the levy passes.

Frankly, the overall funding problem throughout the state stems from an inadequate state education budget requested by the Governor last session. His budget locked sufficient school funding to offset changes in the state's property tax system. Although the state took over the property tax portion of the base funding public schools rely on, a majority of school districts have concluded that the state takeover does not provide enough to meet basic educational needs.

The Minnesota Senate recognized the budget problem and demonstrated leadership by proposing an equitable, quality public education package funded at $386 million more than the Governor and $145 million more than House Republicans.

In the end, the state cut taxes by $2.26 for every $1 in new investments. Consequently, the Senate had to settle for a much-smaller education appropriation, satisfying demands from the Governor and Republicans who now must take responsibility for the unsustainable restructuring of the tax system. Ultimately, it is regrettable that so many school districts are forced to ask voters to help pay for basic school operating costs.

The current situation could have been avoided if the House Republicans and the Governor had agreed to put together a more-balanced budget approach that included adequate school funding and sustainable tax cuts. Unfortunately, this is likely only the beginning of difficult times ahead.

Rule of law is our strongest weapon

by Robert Hirshon
President
American Bar Association

As Americans move forward from the shocking events of September 11, we must develop actions that permit prompt and effective investigation and prosecution of those responsible for these heinous acts. Additionally, we must prepare ourselves for the possibility of war against those rogue nations that have aided and abetted the terrorists. But despite the special measures we will need to take to battle terrorism, we must remember that our strongest weapon against anarchy and human destruction continues to be the rule of law.

The terrorists who attacked our country would like nothing better than to destroy the fabric of our democracy. We cannot allow them to do that; we must keep our passions in check and remain firm against ethnic or religious scapegoating. The terrorists also seek to affect our daily lives by putting us in a state of fear so that we cannot conduct business as usual. We must fight these fears by maintaining control of our lives and by finding a new comfort zone of living.

We know that some things will not be as they were before the terrorists struck. Our leaders already have united to address such complex issues as electronic surveillance, wiretapping, computer encryption and immigration procedures. As a country, we need to be ready for inconveniences, restrictions and the possible loss of some liberties. We must make sacrifices to find and combat the zealots who respect neither law nor religion.

As Americans we share a common burden, a responsibility created by our citizenship. It is one for which lawyers are particularly prepared, and which we are ready to embrace.

To help this effort I have created the American Bar Association Task Force on Terrorism and the Law. The task force draws on a range of experts: a former general counsel of the Central Intelligence Agency and the National Security Agency; a retired brigadier general from the United States Army; and experts in the law of business, immigration, civil liberties, aviation, international affairs, technology, crime and civil liability. The task force already is analyzing congressional and Administration proposals, and is prepared to help find an appropriate balance between national security and individual liberty. The task force's work will form a thoughtful basis for recommendations to federal leaders on these critical matters.

We in the American Bar Association are confident that our nation can achieve this delicate balance, and preserve the principles that have allowed our country to thrive for more than 200 years. We stand ready to assist our leaders in efforts to eradicate terrorism and preserve the rule of law throughout the world.

MN Dept. of Ag is doing its part

by Gene Hugoson
Commissioner
MN Department of Agriculture

As the nation responds to the horrific terrorist attacks of September 11, the Minnesota Department of Agriculture is doing its part.

We have no evidence that Minnesota's farms or agribusinesses have been directly targeted for terrorist activity. However, the Minnesota Department of Agriculture is taking precautions in close coordination with federal and state agencies to protect Minnesota and its citizens.

The MDA would play a role in response to any attack that involved agricultural chemicals or contamination of our food supply. We have highly trained staff ready to respond around the clock, and we can dispatch a response team to any part of the state within hours.

But our goal is to prevent problems before they happen. Our best ally in this effort is a watchful public. That's why we have put a lot of energy into getting the word out about what private citizens and businesses can do to increase security.

Since the integrity of our food supply is essential, one of the first steps we took after the attack was to advise food and dairy processing facilities around the state to raise their level of security. This includes limiting access to sensitive areas of the facilities, and reporting suspicious activity to law enforcement authorities. we followed this up with a letter containing some specific security recommendations. Similar contacts have been made with the state's retail grocers.

Given the potential harm that could come from intentional misuse of agricultural chemicals, we have also issued preventive recommendations to our ag chemical industry.

There has been a lot of talk about the threat of terrorists using crop dusting airplanes to spread chemical or biological agents. To ensure that aerial applicators are taking steps to prevent tampering or theft of their equipment, we sent all 195 of Minnesota's aerial applicators a letter containing tips on how to prevent terrorist activities related to pesticides and fertilizers. Federal authorities and the MDA have also had ongoing communication with the Minnesota Arial Applicators Association.

We have contacted anhydrous ammonia terminals around the state to check on security measures. Fortunately these facilities already boosted security because of the rise in anhydrous ammonia theft associated with production of the illegal drug methamphetamine.

Also in the last few weeks, 800 restricted use pesticide dealers and 85 structural pest control applicators around the state received letters from the Ag Department containing trips on how to prevent terrorist activities related to pesticides and fertilizers. This letter also went to a number of farm organizations, including Farm Bureau and the Farmers Union, for dissemination to members.

In all our communication, we ask that people immediately report suspicious activity or threats to local law enforcement agencies and to the Minnesota Duty Officer at 1-800-422-0798. With your help, we can defeat terrorism and make America a safer place to live and work.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Don't join Citizens for Smoke Free Air

To the Editor:

The communities of Marshall and Pennington counties have the opportunity to raise the standards for healthy debate in northwest Minnesota. I would like to suggest to your readers that they reconsider their current beliefs and opinions about secondhand smoke.

Here are some articles they may not have read:

I would like to suggest that we all take a closer look at what we, as a community, can do to protect ourselves from another group using clouded facts to confuse the issue of individual rights and discrimination with the myths of public health concerns.

It is only in the name of science and reason that I urge you to take a stand and let Citizens For Smoke Free Air know that, faced with the facts, they should think twice about forcing their dislikes on the citizens of northwest Minnesota.

"Facts are meaningless. You can use facts to prove anything that's remotely true! Facts, schmocks."

Following that, the Sportsmen's store, now located in the Hartz building, will be moved to the location vacated by the cafe. This will provide more room for the Sportsmen's store, they say, and will permit carrying more complete lines of sporting goods and athletic equipment.

'As was announced last week, Hall's Flower Shop will be moved to quarters now occupied by the Larson company, following the removal next week of the Larson Company to the location formerly occupied by the B & W Food Market.'

Penny Drive Nets Many Coins Here

'Thief River Falls citizens have made an excellent response to the recent appeal of Nellie Tayloe Ross, director of the U. S. Mint, to turn in to the banks all pennies in their possession to relieve the acute national shortage of the coins, local bankers reported. Tellers have been busily engaged in counting pennies during the past week."

Gideon Speaker Here Sunday At High School Auditorium

The origin of the fire is unknown.

"There was no freight train run yesterday along this line and there has been a good deal of 'cussing' in consequence. The train did not run, ostensibly for the reason that there was not enough business. Twelve loaded cars were waiting here to be moved down the line and if Thief River Falls and Red Lake Falls had anything at all there should be enough freight to pay expenses, easy.

"J. J. Soll, Martin Bjerk and Louis DeCathelineau formed a hunting party on Saturday morning and spent two days camping out in the duck pastures close to the reservation line east. They had pretty fair luck and bagged about 30 fine ducks and also a number of jack snipe and other toothsome members of the feathered tribe. They returned home Monday morning in a pretty much water-soaked condition and have been telling queer stories about holding down a tent in a heavy rain storm.'

Ditching Commenced.

"The work of construction on the new ditches throughout the county has been commenced. For several days past crews have been at work constructing camps and making other necessary preparations, but the work of construction did not begin in this vicinity until yesterday when Scribner Bros. broke ground on the ditch known as Wyandotte No. 1.

"Since the letting of the contracts by the county board several changes for the Black River and River Falls ditch have issued from M. W. Barnard of Moorhead, to whom it was awarded. Scribner Bros. will construct the Wyandotte No. 1 ditch, for which the contract was awarded to S. A. Swanson and Anton Anderson.

"Work on the Black River and River Falls ditch No. 2 will be commenced at once and will be done by M. W. Barnard who secured the contract, assisted by Dan Linnehan of Red Lake Falls."

A Nineteenth Century Trick

"W. C. Smiley was here from Thief River Falls during the last days of last week, he having been invited down by Chas. Brink for a couple of days hunting. (You all know Charlie Brink, of course. If you don't, you ought to. He is worth knowing.)

"On Thursday afternoon a party of four was made up for a hunting trip, those composing it being the aforesaid W. C. Smiley and Chas. Brink with J. J. Soll and H. E. Ives. They started immediately after dinner and were guided by Charlie in a southeasterly direction for a few hours, he taking them to a place where he had seen several coveys of grouse and he assured them that no hunting had been done in that vicinity this year. About 5:30 p.m. the party came to a halt in the center of what seemed to be an interminable swamp. Charlie was the only one in the party that wasn't getting tired and hot.

"'Look here,' Smiley demanded, 'where did you see them grouse?'

"'Right here,' said Charlie.

"The others all exchanged looks and silence reigned for a minute or two. Finally Harry Ives gasped, 'When?'

"'Why, er, let's see,' said Charlie, 'Oh yes, it was in '95.'

"It was too late to take a proper revenge that evening, but the others are figuring out ways and means of letting Charlie know that we are living in a different century from that in which he saw those grouse, so to speak.'

THE PINE CUT

It Will Be Very Large This Winter.

"Logging operations in the pine woods during the coming winter will be as heavy as the various logging and lumbering companies are able to make them.

"The demand for pine lumber during the season has been so great that stocks are little larger than they were at the beginning of the sawing season and, by the time the mills are ready to commence work next spring, the assortment will be poorer that it was last spring. What the harvest of logs will be, will depend on a number of things.

"The scant supply of labor is bothering the loggers and promises to continue to handicap them during the coming months. Wages are high and yet the men do not respond. Harvest fields and railroad work have kept them busy and the latter will continue to keep many of them out of the camps for some weeks."

10 Steps To Help Your Child Say NO To DRUGS

Stop Them Before They Stop YOU!

Deadly As A Live Grenade! Don't Blow Your Future To Bits!

Your Mainline To The Morgue!

YOUR LIFE IS ON THE LINE.

1. Talk With Your Child About Alcohol And Other Drugs. You can help change ideas your child may have that "everybody drinks, smokes or uses other drugs."
2. Learn To Really Listen To Your Child. Your child is more likely to talk with you when you give verbal and nonverbal cues that show you are listening.
3. Help Your Child Feel Good About Himself Or Herself. Your child will feel good when you praise efforts, as well as accomplishments and when you correct by criticizing the action rather than the child.
4. Help Your Child Develop Strong Values. A strong value system can give your child the courage to say "NO" rather than listen to friends.
5. Be A Good Role Model Or Example. Your habits and attitudes may strongly influence your child's ideas about alcohol, tobacco and other drugs.
6. Help Your Child Deal With Peer Pressure. A child who has been taught to be gentle and loving may need your "permission" to say "NO" to negative peer pressure.
7. Make Family Rules. It's helpful when you make specific family rules about your child not using alcohol or other drugs or smoking cigarettes. And it's helpful to tell your child the punishment for using them.
8. Encourage Healthy, Creative Activities. Hobbies, school events, and other activities may prevent your child from using alcohol, tobacco, or other drugs out of boredom.
9. Team Up With Other Parents. You can join other parents in support groups that will reinforce the guidance you provide at home.
10. Know What To Do if You Suspect A Problem. You can learn to recognize the telltale signs of alcohol, tobacco and other drug use and get help.

The Times donates to Salvation Army relief effort

Thief River Falls Publisher John Mattson presented Salvation Army Representative Dave Carlson with a check for $1,213.05. The funds for the donation were raised through a special promotion at The Times/Northern Watch and the money will be used by the Salvation Army for disaster relief in New York and Washington, D.C. Mattson explained that through the promotion, The Times/Northern Watch agreed to donate 5 percent of all proceeds from advertisements that were 10-column inches or larger in five publications to the relief effort.

Thief River Falls Times and Northern Watch recently joined a long list of individuals, organizations and businesses contributing to the relief efforts in New York and Washington, D.C. Through a special advertising promotion, The Times/Northern Watch donated five percent of all proceeds from advertisements that were 10-column inches or larger. The total amount, which was recently presented to the Salvation Army, amounted to $1,213.05.

The Times/Northern Watch Publisher John Mattson said he and the employees at The Times and Northern Watch felt it was important, even in this economically difficult period, to do something to help the people in New York and Washington, D.C. "Like many other main street small businesses across the nation, we felt we needed to do something to help," said Mattson.

Mattson noted that, while the terrorists who committed these terrible acts intended to break the American spirit, it actually did just the opposite. Individuals and businesses from across the nation have joined together in a massive effort to help those injured by the terrorist attack. Mattson thanks the local advertisers who participated in the promotion and the effort to help victims of the attack.

Dave Carlson, one of the Salvation Army Volunteer representatives in Thief River Falls, said the donation will be earmarked for the special relief efforts underway in New York and Washington, D.C. Carlson thanked The Times and Northern Watch for the donation, and added his thanks to the many other individuals and organizations that have made donations to the effort.

Flu vaccine for residents arrives soon

There is no shortage of the flu vaccine this year, but deliveries of the vaccine will be running late.

Anita Cardinal with Inter-County Nursing Service said she expects the vaccine to be delivered at the end of October, with vaccinations to begin at the beginning of November.

Cardinal said they will be using the same protocol as they used last year, which gets the vaccine to people who are at greater risk. Those people include:

- all people 65 years of age and older;
- residents of long-term care facilities housing persons with chronic illness;
- any child or adult who has a serious long-term problem with heart disease, lung disease, anemia, kidney disease, metabolic disease and asthma;
- people with suppressed immune systems, such as individuals undergoing chemo-therapy;
- pregnant women in their second or third trimester during the flu season; and,
- care givers of the people listed above.

After that, Cardinal said, they will be providing vaccinations to the general public. She expects this to take place sometime in mid to late November.

No specific times and dates for flu vaccine clinics have been established at this time. Cardinal said Inter-County Nursing has received some telephone calls. She asks that the public remain calm and watch and listen for the times and dates of clinics.

The cost of vaccinations to the general public will be $8. They do accept Medicare.

Influenza, sometimes called the flu, is a serious disease. Cardinal said she has not heard of any cases of flu yet, and she's not sure which strain of flu the vaccination will protect against. That said, residents should always get a flu shot because the shot protects against specific strains of influenza.

Influenza can make people of any age ill. This virus can affect 30 million Americans each year. Although most people are ill for only a few days, some have a much more serious illness and may need to be hospitalized. Complications of influenza can lead to the deaths of 10,000 to 40,000 people each year.

Cardinal said there have been no fatalities in recent years, and she does not know the number of confirmed cases of influenza.

Influenza can cause: a fever, chills, headache, cough, sore throat, and muscle aches. Influenza can lead to pneumonia and death.

Parents want support for local coaches

by Kathl Carlson
Reporter

Concerned parents filled nearly every vacant chair in the conference room of the District Service Center at Monday evening's board of education meeting.

The group was represented by Paul Johnson who addressed the school board during the portion of the meeting reserved for public comments. The subject of Johnson's presentation was parental concern over a recent disciplinary action taken by a coach and the ensuing action by administration. It was the opinion of the parents that the school administration's mishandling of the situation led to the unfortunate resignation of the coach.

Due to the laws that protect the privacy of individuals involved, Johnson had been warned that names could not be used, and while the specific incident of concern was not detailed by Johnson in his prepared statement, he did convey the thoughts and feelings of parents and athletes and offered suggestions to keep such a situation from occurring again.

While the school board is not directly involved in such personnel issues, Chair Steve Young expressed the board's appreciation to Johnson and said that Johnson's suggestions of ways to prevent a recurrence of such a situation would be taken under advisement. Young's comments were reinforced by Superintendent Irv Peterson.

Among Johnson's suggestions were a universal code of conduct for the district's athletes and more extensive training for its coaches, especially those who are not members of the district's teaching staff.

- The school board also heard a presentation by Terry BlackLance, director of School District 564's Multicultural Student Services program.

BlackLance outlined the program which originated in 1997 under the name of Native American Education Department. Program objectives developed by a parent advisory committee and results from district assessments include providing academic and social assistance and cultural resources for the district's minority students.

BlackLance's current goals and objectives include continuing to offer minority students and parents opportunities to make contributions through open meetings which highlight student activities and solicit parental involvement; the continuation of the availability of academic and study skill assistance; the continuance and expansion of cultural education programs for students, staff and the community; a continuing effort to seek out alternate funding for the program; to seek out and create new ways to help minority students and parents make the transition to School District 564; develop a minority educators hiring program to employ minority people or those who are fluent in a second language; and reevaluate the Multicultural Student Services budget.

Currently, BlackLance estimates that there are about 225 minority students attending Thief River Falls

Local teacher still a winner

Connie Stock of TRF was one of nine finalists for Teacher of the Year

Connie Stack
LHS communications teacher

by David Hill

"The students' response was interesting," said Connie Stack, one of nine finalists for Minnesota Teacher of the Year.

Stock, a communications teacher at Lincoln High School in Thief River Falls, said she received many letters, cards and poems from students, all supporting her in her bid for Minnesota Teacher of the Year. What they also said surprised her — "No matter what, you are our Teacher of the Year, but we don't want you to go anywhere."

Barb Stoflet, a teacher at Gatewood Elementary School in Minnetonka, was chosen as Minnesota's Teacher of the Year on Sunday, October 14. Stoflet and Stack were among nine finalists for the title. Originally, 125 teachers were selected from a list of nominees, 27 were then selected as Teachers of Excellence, and then that list was pared to the final nine "Honor Roll Teachers."

Overall, Stock thought the process was as intense as it was interesting. In retrospect, she said she wouldn't do anything different, but she now knows it would have been difficult to fulfill the speaking obligations required of the winner. That's not what she was thinking

Fair board elects new officers

▪ Donna Harder becomes first women to hold post

by David Hill
Editor

Donna Harder became the first female president of the Pennington County Fair Association at its meeting Monday, October 15. Also during that meeting, it was announced that the Pennington County Fair board ended its fiscal year in positive territory.

Officers of the 2001-2002 Pennington County Fair Association are: Donna Harder, president, Bud Homme, vice president, Ray Safranski, treasurer, Linnae Enge, secretary, and Mike Sorteberg, vice president and immediate past president.

In 1978 when Harder was invited to be a director on the fair association board, it was with the understanding that it was only for one year. She's been a member of the board ever since.

Despite the hard work involved in each fair, Harder believes it provides residents with great entertainment. She also gets to work with a great bunch of people.

Harder grew up and was raised around Thief River Falls, and is now a rural mail carrier for the United States Postal Service. As a youth, she was a member of 4-H and the county fair was always a big thing. She believes it remains a big event in the county, and is dedicated to improving it every year.

Next year, the board will continue to wrap up the fundraising on the grandstand, which was recently erected at the fairgrounds. Right now, the old grandstand and fencing is in the process of being removed. Harder said when the removal is complete they will step back and take a good look at the available space and determine how best to take advantage of what's available to them. She's excited about the potential of the grandstand and does not refer to it as the Pennington County Fair grandstand, but Pennington County's grandstand because it will be used for many events.

Completion of the new grandstand was announced a couple of weeks ago, now fair association officials are announcing that they ended the year on a positive note. Fundraising for the new grandstand figured prominently in the overall totals, but even without the fundraising, the fair association ended on a positive note, something near $20,000.

Depending upon the circumstances of a case, charges can be, and sometimes are, changed or dropped by law enforcement officials or attorneys even before the case reaches court. Taking a chance on Joan

ODC and a good employer give her the second chance she needed

by Kathi Carlson
Reporter

When Joan Johnson spoke to the recently-formed Occupational Development Center Business Advisory Committee last week, committee members were probably expecting to hear nothing more than a simple "ODC success story."

Yes, Joan's story did relay information about her positive experiences with the ODC and the employment that has resulted from that association. However, her frankly-told story revealed much, much more, including details of the painful journey that eventually brought her to the ODC and eventually, Danny's Pizza where she has worked her way up from a dishwasher to the establishment's assistant manager.

Mental illness, in the form of post traumatic stress disorder and recurring panic attacks, is part of the story that Joan is ready and willing to tell. The cause of her illness is the family abuse she endured for 15 years.

Joan is one of three adopted children who grew up on a farm in northwestern Minnesota. Beginning when she was six years old, she was sexually abused by a brother, who is four years older. Her father was also physically abusive, especially towards her brothers, and there was emotional abuse inflicted by both parents.

Naturally, it didn't take long before feelings of worthlessness and fear would manifest themselves in physical symptoms for a young child who, in addition to being sexually abused, heard frequently that she would never amount to anything. During her early elementary school years, Joan was treated for the stomach problems that would either keep her home from school or cause her to leave early.

She recalls having her first panic attack when she was nine or 10 years old. "I remember laying in the grass," she says, "feeling overwhelmed, scared and dizzy."

When she was in the eighth or ninth grade, her home situation affected her attendance at school, and by the time she was in high school, she went to school only long enough to get her homework and go home. Although her attendance was poor, she did graduate with her class.

Having "had enough" of her home life at the age of 20, she moved out of her parent's home into the home of her abuser. While it may seem inconceivable to many that this is where she would go; Joan explains her fear of being alone at that time and the fact that she discovered that drinking heavily helped her deal with the abuse.

Joan says she "hit bottom" when she was 21. After revealing her "secret" about the abuse to a boyfriend, he confronted her brother. Other people, including law enforcement officials, became involved, and her brother was charged and brought to trial through charges filed by the county attorney.

Once the story was out in the open, however, Joan's problems intensified. With 20 cows of her own, Joan remained on the farm that, she says, was the only place she felt safe. She continued to drink heavily to forget the feelings of worthlessness that were compounded by the assigned counselor who down-played the significance of the abuse because her abuser was not her "real" brother.

Thoughts of killing herself led to suicide attempts and self-mutilation manifestations, and she found herself being sent to an area half-way house and alcohol treatment facility before being committed to the State Hospital in Fergus Falls.

Part of Joan's treatment at the state facility involved a program which was designed to help her get her feelings out about the sexual, physical and psychological abuse she had experienced. Writing letters to her abusers and painting pictures of painful experiences, however, proved to be too much for her and led to the development of a disassociative disorder which caused her to stop functioning and, she says, "shut down."

After 18 months in Fergus Falls where she celebrated her 25th birthday, Joan was sent to a Rule 36 half-way house in Moorhead where she lived for about a year. When she left Moorhead in June of 1996, it marked her last stay in a place she refers to as an "institution."

Joan moved to Thief River Falls where, because she still feared being alone, she lived with her former fiance and got a job as a dishwasher at the River Road Casino. The debilitating effects of panic attacks, however, resulted in her inability to work, and after not showing up for work several times, she was fired.

After staying at home for a while, Joan went to the ODC where she worked in its manufacturing facility and at other ODC job sites. Jobs included such things as delivering a daily news bulletin for a local radio station and custodial tasks. With the encouragement, understanding and support she received from ODC staff, work agreed with her, and she says she had four part-time jobs at one time before going to work as a dishwasher at Danny's Pizza.

While her first employment stint at Danny's ended, not because of her health but rather a dispute over a fairness issue, Joan was rehired there in December of 1999 by the restaurant's new owner, Brad Erickson.

Like the ODC staff, Brad offered her support, understanding and the opportunity to advance from her dishwashing duties.

Joan taught herself how to do the the daily prep work, and eventually, Brad had her doing some till work. "He gave me a chance," Joan says, even though he knew her history included a run-in with the law for shoplifting and writing bad checks.

As she asked more questions, Erickson taught her more and more about the business and last spring named her assistant manager of the business Today, Joan's responsibilities include scheduling, ordering supplies, taking inventory and doing the books and making the bank deposit when Brad is out of town.

With regard to her illness, Joan is currently taking a combination of Paxil, an anti-depressant for social anxiety, and Buspar, another anti-depressant that works with the Paxil.

Joan also has the security of knowing there is a psychologist at Northwest Medical Center with whom she has developed a successful relationship who is there should she need his services again.

At times, the post traumatic stress disorder manifests itself in the form of recurring dreams, and she continues to have panic attacks. However, Joan says that she is currently having more good days than bad ones.

She lives independently with her cat and has the support of a special friend who, she says, is a mother figure to her. Recently, the fear of going out of town that had plagued her for some time was overcome by a trip to Grand Forks.

The time that she doesn't spend working at Danny's or at the ODC when she's short of cash is spent at home where she says she enjoys a lot of television. She likes movies, too, and says that her collection currently includes more than 300 titles.

> Where do people with special needs fit in our society?
> "My job," she says, "has given me something to feel good about."

Although it is difficult, Joan maintains a relationship with her family, talking on the telephone and visiting them. Holidays, she says, are particularly difficult, although they are made easier by the fact that her friend accompanies her and her parents now live in a different house than they did when the abuse occurred.

She misses the extended family relationships that existed before the knowledge of her abuse became public. While relatives, Joan says, are pleasant enough, they tend to keep their distance, and she believes they, like her parents, think the abuse should have remained a secret.

Seeing people who remind her of her abuser, she says, is difficult, and there are things about her situation that continue to bother her. Although her abuser was charged with his crime, he was sentenced to only one year in jail and served a mere six months with weekend privileges so liberal he was able to conceive a child during that time.

His sentence, Joan feels, was light, especially when she considers the lifetime of illness that she's been sentenced to because of the abuse at his hand. She's also vexed by the fact that he has not fulfilled his court-ordered participation in a program for sexual abusers.

Although she says she isn't ready to plan too far into the future, Joan is currently having many more good days than bad ones. She accepts the fact that she is going to have those difficult times and says, "You can't enjoy the good days if you don't have any bad days."

The compassion of her employer and the people she's come into contact with at the ODC has also made it easier for her to cope with her illness as her job has become her lifeline. "My job," she says, "has given me something to feel good about."

Before telling her story, Joan asked Erickson if he thought doing so would be harmful to his business. His reply reinforced her self esteem when he told her that the type of people who would stay away because of her story were the type of folks he doesn't care to do business with.

The world needs more people like Brad Erickson who are willing to take a risk with people like Joan who, though no fault of their own, suffer from various forms of mental illness. Sadly, this young woman's story is not unique and is told for the purpose of creating understanding.

Joan's bravery in telling her story, however, is unique and further demonstrates her much-deserved success and hope for the future.

Assistant Manager Joan Johnson and owner Brad Erickson frequently work side-by-side at Danny's Pizza. Joan acquired her job through a program of the Occupational Development Center. Last week, Joan told members of the ODC's new Business Advisory Committee of the journey that brought her to the ODC and eventually to the job that has become her lifeline. Joan is one of millions of Americans who has a mental illness.

Strandquist News

The Strandquist seniors met last Thursday with Wally Rud enjoying lunch with members who were there at the center. This Thursday they plan to play Bingo. Not too many times before it will be too cold to meet each week, but this coming weekend we regain that precious hour we lost last spring. I was just getting used to waking up at six a.m., knowing full well that it was really only five a.m. When I stop to think, that for six months, or if I want to get technical, 183 days I lost 183 hours that are impossible to get back. I often wondered how come I was so far behind getting things done, but maybe with another 183 hours at hand, I'd be out ahead of myself. I'm going to quit thinking all time lost. As the saying is "time and tide waits for no man" and I will add, nor for woman either.

Sure these things are scary. However, there are things in the real world that are just as scary and dangerous.
For instance, there are the chemicals: asbestos, vinyl, benzene, chloride, arsenic and aflatoxin. And all these chemicals can be found in the same place. In exhaled or secondhand smoke.
you don't have to call the Ghostbusters to get rid of these dangers. Simply make your home a smoke-free zone and frequent your local Smoke-free establishments when you go out.

School News & Views

School District 564

This week, I will continue to answer some of the questions that people have about the proposed referendum for the local school district.

Recently, I have given informal presentations to several groups and clubs and would be happy to accommodate your organization with an informal presentation as well. To schedule a presentation, call the District Service Center at (218) 681-8711.

Information will be sent to all property owners within the boundaries of the school district indicating polling places, times the polls are open and other election information. That particular mailing will also include the tax impact of the referendum on any valuation of land and a copy of the sample ballot.

The ballot indicates that by voting yes on the ballot question, you are voting for a property tax increase. That wording is a mandatory part of the ballot on all school questions regarding funding. In this particular case, with the change in state law lowering the property tax impact for school general funds and general fund referendums, your school property taxes will go down considerably whether this referendum is passed or not. It will go down a little more if the referendum is not passed. It will still go down if the referendum is passed.

Information about the referendum was provided in the full-page ad that appeared in the October 20 edition of the Northern Watch. The ad included a chart on tax impact, reasons for the proposal, last year's levy figures compared to the proposed figures for next year and a comparison chart showing referendum per pupil unit (ppu) for surrounding school districts.

There is nothing magical in the numbers we propose or the numbers other schools are currently receiving. It is simply a comparison that indicates that most all schools need these override levies to supplement the amount received by the state. Some schools that currently have a referendum in place are still proposing an increased levy to their voters.

The reason we are proposing $126 ppu or a total of $81,150 for the school district is that we receive the maximum state equalization at that level. If we proposed an amount higher than the $126 ppu, there would be a slightly higher tax impact on local property owners. We would rather maximize our state aid with a smaller local impact on property owners.

Following is a chart showing the tax impact on various market values. It is important again to note that this is not in addition to the previous referendum but rather significantly less than the previous levy referendum which no longer exists.

Property Tax Impact

Referendum Market Value	Annual Tax Impact
$40,000	$10.00
$60,000	$15.00
$80,000	$19.00
$100,000	$24.00
$150,000	$36.00
$200,000	$49.00
$300,000	$73.00
$500,000	$121.00

For agricultural landowners, it is also important to note that ag land is no longer taxed for school override referendums. Rather than the entire farm, taxes are now paid on the house, garage and one acre of land.

The proposed referendum is for 10 years. The money will be used to help keep class sizes down, keep the district financially healthy, maintain elective classes, keep technology current and fund the programs and personnel needed to have a well-balanced curriculum with co-curricular and extracurricular activities.

Currently, we have some classes with 35 to 37 students in them at Lincoln High School. We have made cuts in various areas, including math and science, language and foreign language in addition to other elective classes. We need to ensure that we continued to offer college prep classes, gifted and talented opportunities and vocational and technical classes. We also need to offer remedial language arts and math classes for students who have not yet passed the Minnesota Basic Standards tests.

Maintaining class sizes at Franklin Middle School is also crucial. These students need the small class sizes in the core subjects so that they do not fall behind at a time when they are preparing for state tests and also preparing for the college prep classes at Lincoln. Class sizes for elective courses also need to be watched at the middle school level so they provide students with quality time to spend with instructors. Many students opting for technical courses after high school need this time to recognize and develop their skills, talents and abilities.

The federal government has recognized the need for small class sizes and has funded a program the last three years reducing class sizes in the lower elementary grades. We are not sure at this time whether or not that program will be continued after this year. We are currently in the third year of this three-year program and have been told that it will not continue in its present form. If it is not continued, we would need to find funding from some other source to keep our elementary class sizes where they currently are, averaging about 20 students per class. Upper elementary class sizes are in the mid-twenties with lower elementary class sizes in the upper teens.

Three public meetings for the purpose of presenting questions and answering questions will be held as follows:

- Thursday, October 25, 7 p.m. at the Lincoln High School cafeteria.
- Monday, October 29, at 6 p.m. at the St. Hilaire Community Center.
- Tuesday, October 30, at 7 p.m. at the Franklin Middle School cafeteria.

Please note that the Monday, October 29 meeting at St. Hilaire has been scheduled at 6 p.m. to accommodate the concert at 7:30 p.m. at Lincoln High School.

ON THE OTHER HAND

Andrea Hagen, Lincoln High School

This past summer, the Lincoln High School Concert Choir was asked to do a professional recording of "The Butterfly Songs." The lyrics of these songs are poetry written by some of the children from the concentration camp Terezin. The well-known composer Jeanie Barnett took these poems from the book I Never Saw Another Butterfly and captured the satirical mood to create beautiful pieces of music. Unfortunately, we could only take 40 people to the recording session in the Twin Cities, which is about half of the students in the Concert Choir. Several of the students had previous commitments, so it all worked out in the end.

Entering the Minnesota Public Radio building in the Twin Cities was like walking into another world. The room was full of instruments, microphones and cords laying in every available spot.

We lined up the risers and took a deep breath. Jeanie then introduced us to the musicians who were recording with us. Because they were all professionals, we were all a little intimidated. Each one of them had an amazing personality to accompany their amazing skill.

Jeanie's husband, Steve, who is also a composer, was producing the record. Steve gave us his greetings, followed by his instructions. We all had met Jeanie and Steve at our spring concert of 2001 where we had performed the butterfly pieces for the first time. So there was a very comfortable atmosphere all around us.

We began the recording session with "To Olga." Steve had us go all the way through the song, then played it back to us. It was wonderful to hear what we actually sound like. All I had ever really heard was our concerts on a videotape. There was a very distinguishable difference. I couldn't believe that was us, and that is what we sound like. The instrumentalists completely blew us all away and exceeded all of our expectations. When the song was over, Darcy Reese, our choir director, reassured us with a pleased smile. But we were nowhere near the end of that song. I cannot even remember how many takes we had done before the song was complete. I knew from the beginning that recording wouldn't be easy, but I had no idea how difficult it would be.

After every song we needed a break. There were apples and water provided for all of us. Eventually they added cookies and chips. It was a complete surprise, which we were all very grateful for.

As the day went on, you could see the energy draining out of each person's body. It proved to be a very tiring process. Before we even agreed to do this, Mrs. Reese explained her expectations very clearly. She has always demanded excellence, but now she would be demanding perfection. We weren't scared of the challenge because we knew she would be working twice as hard for this as we would. Every single person was giving it everything they had, but there was the occasion where we didn't get our part down. It was so frustrating not to be able to give them exactly what they wanted. This was our chance to prove ourselves. There we were in the studio, having thousands of dollars put into this production, and it still wasn't perfect. All the hours of memorization and drilling came down to this. Now was our time to shine. I now realize that there is no way we could have made it perfect. No matter how good something is, you can always make it better.

When the day was finally over, we retreated to our hotel. It wasn't long before we had all settled down for the night. We all knew the second day of recording would be even longer.

We started even earlier than the day before. The recordings all had to be complete before nine that evening.

By the middle of the day, I could feel my heart weakening. I slowly became increasingly frustrated with myself. After all the time and work put into this, I felt I had nothing left to give. I was expecting a physical exhaustion, but it proved to be more of an emotionally draining experience.

I think we were all getting a little discouraged when the afternoon was brightened because of the arrival of Henry Ortelt. Henry had been sent to concentration camps such as Terezin, as well as Auschwitz, during the time of the Holocaust. He was wonderful enough to share his experience with us during our spring concert called "Never Again," which was dedicated to the children of the Holocaust. He too became intrigued by the entire project, and was more than happy to visit with us again. Seeing Henry reminded me of who we were singing this for. Having the choir, Mrs. Reese, Henry, Jeanie and Steve all together again reignited our spirits. From there on, the recording went along much better.

The evening ended with hugs, autographs and pictures. While I was anxious to get on our way home, I hated to leave. There was a magical force that brought this entire project together. Jeanie had been looking for a choir to record her music for over a decade. It is such an honor to be a part of the group she chose to make it happen.

I'll never forget sitting on the bus before we started on our way home. Mrs. Reese was completely exhausted. She finally stood up and faced us. Her pale face was beaming with satisfaction and pride. Her skinny arms shook as she supported herself on the bus seat. She was almost in tears as she told us how proud of us she was. She made us all realize what we had just done and how lucky we all were to be able to make the music come to life. We were helping to keep alive the memory of these children who suffered during the Holocaust.

Mrs. Reese just recently informed us that we have been invited to sing the butterfly pieces on Holocaust Remembrance Day in the Twin Cities with the musicians from the recording. Henry might even be there. She also told us that the CD should be available by Christmas. It is so exciting to know all of the hard work is coming out in a finished product and that in the end perfection can be obtained.

Halloween Songs

The following songs can be sung while carving pumpkins, getting costumes ready or making Halloween treats.

This is the Way We Trick or Treat
(Tune: "Here We Go Round the Mulberry Bush")

This is the way we trick or treat
Trick or treat, trick or treat.
This is the way we trick or treat
On Halloween night.

We always hold a grown-up's hand
Grown-up's hand, grown-up's hand
We always hold a grown-up's hand
When we trick or treat.

A grown-up checks our tasty treats
Tasty treats, tasty treats
A grown-up checks our tasty treats
Before we eat them up!

Found a Pumpkin
(Tune: "Clementine")

Found a pumpkin, found a pumpkin
Found a pumpkin just now
Just now I found a pumpkin
Found a pumpkin just now.

Additional verses: Carved a pumpkin; made a jack-o-lantern.

Laughter and Fun

Laughter and fun. How important is it? Some feel it is very important! Why? Because life would be very dull and boring without it. If we laugh and have fun while interacting with others it says that we enjoy being with that person. It's also a way of showing our approval of the other person or their actions. This is certainly true of parent-child interaction. If you doubt this to be true simply smile or laugh at your child when he or she does something. This child will probably repeat that action again very soon! Children love having approval and attention. Make a point of enjoying your children. Laugh with them and have fun.

As your toddler gets older he will also enjoy jokes and pranks. In fact when one child discovers a "joke," other children will repeat it to get the same attention. Unlike adults, children's appreciation of their own humor increases with the number of times they repeat it. And so they may repeat and repeat something you laughed at. For children repetition of their jokes only increases the fun. But for the listening adult, it may not be as much fun. Just try to bear with them.

SOMETHING TO TALK ABOUT

Enjoy your child and his/her style of humor. Encourage and even repeat what they find funny.

SPEAKING OF . . .

Sherry LaCoursiere

...Keep Smilin'

Despite the war and anthrax and worries about everything else, they say we are supposed to get on with it and keep smiling. The following might help some of you who are a little "over the hill" to grin a little. If you really want to, you can sing it to the tune of "A Few of My Favorite Things" from "The Sound of Music." That might make everyone around you grin too.

Maalox and nosedrops and needles for knittin',
Walkers and handrails and new dental fittin's,
Bundles of magazines tied up with string,
These are a few of my favorite things.

Cadillacs, cataracts, hearing aids, glasses,
Polident, Fixodent, false teeth in glasses,
Pacemakers, golf cart and porches with swings,
These are a few of my favorite things.

When the pipes leak,
When the bones creak,
When the knees go bad,
Then I remember my favorite things,
And then I don't feel so bad.

Hot tea and crumpets and corn pads for bunions,
No spicy hot food nor food cook'd with onions,
Bathrobes and heat pads and hot meals they bring,
These are a few of my favorite things.

Back pains, confused brains and no fear of sinnin',
Thin bones and fractures and hair that is thinnin',
And we won't mention our short shrunken frames,
When we remember our favorite things.

When the joints ache,
When the hips break,
When the eyes grow dim,
Then I remember the great life I've had,
And then I don't feel so bad.

Then I remember the great life I've had
And then I don't feel sooooo baaaad!!

While the certificate says Key Club Member of the Month, Lincoln High School senior Stacy Kleinwachter (right) was recently named Key Club Member of the Summer for the many hours she spent parking cars at the Pennington County Fair. Key Club President Rebekah Solem presented Kleinwachter with her certificate and noted that the Key Club received $750 for parking cars at the fair. Extension service plans session on family discussion

The University of Minnesota Extension Service will offer a workshop, "Can We Talk? — Critical Family Discussions," at several northwest Minnesota locations on October 30-31 and November 1.

Regardless of how much we plan ahead and take reasonable safety precautions, life remains uncertain. In emergency situations, families are often unprepared or lack quick access to information.

While talking about about legal and financial matters is uncomfortable for many people, it can make required actions and decisions so much easier for those left in charge.

The workshop is designed to help participants organize critical information and offers tips on how to more easily discuss these matters with other family members. Topics will include gathering and organizing legal and financial records, talking about preferences for end-of-life treatment, choices and distribution of possessions and family heritage items.

Glenice Johnson, Pennington County Extension educator, will be the presenter. The workshop is open to the public as well as home study group leaders.

Sites will include the following: Tuesday, October 30, at 1:30 p.m. at the courthouse meeting room in Thief River Falls; Wednesday, October 31, at 9:30 a.m. at the courthouse meeting room in Hallock and 1:30 p.m. at the Bremer Bank meeting room in Warren; Thursday, November 1, at 9:30 a.m. at the Lutheran church in Baudette and 1:30 p.m. at the courthouse meeting room in Roseau.

While often concerned that this information be made available for elderly family members, accidents, sudden illnesses and even acts of terrorism can affect all age groups. Thus, the workshop offers pertinent information for people of all ages.

For more information, call Glenice Johnson at the Pennington County Extension office at (218) 681-7030.

Former Viking resident gives thoughts on attack

Former Viking resident, Pastor Lloyd Melvie of rural Pennock, Minn., was interviewed for a story in the Banner, a newspaper serving the Minnesota communities of Kerkhoven, Murdock, Sunburg and Pennock. Melvie, now the Pastor of Salem Convenant Church in Pennock, is the son of the late Tobias and Olga Melvie of Viking, and brother to Ruth Sacken of Thief River Falls.

While Melvie is now a pastor, that wasn't always so. Melvie has been a pilot for Northwest Airlines, and a Navy combat pilot. In his interview with a reporter from the Banner, Melvie shared his unique perspective into the attack on the World Trade Center and the Pentagon in Washington, D.C.

From the news article, these are some of the perspectives on the Sept. 11 terrorist attack on the United States that he was able to offer readers:

From his perspective in the pulpit, Melvie reminded his parishoners that "It's not just a matter of seeking God's face, but also turning from sin." He also quoted Psalms: "Why should I be afraid? In the midst of every attack I will have no fear," he said.

From his perspective as a former pilot for Northwest Airlines, Melvie said no American pilot would have deliberately flown his aircraft into a building such as took place on September 11. In addition, Melvie believes the cockpit doors are a deterrent to only non-criminals, and that the United States should have highly trained military personnel on all planes.

From his perspective as a former Navy combat pilot, Melvie believes back then he knew who his enemy was and where. Neither of these certainties exist today. He also doesn't like to hear of revenge. Justice yes, but not revenge.

Melvie also pondered what the United States fighter pilots were thinking as they screamed, ready to fire, toward two unarmed airliners carrying many innocent civilians, coming just minutes too late.

"Boy, it must have been tough," Melvie said. "But I suppose if you are convinced you were saving 20,000 lives. . . ."

Manure management plan brings savings

Livestock producers who grow crops can save money on fertilizer by implementing a well-prepared manure management plan. Such a plan will also help producers comply with state or county feedlot rules, says Blue Earth County educator Kent Thiease of the University of Minnesota Extension Service.

"Under new state feedlot rules, all livestock producers must have a manure management plan to obtain a permit for a new or existing livestock production facility," says Thiesse. "Several counties also require a manure plan as part of their county feedlot permitting process."

Thiesse says many livestock producers have been following manure management plans for several years to save on commercial fertilizer for crops.

"Most certified crop consultants and crop advisors can help livestock producers prepare a good manure management plan," says Thiesse. "Producers can also get help on maximizing the nutrient value of manure for crop production. Ideally, the manure management plan becomes part of a farm's overall crop nutrient strategy."

More information on requirements for manure management plans is available from county feedlot officers and county offices of the University of Minnesota Extension Service.

Grygla hosts marketing workshop October 30

Marshall County will host the first "Winning the Game 2: Profitable Strategies for Marketing Grain" workshop at the Grygla Community Center on Tuesday, October 30, from 8:30 a.m. to noon. American State Bank and Insurance of Grygla is the local sponsor.

"Winning the Game 2" is an interactive grain marketing program that includes a market simulation game using actual market prices and histories. The program is based on last year's very successful program.

Points of emphasis include the following:

- Utilizing seasonal trends and price differences in cash grain marketing decisions;
- Understanding how crop revenue coverage and other crop insurance products work with marketing plans to reduce risk;
- A "real life" test of skills using actual seasonal grain market prices, loan deficiency payments, etc. as part of the grain marketing plan; and
- Increased awareness of marketing resources.

Future workshops will be held in Roseau, Warren, Winger, Hallock and Crookston.

Lincoln graduate receives McKnight Fellowship

The McKnight Foundation announced recently that Doug Pfeifer has been selected to receive the 2001 McKnight Screenwriters Fellowship.

Doug is a 1980 graduate of Lincoln High School and the son of Vern and Jeanette Pfeifer of Sauk Centre, formerly of Thief River Falls.

The McKnight Fellowship has grown to be the most prestigious screenwriting competition in the midwest, and Pfeifer was awarded $25,000 for excellence and mastery in the art of screenwriting. The money awarded recognizes and supports mid-career artists from Minnesota who have excelled in their artistic discipline.

In addition to the cash award, the program offers mentorship from industry affiliates in New York and Los Angeles. Pfeifer traveled to New York in late September to attend the Independent Feature Project Market where his script was one of five national finalists for the Pipedream Script Award sponsored by Annie Schulhof, president of Gotham-based Pipedream Productions.

Pfeifer is an American Film Institute graduate who works in animation and commercial production. For the Pipedream competition, he had over 2,000 pages of re-writes and changes before completing the draft of his screenplay, "Golden Boys." The screenplay is about a racist chief of police from a small reservation border town who is forced to investigate the murder of a Native American man whom he helped torture 20 years earlier.

While Doug has lived as a writer in Los Angeles, he believes he can continue networking in the film industry while based in Minnesota.

In addition to spending the award money on travel to the IFP market with his wife Angela, Doug plans to use the money for the welfare of his family. The couple has three sons, five-year-old twins, Jacob and Jen, and four-year-old Luke. Luke, who is autistic, requires special care.

Prior to winning the McKnight Fellowship, the Pfeifers had been forced to cut back on Luke's home care due to its cost. The award money, however, will allow them to rehire the people who make a substantial difference in Luke's well being.

The weather in northwest Minnesota has been cooperating with us to get ready for winter. I'm only asking for a couple more nice days to get rid of the leaves which stubbornly hung on the trees until this week. Neil and ReNae Vagle stopped on their way home to Roseau from Fargo to fix a hole in the roof to find the rain troughs that were cleaned a couple of weeks ago, were full of leaves again.

Morris Johnson said to me yesterday, that he would go out today and see if he could find any acorns under his oak trees to feed the squirrels around here. He didn't sound like he thought too highly of them, but in his Swedish heart he sympathized with them. Thank you, Mr. Johnson.

Morris and Marcelyn Lindstrom from Park Rapids visited Elsie Lefrooth on Sunday. They went to visit Mary and Donna Renstrom and Chester Berg before going home. Other visitors at Elsie Lefrooth's were Pearl Thompson, Hazel Anderson and Karen Thompson of Thief River Falls.

Down On The Farm

Eric Bergeson

In May of 1988, I traveled to New Zealand for my student teaching assignment. I was to stay in the homes of other teachers in order to get a feel for New Zealand culture.

After the 30-hour flight, I was dropped off by a taxi at the modest home of a middle-aged couple in suburban Wellington. The husband was a government bureaucrat, and the wife was a teacher at the school where I was to teach.

An hour after I arrived at the home of my hosts, I caught sight of a note beside the fridge: "Pat, we can't find anybody else to host the American student," it said. "I am sorry, but I guess you'll have to take him."

To make matters worse, it became apparent that the decision to take me into their home wasn't unanimous. My hostess Pat, a matronly home economics teacher, had overruled her husband's objections and agreed to host "the American student" for a week so I wouldn't be on the street. But just for a week.

By the end of that week, I had made some friends and had offers galore of places to stay. Pat and her husband lifted the week-long limit, but I decided to move on to the home of some younger teachers. I was treated like a king.

For the remaining three months, the hospitality was non-stop. I hitchhiked from the northern to the southern tip of the country, staying with friends and relatives of teachers the whole way.

I hitched a 10-minute ride with one young couple. As they dropped me off, they offered me the use of their house in Auckland. "We won't be home yet when you get there, but the key is under the mat, and the fridge is full."

Later in my trip, I finally asked why they had such trouble finding a place for me stay before I arrived. It came out: Americans are seen by New Zealanders to be even less well-mannered than Australians.

"We wanted to make sure you were normal," one of the younger teachers said, as a way of apologizing for not offering a place to stay sooner. Turns out, a normal New Zealander is much like a normal Midwesterner: Polite, generous, kind, gentle, but a little suspicious.

Most American tourists in New Zealand were obnoxious, more interested in talking loudly about their own country than in learning about the one they were visiting. Most of them, I learned on my travels, seemed to be from Texas, California or New York.

So, to these young professionals, allowing "an American student" into their home seemed akin to adopting a pet skunk.

But much to our mutual surprise, my small town Minnesota upbringing clicked well with the New Zealand outlook. I felt at home. They became comfortable with me. And they stopped demanding that I defend every American movie or government action.

Travel is good. It's not only good for us to see the world, but it is good for the world to see a picture of America besides what comes through the television set.

So do your patriotic duty, shy, polite citizens of Midwestern small towns: Go overseas and be yourself. Be quiet. Listen. Learn. Talk softly, say thank you, and don't preach. By just being normal, you will shock a little part of the world.

schools. His figures are based on eligibility forms that have been returned to the school.

With about 75 percent of the forms returned, there are 193 minority students attending Challenger Elementary, Franklin Middle School and Lincoln High School. This year's number represents an increase over last year when 177 known minority students attended school in Thief River Falls. The 193 student figure includes 80 Native American students, 24 of Asian/Pacific Islander heritage, 67 Hispanic/Latino students, and 22 Black (not Hispanic) students.

BlackLance's presentation offered school board members an opportunity to ask questions and offer suggestions. Suggestions included seeking out the assistance of a grant writer. Currently, the majority of the program's funding is derived from a $14,820 Title 9 Indian Education grant.

• The board of education recognized Wennberg's for its donation of pipe rails to the BMX/Skate Park.

• The school board heard reports from the following committees: Area Learning Center, Steve Young and Mike Berry; and Staff Development, Jean Larson.

• In his report to the board of education, business manager Harry Nelson presented an investment report and told the board that low interest rates would result in approximately $100,000 less in revenue for the district in the coming year.

• Superintendent Irv Peterson updated the school board on his continuing quest to inform the public of the upcoming excess levy referendum. Peterson also reported that a number of individuals are helping him.

• The board of education approved the following personnel items in its Consent Agenda: the employment of Sherry Koop as kitchen helper for four hours/day, school days only, effective September 7, 2001 with salary and benefits per negotiated contract; the employment of Valera Noel as a Latch Key adult assistant effective October 27, 2001 at an hourly rate of $7.28; the leave of absence without pay for Jerry Odegaard effective March 4, 2002 through April 12, 2002; the establishment and posting for a half-time special education PPSA to work with a multiple handicapped student; the employment of Suzanne Dupree as the Youth Mentoring/Parent Education Program coordinator effective October 29, 2001 for 30 hours per week with salary and benefits per negotiated contract; the employment of Jaclyn Miller as the WSI assistant at Franklin Pool for seven hours per day at a rate of $8.19 per hour; and the employment of Kimberly Langan as Kindergarten PPSA at Challenger Elementary School effective October 23, 2001 through the end of the 2001-2002 school year for 3.5 hours per day with salary and benefits per negotiated contract.

• The next regular meeting of the board of education is scheduled for Monday, November 12, at 7 p.m. in the Conference Room of the District Service Center.

when she went to the banquet. Frankly, she said, she was thinking of the opportunity for her and the school district. Because of how she feels about family and her students, however, sacrificing time with family and children in her classrooms, would have been very difficult for her.

"This is uplifting for Connie and the school," said Lincoln High School Principal Tom Hunt. "The many professionals on our staff," said Hunt, "know how hard Connie works and how dedicated she is to the students. "The bottom line," Hunt said, " is that Connie is a great benefit to the students attending Lincoln High School in Thief River Falls."

"It was a big deal," said Stock of the final three days and banquet. In an intense media session Friday night, Stock said she came to realize just how large of a role publicity plays in being Teacher of the Year. On Saturday, the final nine candidates went through individual 30-minute interviews with the selection committee. Although the wait for her turn was very stressful, Stock said, she enjoyed visiting with the 23 panelists conducting the interviews, because they felt as strongly about education as she did; and, they couldn't leave the room.

It was an interesting process, which helped Stock see the greater issues facing all Minnesotans. Some of those issues, she said, include the Grad Rule, charter schools, vouchers, and mandatory requirements that students repeat the Pledge of Allegiance.

Of the finalists, Stock said it made her proud that these nine were a reflection of all of the teachers in Minnesota.

The feeling of pride in belonging to such a wonderful, dedicated group was even more overwhelming on Sunday, she said, when they were all on stage and about to name the Teacher of the Year. It was then, Stock said, that she realized just how many people support education in Minnesota. "They were honoring teachers," she said.

Individually, Stock said, teachers and staff in School District 564 have been very supportive of her efforts to become Teacher of the Year.

Very few teachers from northwestern Minnesota have made it this far in the process, and perhaps the revelation of its importance to the region and district was late to dawn on many, including Stock.

In the end, Stock said she was glad she went through the process. She believes it was good for her, and good for northwestern Minnesota.

Stock realized too that education was a choice she made because she enjoys it; and teaching in Thief River Falls, where she grew up, is exactly where she wants to be.

Background

Stock, a graduate of Lincoln High School, went onto Concordia College in Moorhead upon graduation. She earned a bachelor of arts degree with majors in English and secondary education and minors in speech theater and psychology.

After college she taught English and reading to ninth graders for four years in Mesa, Ariz. Stock then took an 11-year break to raise her three children and take care of her disabled parents, while still finding time to do volunteer work.

In 1984, she and her family moved back to Thief River Falls. Her husband, Bill, has been a counselor at Lincoln High School since 1985.

Stock started back into teaching in 1987 when she began instructing extracurricular classes like speech and drama. Over the years she has added class after class to her schedule.

During the regular school year, Stock now teaches advanced placement English along with theatre arts and expressive connections through the Magnet Arts Program. She also instructs Afternoon at the Arts, speech team, and fall, spring, and one-act plays for extracurricular classes, while holding the position of stage manager at Lincoln.

The selection committee and sponsors

The selection committee was made up of 23 individuals from various walks of life, including the former Teacher of the Year, an attorney, a legislator, a banker, and several other individuals.

The Minnesota Teacher of the Year program is sponsored by Education Minnesota with support from McDonald's Restaurants of Minnesota, Teacher Federal Credit Union, United Educators Credit Union, Education Minnesota-ESI, and National Computer Systems (NCS).

Connie Stock, communications teacher at Lincoln High School in Thief River Falls, recently returned from an event honoring Minnesota's Honor Roll Teachers." During the event, Minnesota's Teacher of the Year was announced. Stock was one of nine finalists for the honor.

Fair board elects new officers

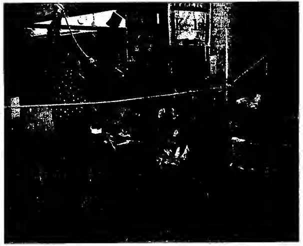
Fundraising plays a prominent role in the success of the county fair. Fundraising efforts for the bull ride raised $57,900, an increase from $48,675 the previous year. Grandstand tickets and event sales in general, not including the grandstand or the bull ride donations, increased from $88,625.50 to $100,158.48. The fair association reported that they received $212,418 through fundraising efforts for the grandstand.

Other revenues remained fairly stable from revenues reported a year ago. The largest increase was recorded in the auto parking fund, which increased from revenues of $2,973 to $8,544.08.

Expenses, minus expenses for the grandstand and fund raising, increased from about $205,000 to $221,000. Expenses pertaining to grandstand acts and set up accounted for nearly $10,000 of the increase.

The fair association also kept track of revenues and expenses pertaining to grandstand events and other major activities at the fair. The Williams and Ree show recorded a loss of $6,827.94. The two-days of moto cross recorded a net income of just under $2,000. Bingo recorded a net income of $1,706.45, an increase over previous years. The pedal pull and horse shows recorded a net loss of $344.55. The raffles, although not entirely complete, recorded a net income of nearly $6,000, a drop of about $2,000 from the previous year. The mud run recorded net income of $1,345.79. The demolition derby recorded net income of $6,275.85, a slight increase over the previous year. The beer gardens, which included the sale of water during the hot weather recorded during the fair, reported a net income of $4,866.38. The bull-ride, which included an increase in donations from $48,675 to $57,900, reported a net income of $17,534.94, which is a significant increase over net income reported last year of $11,839.26.



Second-graders at Challenger Elementary were given a first-hand look at what it means to be a cowboy. Scott Glass, who lives west of Thief River Falls, gave the young wranglers a quick lesson on roping, riding, and a cowboy's gear. The Monday visit was an introduction to a story the class will be reading this week as part of their new reading curriculum. The story is titled "The Roundup at Rio Ranch." According to second-grade teacher Betty Carlson, many of the things taught by Glass will be mentioned in the story.

■ Northland win, Mesabi Range loss breaks tie

MCCC State Football Playoffs
■ Semifinals Saturday, Oct. 27 - Northland at Rochester, 1 p.m.; Fergus Falls at Vermilion, 1 p.m.
■ Championship Saturday, Nov. 3 - at St. Cloud State, 1 p.m.

Two things needed to happen Saturday for the Northland Community and Technical College football team to earn a post-season playoff spot. First, the Pioneers had to beat Itasca. They did, 42-26. But their appearance in the Minnesota Community College Conference semifinals also required a Vermilion victory over Mesabi Range that same afternoon. About an hour after beating the Vikings, the Pioneers finally learned their fate: Vermilion got by Mesabi Range 17-14, in overtime.

Results of the two games produced a Northern Division title for the Ironmen and a Northland-Mesabi Range second place tie. The Pioneers and Norse both finished with 9 points in MCCC play that awards one point for a win over a team from the other division and two points for a victory over a divisional foe. A better record within the Northern Division was the tie-breaker that filled the playoff positions.

A come-from-behind 26-21 Northland win over Mesabi Range Sept. 27 proved to be the crucial outcome during the year, but it wouldn't have been important without the victory in the regular season finale at Itasca.

The Pioneers won it with a ground game that featured halfback Maurice Johnson, who scored four touchdowns and rushed for 272 yards, and fullback Steve Crummy, who scored twice and rushed for 195 yards.

First drive of the game set the tone for the afternoon, according to Northland coach Guy Finstrom, who watched the Pioneers finish a 95-yard march with an 18-yard Johnson touchdown and a conversion kick by Crummy.

"We came out right away and did what we wanted to do," said Finstrom.

Itasca stayed within 7-6 through the first quarter, but the Vikings found themselves trailing 28-6 at halftime. At 35-6 the Pioneers went to their bench. "A lot of kids got to play some football," noted Finstrom.

The Pioneers' 543 yards of offense included 488 rushing yards. The Vikings had similar success on offense, where 410 total yards featured 373 yards on the ground behind Darrell Gordon, who scored four touchdowns and rushed for 290 yards.

Meanwhile, at Virginia, Mesabi Range was making a playoff run by playing Vermilion to a scoreless first half tie, then taking a 7-0 lead into the third quarter.

That set-up a Joel Polzin touchdown run and a Polzin-to-Andre Mixon conversion pass for a tie with just 25 seconds left.

Vermilion stopped Mesabi Range on a third down interception in overtime, then won it on a 33-yard Richard Faber field goal.

Northland, 4-1 in the Northern Division and 5-4 overall, lost to Rochester 45-6 in the season-opening Aug. 24 MCCC Kickoff Classic at the University of Minnesota-Duluth. The defending state champion Yellowjackets are beaten.

"Rochester has a very good football team," acknowledged Finstrom. "It's a tough draw, but there are seven (non-qualifying) teams who would love to be in our place."

If the Pioneers are to pull off an upset, their ground game must be effective, explained Finstrom. "I feel strongly we can run the football on them," he said. "Teams have had success running on them all year, and we're definitely a ground-oriented team."

However, Finstrom warned that simply moving the ball won't be enough. Possessions must result in points. "If we can run the ball, not turn it over, and score on our drives, we'll be okay," he said.

The game will feature Johnson, the best back in the Northern Division, and Rod Malone of Rochester, the best back in the Southern Division. Both have rushed for over 1,000 yards this fall.

Fergus Falls will play Vermilion at Ely in Saturday's second semifinal match-up. The Spartans beat the Ironmen 35-25 during the regular season.

State championship game will be played Saturday, Nov. 3, at St. Cloud State University.

MCCC state volleyball tournament starts Friday...

Tough draw awaits Northland

Seven of the losses an 18-10 Northland squad suffered during the 2001 regular season volleyball schedule came at the hands of Northern Division rivals Rainy River and Central Lakes, so a coin flip to determine whether the Pioneers would draw either the Voyageurs or Raiders as a first round foe in the Minnesota Community College Conference state tournament was really rather moot.

The, um, winner, was Rainy River. The Pioneers will face the Voyageurs at 11:30 a.m. Friday to open the round-robin pool play portion of the eight-team event hosted by Rochester.

Northland was 0-5 against Rainy River and 0-2 vs. Central Lakes this fall. The Pioneers' pool play placement was determined by the coin flip. They wound up with Rainy River, Riverland and Rochester. The other grouping includes Central Lakes, Ridgewater, Mesabi Range, and Vermilion.

Pioneers coach Mike Zachow said his team is not backing away from the challenge of meeting their biggest nemesis right out of the gate. "We figure it's our turn to get Rainy River," he said. "They've beaten us every time, but we've been close. We just have to take that next step."

All pool play encounters will be 2-out-of-3 game matches. The championship round will feature 3-out-of-5 game matches.

Four MCCC teams – the top two state tournament finishers from both the Northern and Southern Divisions – will continue their seasons at the regional level.

The two Northern Division qualifiers will meet in a single National Junior College Athletic Association Region 13A tournament match – at the site of the higher state tournament finisher. The top two Southern Division teams will be joined by two Wisconsin schools in a four-team Region 13B tournament. The regional matches will take place the weekend of Nov. 2-3.

Region champions head to the NJCAA Division III national tournament Nov. 9-10 at Rochester.

Becky Bray is named as Player of the Week

Becky Bray, a Northland freshman outside hitter from Thief River Falls, was named Minnesota Community College Conference Northern Division Volleyball Player of the Week for Oct. 15-20.

Bray had 26 kills, 12 digs, 7 blocks, and 2 ace serves in the Pioneers' Northern Division matches against Fergus Falls and Central Lakes.

She led the Northern Division in attack percentage this fall.

Two TRF players are beaten in first round Section 8AA outings

Thief River Falls' two entries in the 2001 Section 8AA girls high school tennis tournament were both eliminated in first round play.

Heather Hanson and Eryn Clow qualified for the individual singles portion of the tournament with top-four finishes during North Sub-Section 8AA play.

Both Prowlers lost to Sartell-St. Stephen players. Hannah Frierichs beat Hanson 6-1, 6-4 and Kerry Snow defeated Clow 6-0, 6-1.

"I thought they played okay," said Thief River Falls coach Sylvia Sjoberg.

Snow went on to win the Section 8AA singles title.

The doubles crown went to Courtney Hover and Kelly Severson of St. Cloud Tech.

Tech was a 4-3 winner over Bemidji in the Section 8AA team finals. The two teams advanced into the state-qualifying championship match by winning titles in North and South Sub-Section 8AA tournaments.

Nordics back in win column for playoffs

Marshall County Central found its winning touch in time for the Section 8 Nine-Man high school football playoffs Saturday, beating Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke 34-14 in a first round game played at Newfolden.

The Nordics opened the 2001 season with three wins and were 5-1 before losing back-to-back regular season-ending games to Kittson Central and Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke, a pair of teams they had beaten earlier.

The 24-6 Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke win over Marshall County Central – the Blue Devils' first win of the year – came on Monday and resulted in a quick post-season rematch five days later.

"We started to come together as a team," said Marshall County Central coach Scott Parker in explaining the turnaround. "We struggled the past two weeks because we weren't playing as one unit."

Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke was looking for a second win in the series when Kjell Johnson opened the scoring on a 40-yard first quarter punt return.

But the Nordics, after going ahead on a 5-yard Jake Anderson run and a Matt Wagner kick, came up with a successful on-side kick and a fumble recovery to take a 19-6 halftime lead.

"We worked on the on-side kick in practice during the week," explained Parker. "We planned to use it on our second or third kick."

The recovered kick set up an 8-yard Anderson touchdown run. Moments later a Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke fumble set up an 11-yard Anderson scoring run.

"We were disappointed," said Blue Devils coach John Wilebski. "We thought we had a chance to put things together and do some good things in the playoffs. But the on-kick caught us by surprise. Then we fumbled, and they scored again. When those things happened – with the losses we had this year – you could see we were in trouble."

Anderson finished with four touchdowns and 169 yards on 22 carries. Louis Peterson added 89 yards and a touchdown on 13 attempts, and Nathan Bennett contributed 60 yards on 11 carries for a Marshall County Central offense that gained 349 yards on the ground and picked up 63 more on 4-for-10 passing.

"We moved the ball on the ground," noted Parker. "The kids up front did a nice job. Our backs were three yards down the field before they would be touched."

Wilebski noticed. "Their offensive line beat our defensive line," he said.

Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke tried to counter with a 20-carry, 151-yard rushing performance by Cory Ostby, but couldn't keep pace with the Nordics' attack.

"Defensively, we bent at times, but we didn't break," said Parker.

Marshall County Central will be trying to secure its first-ever appearance in the section title game Saturday in a 1:30 p.m. semifinal match-up with East Grand Forks Sacred Heart Saturday at Newfolden. The Nordics beat the Eagles twice during the regular season, 22-16 and 18-14.

"We've had two close games with them," said Parker. "If we can play our game, minimize our mistakes, and not worry about the little things, then I think we can do well."

The winners will play either Stephen-Argyle or Kittson Central in the Section 8 finals Friday, Nov. 2, at the Alerus Center.

Mustangs' season ends with 22-6 playoff defeat

Red Lake County Central fell behind early and never recovered Saturday in a 22-6 Section 8 Nine-Man high school football playoff game loss to host East Grand Forks Sacred Heart.

The third-seeded Eagles scored on their first two possession for a 16-0 scoreboard head start against the No. 6-seeded Mustangs.

Red Lake County Central regrouped and cut the difference to 16-6 at halftime, only to see Sacred Heart score on its first drive of the third quarter to squash the Mustangs' comeback hopes.

"We had trouble stopping them on those first two drives," pointed out Red Lake County Central coach Gary Brantl. "We made some adjustments and did a pretty good job after that. But they scored on their first possession of the third quarter, and we never got back in it."

The Mustangs' hopes of advancing into the semifinals faded when three scoring opportunities ended with a fumble that went through the end zone for a touchback; a fumble that was lost inside the 5-yard line; and the failure to to pick up a first down on a fourth-and-inches snap from at the Eagles' 10-yard line.

"We did some good things at times, but not on a consistent basis," explained Brantl. "Turnovers and penalties – things that have been a problem for us all year – cost us again. You can't win playoff games when you make those kinds of mistakes."

Red Lake County Central finished the year 2-7 overall.

The Mustangs netted 213 yards worth of offense. A 136-yard ground game included Adam Koralewski with 70 yards on 14 carries and Mitch Rystad with 55 yards on 10 attempts. Carl Dugstad and Doug Melby were a combined 5-for-15 passing for 77 yards. Three pass receptions by Ryan Paradis totaled 46 yards.

Thor Vettleson was in on 11 tackles, including a quarterback sack, to lead the Red Lake County Central defense. Wade Longtin and Paradis both had a hand in 10 tackles, while Koralewski had 9 stops and Jeremiah Willett had 7.

Battle lines drawn in waterfowl regulation's process...

State DNR opposes southern move

In a surprise move the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service recently proposed an extension of duck seasons to Jan. 31 in the southern Mississippi Flyway. This proposal was published in the Oct. 10, 2001, Federal Register.

"We have seen some ugly things regarding the politics of waterfowl regulations in recent years, but this is a new low for the special interests that have influenced the Fish and Wildlife Service to propose this change," said Tim Bremicker, director of the Wildlife Division for the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources.

"Duck seasons have been selected and published for all states, including the southern states, but the politics to benefit southern waterfowl hunters at the expense of ducks and waterfowl hunters in other states continues," Bremicker said.

The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service did not offer any explanation for the proposed change, but states in the Federal Register, "Upon reconsideration, the Service proposes to change the previously established 'liberal' alternative for the Lower Region of the Mississippi Flyway to provide for a framework opening date no earlier than Sept. 29 and a closing date no later than Jan. 31, with no reduction (offset) in season length or bag limit. We will announce a final regulatory alternative for the Lower Region of the Mississippi Flyway following a public comment period."

Lower Region of the Mississippi Flyway includes the states of Mississippi, Louisiana, Alabama, Arkansas, Kentucky and Tennessee.

Driven by Mississippi, southern states have wanted to hunt ducks later into the winter for many years. Trent Lott, the powerful senator from Mississippi, has led the charge. In 1998, Lott was successful at attaching language on a budget bill that allowed southern Mississippi Flyway states to hunt later in January. The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service then allowed a later framework, but with a nine-day reduction in total duck season length. The nine-day penalty was designed to make the later duck season harvest neutral (to not increase harvest). This option was selected by the states of Mississippi, Alabama and Tennessee, and has been allowed by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service since then. Last year, Mississippi hunters harvested a record number of ducks, and for the first time since record keeping began in the early 1960s, Mississippi harvested more ducks than hunters in Minnesota.

"Duck hunters in Mississippi and other southern Mississippi Flyway states are among the most successful in the United States, but I guess that is not enough," Bremicker noted. "The interests of hunters in other states and long-term waterfowl conservation have been ignored by this proposal.

"I encourage Minnesota duck hunters, duck hunters in other states, and others who care about the waterfowl resource, to write the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service and oppose the season extension for the southern Mississippi Flyway states," Bremicker said.

Comments should be sent to: Chief, Division of Migratory Bird Management, U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, Department of the Interior, ms 634, ARLSQ, 1849 C Street NW, Washington, DC 20240.

"I recommend that hunters also send their comments to Gail Norton, Secretary of Interior," Bremicker added.

Maps made available from Minnesota DNR

Fall is a favorite season for many Minnesotans, who like to take advantage of the moderate weather and bug-free skies to spend time outdoor. Minnesota Department of Natural Resources has produced a series of 51 Public Recreation Information Maps (PRIM) to help guide outdoor enthusiasts to the many hunting, hiking and recreation areas across the state.

Each PRIM map covers a specific section of the state and identifies state recreation trails, state and national forests, state and national parks, scientific and natural areas, boat accesses, canoe and boating routes, fishing piers, campgrounds and more.

The maps cost $4.95 each and are available from Minnesota's Bookstore, 117 University Avenue in St. Paul and can be ordered by phone toll-free outside at 800-657-3757.

To view an index of PRIM maps that are available, visit www.minnesotasbookstore.com <http://www.minnesotasbookstore.com>.

Minnesota's Bookstore is part of the State of Minnesota Department of Administration and distributes state government publications, including highway maps, lake-depth maps, laws, rules and building codes. Minnesota's Bookstore also carries a wide selection of books and guides on Minnesota history, cuisine, culture, humor, nature, recreation and wildlife.

Baiting deer by hunters illegal

Minnesota Department of Natural Resources reminds hunters that no person may place or use bait for the purpose of taking deer.

"I'm getting a lot of complaints about folks setting up illegal deer baiting sites," said Conservation Officer Marty Stage of Babbitt. "Conservation officers in other areas of the state told me they are also receiving calls on deer baiting, so it seems to be a wide-ranging problem. Baiting deer is illegal."

"Bait" is defined as grain, fruit, vegetables, nuts, hay or other food transported and placed for the purpose of attracting or enticing deer. This restriction does not apply to foods resulting from normal or accepted farming, forest management, wildlife management, orchard management, or similar land management activities. Liquid scents, salt and minerals are not considered bait, according to Ed Boggess, DNR Wildlife Division assistant director.

"Deer baiting has been illegal in Minnesota since 1991, when the DNR acted to avoid the types of baiting-associated problems here that we were seeing developing to the east of us, particularly in Michigan," Boggess said. "Michigan historically had no restrictions on baiting. As it became highly popular there, we were told it literally changed the traditional methods of deer hunting. Even those who had no particular interest in baiting found that they had to become bait hunters to compete for the deer in local areas where baiting was occurring," Boggess said.

Recently, concerns for the spread of disease have led to much closer scrutiny of this activity, even in Michigan, where tuberculosis in some areas of the lower peninsula has been a problem in deer, elk and cattle.

Deer Baiting Questions

The following provides answers to some of the common questions regarding restrictions on the use of bait for deer hunting:

Q. Do mineral or salt blocks constitute bait?

A. No. Salt and mineral blocks are exempted, as are scents. However, blocks that contain food materials such as grain or apples are considered as bait.

Q. Can I hunt on a trail that leads to a feeding site?

A. As a general rule, yes, but it depends on whether the food is placed or used for the purpose of taking deer. In that case, if a hunter is within sight of or hunting over the food, it would be considered baiting.

Q. Is corn or grain left in fields or stored in cribs considered bait?

A. No, as long as they are the result of normal farming, wildlife management, or other land management practices. Also, since food must be transported and placed in order to constitute baiting, standing crops and food plots are not bait sites.

Q. How long must food be removed before the site can legally be hunted?

A. There is no time restriction. As long as all the food is removed before hunting at the site, there is no violation.

Q. Can hunters feed wildlife on the same property they are hunting?

A. Yes. The regulation is not intended to restrict deer feeding. However, the location of the feed site and the timing of the feeding, as discussed above, must be considered.

Burning restrictions are lifted by Minnesota DNR

Minnesota Department of Natural Resources lifted all burning restrictions as of 8 a.m. Monday, Oct. 15. Open burning permits had been suspended Sept. 28 in anticipation of the strike by state employees.

Residents needing to burn vegetative material can now acquire a burning permit from state fire wardens or DNR forestry offices.

"The current cool and wet conditions will help in controlling permit fires," said George Meadows, fire prevention coordinator for the DNR Forestry Division. "However," Meadows said, "the DNR reminds people that they must still attend their fires at all times and make sure that a fire is completely out before leaving."

New Home

Rodney and Jody Duden moved into their new home last week, which has been under construction all summer. They built on the farm which belonged to Jody's late grandparents, Al and Lucille Meyer. Congratulations! It's good to have our young people settle in our community.

Birthday

Loren LaFayette celebrated a special birthday on October 10. It was special because his uncle, Art Hemstad, 90 years old, came with his wife, Norma, from Park Rapids, to spend the day and stayed overnight. Other guests were his sister, Violet and Don Page, all the way from Milwaukee, brother Howard, Jeanine Pahlen and daughter, Jody Duden. His wife Helen hosted the party. The next morning they took the Hemstads to breakfast at the Casino and later visited at the Art Frolland home, and with Deb DuChamp at the Creamery.

Arlan, Gerda and Dean Koskela, Evelyn and Albert Tervo visited with Willard and Else Tervo on Thursday evening at Dean's house. They left on Friday for their home in Vancouver, Wash.

Chatting with Harold Vatthauer this morning, he told me of the autumn tour he and Marian had made with a tour group recently. Although they live in Thief River Falls now, they still seem like neighbors. They went to Duluth, Mackinac Island, Toronto, Ottawa, Vermont, Maine, and New York, where they saw the Statue of Liberty from a distance, but were barred from many other places because of the recent disaster. They they visited Pittsburgh, Penn., New Hampshire, had a boat ride at Portland, Maine, and many other places too numerous to mention. It must have been a wonderful trip! We're glad you could go.

Jon and Diane Anderson and boys of Twin Valley spent Saturday at the Joe and Helen Fisher home getting in some firewood and also enjoyed dinner with the folks.

Albert and Evelyn Tervo drove to New York Mills on Saturday to attend the "Pastries Day" and Auxiliary fundraiser for the hospital's Alzheimer unit. They were overnight guests of her sister, Helen and Martin Mursu, and returned home on Sunday.

Lloyd and Wavel Sorenson were among the many who attended the wedding on Saturday of Catherine Rosten and Jeremiah Johnson at the Brooks Catholic Church. The reception and dance were held at the Oklee Hall.

Saturday overnight visitors of Jean Carpenter were granddaughter, Tanya and Jason Haakenson and Jadin of Fargo, N.D. Sunday visitors were Gary and Joan Carpenter of Jamestown, N.D., Lyle, Fern and Ross Carpenter of Bagley, Kim Carpenter of Hawley, Nancy and Danielle Holmes, and Art, Gloria and Mike Fossum. The highlight of the afternoon was a birthday cake served with ice cream in honor of Danielle's birthday. Happy Birthday from all of us!

Sunday visitors of Edna Hyde were Al and Lorraine Fisher, Bunny DuChamp and Eleanor Hodgson.

AAL Meeting

Immanuel's Chapter #10105 of Aid Association for Lutherans met on Sunday morning following the coffee hour at church. President Don Hagen presided with Carole Wright and Connie Hagen bring the reports. Matching funds for recent events have been: $740.00 for the Firemen's spaghetti supper, $800.00 for Immanuel's fall supper, and $800.00 for the benefit dinner for Jim Kelley. Marci Kloety, AAL representative, was put on the centennial committee for the 2004 celebration. There was a variety of correspondence and suggested activities. Plans are being made to welcome new members on November 25. The only change was that Deb DuChamp will replace Carole Wright as secretary. Anyone interested in joining the AAL, a very worthwhile organization, which benefits the church members and the community, would be warmly welcomed. Contact any of the officers.

Redeemer Lutheran Church's Chapter #2444 of AAL also met on Sunday following services. This chapter has been in service much longer than Immanuel's and Laretta Hesse is president. She reported that they had completed all of their projects for the year and earned a Gold Star rating. They had also matched funds for the Kelley benefit, and gave $200.00 for "Boxtops for Education." Two new associate families are needed for the group.

A large crowd attended the benefit dinner for Jim Kelley, held on Sunday noon at the Community Hall and sponsored by the Lions Club, with matching funds from AAL. Jim recently spent ten days in Grand Forks in preparation for his new leg, but was able to be at the hall where many friends greeted him. More power to you, Jim!

Sally Kelley of Phoenix, Ariz., spent four days at the home of her brother, Jim and Judy Kelley, and was here for the benefit dinner. Another special guest was his uncle, Palmer Rundquist of Lancaster.

Inga Linder was a special guest of honor on Sunday at a party hosted by her daughter, Jane and John Kolstoe of rural Oklee. This was a birthday party and was attended by her children, grandchildren, and great-grandchildren. Everyone of them! Happy birthday, Inga!

Hazel [illegible] spent Sunday with family members when her niece, Marcia Clark of Illinois, came to visit her parents, Rose and Robert Peterson of Erskine. They all attended church at St. John's Lutheran in Red Lake Falls, and had the whole day together.

Tricia Willet spent the weekend at the home of her parents Tom and Bec Willett. On Sunday they hosted a belated dinner party to celebrate her graduation from her nursing courses. Guests were Gary and Sue LaCoursiers, Joyce and Carl Magers, Joe Willett, Danny Willett, John, Delaine and Moren Hemmer, Willis Prestegaard, Lloyd and Wavell Sorenson, Tony and Sheila Gerardy and family, Karl and Rita Sorenson and family, Virginia, Mcaulli, Madison and Mackay Berns, Grace Pagnac, and Matt Bruggeman. Congratulations, Tricia!

Herb and Esther Walter spent Sunday evening at the Byer home.

Sincere sympathy is extended to the family of Henry Knott whose funeral was held on Monday at St. Joseph's Catholic Church in Red Lake Falls. He was the brother of Frances Schiefert of Plummer, now in the Northwest Medical Center CNC in Thief River Falls. She was able to attend both the wake and the funeral for him.

Recent visitors of Frances have been Lillian Jervis, Sister Lucille Schaefer, Marie Swanson, Jill and Andy Theis of Glyndon, Marcia Knott, Connie, Joe and Dustin Suko, Joann Delage, Bradley and Pearl Laniel, and most recently, Helen Fisher, on Tuesday.

Mary Ann Gagner and Margaret Greenwald visited Annie Schumacher on Monday. They also were among the many who attended the funeral for Henry Knott on Monday.

Harriet Norman joined the Red Lake County group that toured the Maple Lake area last week. They enjoyed the fall colors, the Russian Village, and lunched at the Erskine Cafe.

Laretta Hesse recently spent two weeks in Elk River with her son, Donnie. Her brother Arnold Schmolzer and his son, Wayne from Kennewick, Wash., came by train and were there for five days. They helped Donnie put in a sprinkler system in his big yard. While they were there they took in a Twins game and got to see the Dome, but the Twins lost so it was disappointing for them.

Birthday for Fern

Fern Hesse celebrated her 75th birthday this past week. On Thursday, October 11, (the actual day) a group of ladies enjoyed a luncheon at the Inn at Maple Crossing, finding it unique and enjoyable. The ladies were Crystal Mertell, Doris Malwitz, Barbara Harmoning, Peggy Hesse, Helen Simpson, Harriet Norman, Theresa Avelsgaard, and the honored guest, Fern.

Floyd and Fern Hesse spent Saturday and Sunday, October 13 and 14 at the Vickie and Ross Olson home in Moorhead. It was the meeting place to celebrate birthdays. Diane Grinde of Elk River on October 13, and Fern on October 14. Floyd [illegible] Diane's day at the Frying Pan. On Sunday was church first and then a big turkey dinner. Flowers and gifts were exchanged. Pat and Bonnie Wichterman of Baldwin, N.D., Jazzmine Wichterman, Dave, Kristi, Ashley and Kelby Jobe of Thief River Falls joined them. A day to remember for Fern! What a blessing to have such great relatives and friends.

MIDDLE ADOLESCENCE (14 TO 16 Years)	PARENT TIPS
Middle adolescence is a time of increasing independence, sexual development, and self-centeredness. The adjustment through middle adolescence can be quite difficult for both parents and teens. Below are some common characteristics of middle adolescence. • Can reach full adult size. • More interest in dating or romantic relationships. • Less interest in family activities. • May spend much time, money and energy trying to improve faces and figures. • Think others are constantly looking at and thinking about them. • May disagree more about everyday issues. • Often challenge limits. • Thinking is less childlike. • Can consider facts and make good decisions • Sensitive to criticism • More food eaten away from home	• Talk with your teens about their friends. Encourage positive relationships. • Give teenagers ideas of creative things to do with their friends. • Set reasonable limits on how often your teens can go out with their friends during the school week, while at the same time recognizing how important friends are at this stage. • Be consistent and fair in enforcing the rules. Make sure they know the rules and negotiate meaningful consequences. • Give praise and recognize positive behavior and accomplishments • Teach and model appropriate ways to show affection • Share your beliefs, concerns, and values about what's going on "out there." • Encourage your teen to call a respected adult friend when they need some advice • Have healthy snacks available • Continue to give hugs and tell them you love them

Voters in S.D. 564 should approve levy referendum

The levy referendum proposed in School District 564 (Thief River Falls) is a good idea and should be approved by voters in the district.

Had circumstances and conditions been the same as they have in the past, I would have given this levy referendum absolutely no chance of passing. However, conditions and circumstances leading to this proposed levy referendum are not the same.

When voters receive their tax notices (and I wish we had our preliminary notices in our hands before this election), property owners will notice that the local levy for basic general education has been eliminated because the state has taken over that responsibility. Regardless of that fact, the funding gaps that remain may put the quality of education students receive here, in jeopardy. In a recent news release, Sen. Roger Moe said, "The overall funding problem throughout the state stems from an inadequate state education budget requested by the Governor last session. His budget lacked sufficient school funding to offset changes in the state's property tax system." I haven't received news releases from the Governor or the House that explain why so many school districts are asking voters to support a levy referendum, but I do not doubt that they have a different take on the reason why referendums are needed by so many districts. Regardless, School District 564 is not alone in proposing a levy referendum. In fact, more than half of all districts in the state are seeking additional funding through levy referendums.

In School District 564 a local contribution of $81,150 will yield total revenue of $436,721, which includes $224,781 in state aid plus $130,790 in equity aid. State and equity aid makes the referendum proposal very attractive. The district receives so much aid and equity aid because it is a "property poor" district. This is one way legislators dealt with identified inequities in the property tax system.

This is a good deal; however, we all know how difficult it is to eliminate a tax increase once it has been approved. That being said, I have confidence that school board representatives have demonstrated fiscal responsibility in handling money taxpayers have already given them. One indicator for you, might be the fact that Thief River Falls is in a better financial position than many other districts.

Another factor that makes this levy referendum proposal more attractive: Except for a farmer's house, garage and one acre, agriculture land is not taxed. This is another way legislators attempted to deal with inequities in the property tax system. With this lessened tax burden, I believe local farmers will be more inclined to support the proposed levy referendum.

Finally, the fact that the levy referendum will be the only issue on the ballot this year, also makes me believe that it will pass. People are more likely to vote when there are controversial issues on the ballot, or when there are a number of candidates vying for one or more seats on a board or council. There will be only one issue on this year's ballot and I'm willing to bet that unless someone starts an aggressive campaign against the issue, voter turnout will be low; and, those who turn out at the polls will be individuals who are more attuned to financial needs of the school district.

The Anthrax scare is an important story but . . .

The fact that someone is sending anthrax through the mail is an important story. It has dire consequences for those who receive this mail, but I wonder if the media haven't overplayed the story.

Ask yourself some questions — has the anthrax scare altered the way you handle your mail? Has the anthrax scare altered your shopping habits? Are you or individuals you know, buying gas masks because they fear biological war? Regardless of the fact that an anthrax outbreak is so far remote to taking place in northwestern Minnesota that it is nearly an impossibility, have you or children you know had nightmares about it?

I think it's time to start writing and reporting on different topics. The continued reporting on anthrax is doing exactly what those who sent the mail wanted.

Farm depression follows global economy

by Willard W. Cochrane professor emeritus
University of Minnesota

The economic slump in the United States is part of a global slump, or worse, a global depression. And the U.S. farm economy, now an integral part of the global economy, cannot revive until the global economy is somehow revived.

The current U.S.-world economic slump is not cyclical. It is a worldwide structural, under-consumption problem and will not be resolved until this is solved.

It took the massive expenditures by government (mostly deficit-financed) in support of the World War II effort to pull the American economy out of the Great Depression. Purchasing power is the willingness and capacity to purchase goods and services. It is possible to widen the purchasing power stream and pull an economy out of a depression by government action if that government has the courage to take the spending efforts that are required.

One can hope that the economic downturn of 2000-2001 need not turn into a second Great Depression. But a restricted flow of purchasing power in 2000-2001 is pushing the global economy, and the U.S. economy with it, down a slippery slope, just as a restricted flow of purchasing power did in 1929-30.

This slide will continue as long as the global economy is plagued by a restricted flow of purchasing power. How far and deep this slide will go, I have no way of knowing. Recessions have a way of feeding on themselves. We see this at work everyday as firms lay off workers (act to restrict the flow of purchasing power) in efforts to save themselves by reducing costs.

Consumer spending in the U.S. remained strong in the summer and fall of 2001, but other components of that flow of purchasing power continue to be weak. Capital spending in the U.S. has hit rock bottom. Expenditures on public goods (education, roads and rapid transit) by government have been weak over the past decade, and are becoming weaker.

Outside of Japan, the wages of workers in the Asian Rim countries are so low that those workers never give a thought to purchasing the many and varied gadgets, clothes and machines that they are producing. The burden of purchasing the plentiful goods being produced in the Asian Rim countries falls almost exclusively on American consumers, and those consumers are heavily laden with debt.

So who is going to purchase all the stuff that this wonderfully productive global system — stretching along the Asian Rim from South Korea to Singapore, including Japan, across India to Israel to Western Europe and then across the U.S. and Canada — can produce? Making use of the most modern technologies, this global production system is turning out products in ever increasing volumes. The range of products is astounding: from electric tooth brushes to Seiko watches, from Nike athletic shoes to designer jeans, from computer components to radios, from Nissan trucks to Lexus automobiles, from scooter bikes to rapid transit railcars, from thousands of miles of fiber optic cable to wood fiber products of all kinds. The list is endless and growing.

American consumers have until now done more than their share in buying this stuff, but that appears to be slowing down. Other segments of the purchasing power stream have been weak, and are becoming weaker. Investments in capital goods are down, as are government expenditures on public goods in the U.S., and consumer expenditures in the Asian Rim countries have never been strong.

As business profits are down and workers are being laid off, purchasing power becomes weaker and we find ourselves in a recession, or perhaps a real depression. And we will remain mired in this economic slump until ways can be found to expand the flow of purchasing power once again. Further, and most importantly, this is a global slump, so the purchasing power stream that we are talking about is a global stream.

To pull out of the global economic slump induced by a restricted flow of purchasing power, the governments of the economic heavy hitters — Japan, Germany, and the U.S. — must embark upon large public works programs financed either through progressive income tax receipts or by budget deficits, thereby widening the flow of purchasing power. I am talking about major efforts to improve educational systems, redesign and rebuild urban transit systems and move to cleaner energy-producing systems.

Complementing these public goods-producing activities should be efforts to reduce income inequalities in the major and emerging economies. In the U.S. this means increasing the minimum wage (perhaps by 50 percent), imposing a wealth tax on the rich and adopting fair trade practices to protect our workers from imports produced under very low wage conditions. Finally, it is time to restructure the farm production plant in the United States along less intensive, more sustainable lines. This means less dependence on export markets, and financing this restructuring job with the funds now going to support the incomes of big crop farmers.

This is what it will take, and perhaps more, to pull the U.S. economy, as a part of the global economy, out of its present slump. It will take time and require major efforts. The global slump will hang on until we find a way to widen purchasing power to where it can purchase what this wondrously productive global production plant can turn out.

What about the impact of the Sept. 11 terrorist attack on the United States? Over the next several months it is likely to be negative, perhaps even importantly negative. Until the uncertainties recede, consumers are likely to cut back on plans to purchase big-ticket items, and businesses are likely to further reduce their investments in capital items. Thus, the short-term effects of the attack appear to augment the line of argument developed in this essay. The longer-run effects are anyone's guess.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Science of secondhand smoke is very clear

To the Editor:

In response to a recent letter to the editor from Mark Moerman: the science of secondhand smoke is very clear. Every year, more than 53,000 non-smokers die from exposure to secondhand smoke, making it the third leading cause of preventable death in the United States (National Cancer Institute). For every eight smokers the tobacco industry kills, it takes one non-smoker with them (Glantz, Stan and Parmley, "Passive Smoking and Health Disease: Epidemiology, Physiology, and Biochemistry," Circulation: 1991; Taylor, A., Johnson, D., and Kazemi, H., "Environmental Heart Disease and Cardiovascular Disease," Circulation: 1992). Exposure to secondhand smoke causes between 35,000 and 62,000 coronary heart disease deaths each year in the United States (National Cancer Institute, 1999).

Among the scientific community, there is no doubt that secondhand smoke causes death and disease. The only ones who would have you believe otherwise is the tobacco industry. The industry has been documented over the years for creating junk science disputing the harms of tobacco. In fact, the group FORCES Minnesota, a source Mark cited to dispute the facts about secondhand smoke, is a well-known front group speaking for the tobacco industry. Much of the secondhand smoke information cited on junkscience.com and skepticism.com, comes from Steven Milloy, one of the most documented tobacco industry researchers there is. He was paid for years by Phillip Morris to produce false research questioning the deadly impact of tobacco and secondhand smoke.

You say that Citizens For Smoke Free Air should think twice about forcing their dislikes on the citizens of northwest Minnesota. Smokers are restricted from smoking in many public places and have adapted. In fact, smokers have signed their endorsement of Citizens For Smoke Free Air. This is not about taking away the smokers' right to smoke. It is about asking them to do it in a manner that doesn't harm or kill others. What is truly illogical is expecting restaurants to continue to accommodate the 20 percent of Minnesotans who smoke at the risk of 80 percent of nonsmokers who suffer and sometimes die from this exposure. It is because of the true hazards associated with secondhand smoke that every restaurant in the entire state of California went smoke free. It is because of these proven hazards that, here in Minnesota, people have begun to expect more from their individual community.

You decide who you want to believe: Homer Simpson or the US Surgeon General.

Sincerely,
Tammy Hansen

Sen. LeRoy Stumpf: The Time is right for biodiesel and ethanol

by Sen. LeRoy Stumpf

September 11 will long be remembered not only for the horrific scenes of devastation on the East Coast, but also for giving us a glimpse of fear-driven panic right here at home. That evening, as rumors of $6-per-gallon gas spread coast-to-coast, we saw lines at gas stations stretching for blocks as a wave of panic buying spread across the nation.

While the huge jumps in gas prices have not yet materialized (in fact, average gas prices have dropped slightly statewide since the attacks), the recent events again have us thinking about our nation's dependence on foreign sources of petroleum and about seeking smart solutions to our energy needs.

It is my firm belief that America's response to the recent terrorist attacks should include stepped-up development of alternative energy sources such as biodiesel and ethanol.

Now, more than ever, we need to pursue strategies which will make our nation strong. The development of farm-based fuels would be a step in that direction. It would help our sluggish farm economy and move us forward to reduce our reliance on foreign sources of oil.

I am proud to have been a strong supporter of a bill in the 2001 legislative session that would have required the use of low-level blends of biodiesel fuel in heavy duty machinery and equipment. While the legislation failed to become law in 2001, this is an initiative that is gathering momentum and I will continue to work to bring an ethanol plant to northwestern Minnesota and will support future efforts to these ends.

Biodiesel is a clean-burning alternative fuel made from renewable fats or oils which are derived from farm commodity products such as soybeans. It can be burned in any diesel vehicle and performs much like petroleum diesel but is non-toxic and biodegradable.

I stand with farmers in our region and throughout the state in championing the production of ethanol throughout rural Minnesota. Ethanol production has become one of the state's most successful economic development initiatives in rural communities. The industry has created good-paying jobs for workers in ethanol plants and has established viable new markets for corn growers. In shaky economic times, we need to take a look at whether we should continue to boost ethanol production for the good of the farm economy and for the good of our long-term fuel supplies.

Minnesota travelers buy about 250 million gallons of ethanol each year, which is 10 percent of the total fuel consumed in the state. Ethanol plants are currently located in Marshall, Morris, Winnebago, Winthrop, Benson, Claremont, Bingham Lake, Buffalo Lake, Melrose, Preston, Luverne, Little Falls, Albert Lea and St. Paul. The state's next ethanol plant should be located in northwestern Minnesota, which would use our abundant wheat and barley resources in fuel production.

The state of Minnesota can help address emerging fuel market demands elsewhere in the United States. The federal government has required states to sell fuels containing oxygen in order to reduce ground level ozone. Ethanol is one of only two "oxygenated" fuels which meet the federal requirements. The other fuel MTBE is being banned in a number of states as the result of developing information about the risks it may present to the environment and to human health.

Minnesota is in an excellent position to capture new ethanol markets during this time of economic uncertainty. And from a national defense standpoint as we prepare for a war against terrorism, it makes sense to reduce America's reliance on foreign oil. We can apply our Minnesota ethanol know-how to reach emerging new markets and to help our nation increase its energy resources.

CITY POLITICS
Warming Up as the Date of Election Gets Near.
CONTESTS FOR ALL
And Very Few Know Where They Are At.

"City politics continue to be the absorbing subject of conversation and probably will be until the polls close on the evening of November 5th. Petitions to be placed upon the official ballot can be filed with the city clerk up to 12 o'clock Saturday evening, October 26.

"The contest for mayor between Frank H. Kratka and S. T. Johnson is a friendly one; neither candidate is losing any sleep over the result.

"Either N. W. Tarrant or W. C. Smiley would fill the office of municipal judge in a creditable manner. They may not have a knowledge of technical law points, but they possess honesty, common sense and good judgement, and that is an important qualification.

"This city does not possess a more progressive man than Charles A. Robbecke and the fact that he has consented to become a candidate for alderman-at-large is exceedingly good news. The fact that Mr. Robbecke has been so successful in conducting his own business is the best reason he should be asked to help run the city's affairs and his fair dealing and upright life in this city for a long term of years has won him the confidence and respect of the entire community. He is a good man and will surely be elected by a large majority.

"The fight for alderman from the Third Ward will probably be between A. B. Helgeson and S. F. Staples, although Frank Bourque and H. E. Mussey are mentioned as possible candidates. Mr. Bourque is a fighter and, if he decided to enter the race, would make things decidedly interesting."

Evangelical Church Notes 50th Birthday

"The fiftieth anniversary of the Evangelical Free church of this city will be observed next Sunday, October 28. On March 21, 1901 the local congregation was organized with nine charter members: Solomon Bergstrom, Ole Nylius, Andrew Rindal, Carsten Christensen, Knut Jorsted, Ed Myreven, L. Ulstad, Martin Brude and Hans Johnson.

"The site on Horace avenue was purchased and the present building erected in the fall of the same year. For several years the church was served by an elder elected annually, S. Bergstrom being the first elected to that position, together with visiting evangelists. The Rev. Bot Nyberg was the first pastor from 1918 to 1923 when he was succeeded by Rev. J. O. Jacobson, present pastor, who has served the past 28 years."

"The fiftieth anniversary will be noted in two services on Sunday at 11:00 a.m. and 2:30 p.m. Speakers will be John Christensen, Bagley, Minnesota, who served as elder of the church in the year 1917, Rev. Thorvald Myhrer, Newfolden, and Mrs. Lina Rindal, the only ones remaining from the early days of its organization. A brief history of the church will also be read and an offering received for the building fund."

Nearly 300 Girls And Boys To Vie In Window Painting

"A total of 281 local boys and girls responded enthusiastically to the invitation extended by the Merchants' committee of the Civic and Commerce association to participate in the store window painting contest to be held in connection with the community Halloween festival sponsored by the Lions club.

"Glenn Carlson, C & C secretary, who handled the registration, stated that 125 windows had been set aside for the young artists, who will apply the decorations tonight and Thursday evenings, working mostly in teams of three. Judging will be done Friday and cash prizes will be awarded. Sponsors of the contest appealed to the public not to molest the window paintings, which will be kept on display until Halloween next Wednesday, October 31."

First Snow Visits Area Last Friday

"A white blanket briefly covered the ground in this locality last Friday, when a light snow fell, serving as a reminder of the imminent arrival of winter. Gunder Legvold Gets Deer With Bow And Arrow

"Seven members of the Thief River Falls Archery club spent the past weekend hunting deer with bow and arrow on Madeleine Island off the shore of Wisconsin in Lake Superior. One of the group, Gunder Legvold, succeeded in bringing down his quarry, a two-year-old doe. Others in the party were Mrs. Legvold, Mr. and Mrs. Dale Jensen, Mr. and Mrs. Loran Lord and Ted Kusmak. Chamber backs school levy request

Thief River Falls Chamber of Commerce board of directors has approved a resolution supporting School District 564's efforts to adopt a new levy.

Grant Wentz, chairman of the board of directors for the Chamber of Commerce, said the board unanimously approved the resolution. After receiving information about the levy referendum from the Superintendent of Schools in Thief River Falls, Irv Peterson, the board decided that the levy referendum was probably the best way to leverage a large amount of state aid.

At a meeting in October, the board approved the following resolution:

"The Thief River Falls Chamber of Commerce Board of Directors is in favor of the proposed referendum levy for School District 564 based on the following facts:

"• Whereas the proposed referendum dollars will be used to maintain a financially healthy district in a changing economy, help maintain class sizes, keep and expand electives to meet student needs, maintain personnel and programs and keep technology current;

"• Whereas the proposed local levy tax effort of 19 percent ($81,150) will yield state aid of 81 percent ($355,571) for the school district;

"• Whereas property taxes attributed to the school district will go down dramatically, even if this referendum passes;

"• Whereas the previous levy referendum passed in 1997 has been eliminated;

City sells property to ODC

■ ODC plans to pursue development of property adjacent to current facility

The Thief River Falls City Council approved the sale of property in the Oxbow First Addition to the Occupational Development Center, Inc at its regular meeting on October 23.

At the Council meeting, it was noted that ODC withdrew the original proposal to have the property rezoned from light industrial to general industrial. However, President Chief Executive Officer of ODC, Peter Lavalier said the ODC wishes to purchase the property from the city, and pursue development within the existing zoning. The property in question is 18 acres owned by the city, and is next to ODC's administrative offices on the east side of Highway 32, south of Thief River Falls.

Proposed construction on the property consists of a two-phase expansion of wood processing facilities. Phase one is scheduled to begin next spring.

Lavalier said it was decided that it wasn't necessary to rezone the property. It will be relatively easy to comply with the light industrial zoning, and he said "it will work well for the residents."

Under light industrial zoning, production needs to be conducted in buildings. Storage also needs to be fully screened by a sight obscuring screen. Proposals for screening included a 10-foot high fence facing Highway 32 and the south side of the property, and a six-foot fence on the east side, with a tree buffer and a 300-foot piece of land.

Lavalier said they haven't "cast anything in stone in terms of style," and "want to be good neighbors." He mentioned that the ODC is open to discussing the type of screening used.

There was concern expressed that Mark Boulevard will not be able to handle heavy traffic, and that the cost of maintaining the road would fall on Rocksbury Township. Estimated cost of fixing the road so it is able to handle heavy traffic is $16,000.

Lavalier said that ODC has no intention of damaging the road, and he would personally pay for the road to be fixed.

The City Council approved the hiring of two Firefighters to fill existing vacant positions. Rick Beier and Blair Lund will start on November 11, and are both volunteer firefighters. Interviews for the positions were conducted on October 22.

The City Council approved the following items from its agenda: authorize payment of second half of October bills; variance request from Earl and Loreen Gibson, 106 Fosse Court; certificate of survey for Arthur and Betty Erickson, Route 3; preliminary concept plan and plat for Midwest Minnesota Community Development Corporation and Rebecca Hilderbrand; adopt the assessment roll for the 2001 Street and Utilities Improvement Project with revisions to Lantern Restaurant property assessment; adopt the assessment roll for the 2001

Happy Halloween

▶ Most of the snow from last week's blizzard has melted. This snowy pumpkin appeared in stark contrast to the snowy background of that event. It was hanging in a tree at the Doris Werciniak residence on First Street in Thief River Falls. Parents and children are hoping that there won't be a repeat tonight of last week's blizzard.

Processing a pumpkin into a Jack O'Lantern was a job soon-to-be three-year-old Brock Jacobson discovered he could sink his spoon (and later, his hands) into. Brock, the son of John and ReeAnn Jacobson, joined siblings Jordan and Whitney Monday evening in their annual family pumpkin-carving tradition. A photo of the Jacobson children and their finished creations can be found on Page 4 of this edition of The Times.

School District to offer diplomas to W.W. II vets

by Kathi Carlson
Reporter

Receiving his high school diploma was one of the proudest moments of Lealand Vettleson's life. So much so, that his family noted the fact in his recent obituary.

According to the abbreviated history of his life, Lealand was the first World War II veteran to receive his high school diploma through a special program initiated in the Warroad school district in 1999.

Next spring, World War II veterans from Pennington county will also have the opportunity to receive this honor at a special program in May. The decision to reward high school diplomas to World War II veterans was made at a recent board of education meeting after its suggestion by board member Barb Kalinoski.

Kalinoski had read about last year's Veterans Day program and graduation ceremony in Greenbush and believes that it will be, not only a significant way to honor area World War II veterans, but a meaningful experience for Thief River Falls students. However, in order that veterans have time to sign up to receive their diplomas, it has been decided that the first Thief River Falls veterans' graduation program would be held in May next year.

During World War II, numerous young men and women left high school to serve in the American armed forces in Europe and the South Pacific, and some did not earn their General Educational Development (GED) diplomas or further their educations when they returned home.

To honor these men and women,

Court receives not guilty plea in letter case

Wendy Louise Lehrer, 47, Thief River Falls, entered a plea of not guilty before the Pennington County Court on October 22.

She faces felony charges for making terroristic threats. The official complaint issued against Lehrer stated that on September 24, 2001, she sent letters to members of the Thief River Falls high school athletic community, the Thief River Falls School Superintendent, KTRF radio, and the Thief River Falls Times. The letters were described as terroristic in nature, and were intended to threaten others. The complaint was brought by the State of Minnesota on October 10.

Lehrer was ordered to stay away from the school, and have no contact with victims. The victims' names are not being released at this time. It was also ordered that she is not to possess firearms, and is to remain law abiding, appear in court when ordered, and keep in contact with her lawyer. A pre-trial date has been set for November 26. Lehrer is being represented by Robert Wallner from Fuller, Wallner and Anderson Ltd., out of Bemidji. Wallner was unavailable for comment.

The letters specifically named a high school football game to be played between Thief River Falls and Hibbing on October 17 at Hibbing. A copy of one of the letters stated "a group of Afgahni supporters" were planning to attack the football game on October 17, and that the game should be moved to Thief River Falls or be cancelled. It read, "You are now warned-choose not to act and the blood will be on your hands-not mine."

Thief River Falls School Superintendent Irv Peterson said the school district received a letter around September 24 threatening terroristic actions.

"Whenever you get a letter like that you don't know if its fake or something to be taken seriously," said Peterson. "We certainly did take it seriously."

Peterson said the Thief River Falls Police Department was contacted immediately, and the matter was placed in their hands for investigation.

Arctic Cat Inc. reports record sales, earnings

Arctic Cat Inc. has reported results for the fiscal 2002 second quarter and six months ended September 30, 2001.

Net sales increased 11 percent to $218,948,000 for the 2002 second quarter versus $197,074,000 for the same period last year. Net earnings rose nine percent to $20,332,000 or 84 cents per diluted share, for the second quarter compared to net earnings of $18,606,000, or 76 cents per diluted share, reported for the second quarter of fiscal 2001.

"We are pleased with the record sales and net earnings achieved this quarter, which are the highest of any quarter in our company's history," said Christopher A. Twomey, president and chief executive officer. "Arctic Cat posted double-digit sales growth in all areas of the business: snowmobiles, all-terrain vehicles (ATVs), and parts, garments and accessories."

Commenting on Arctic Cat's ATV and snowmobile businesses, Twomey said: "We gained further market share in the ATV segment, as our ATV sales continued to outpace the U.S. industry's double-digit growth rate. As part of our ATV line extension, we recently introduced a fully automatic ATV model, the Arctic Cat 375cc, that just reached our dealers. We expect retail sales of this model to further enhance our rapid growth in this industry. In our snowmobile business, the retail season is just beginning and our dealers are reporting encouraging early season retail sales activity. In fact, extra early orders, which are retail orders accompanied by a cash downpayment, have increased 30 percent over last year. Additionally, increased attendance at all the major snowmobile consumer shows and events continues to demonstrate strong consumer interest this year, which we expect will boost retail sales of Arctic Cat snowmobiles."

During the second quarter, the company repurchased 423,000 shares of common stock and Arctic Cat has now repurchased over 6 million shares under three share repurchase authorizations. The company has approximately 1.5 million additional shares remaining under its current repurchase authorization and plans to continue to buy shares from time to time in the market.

Outlook

Arctic Cat's outlook for fiscal 2002 remains positive and unchanged despite the current uncertain economic environment.

Said Twomey, "We anticipate that fiscal 2002 snowmobile revenues will increase 10 to 15 percent based on orders already received, and low dealer inventories. We also continue to expect that ATV revenues will increase during this fiscal year, and that our retail sales will again outpace the industry. As a result, we expect to report continued record-breaking revenues and increased earnings in the year ahead."

From January through September, the library listed a different author each week. Every time someone checked out a book by that author, he or she was given an entry registration for the drawing. Goldesberry noted that he had participated nearly every week. "I've always been interested in books and authors," he said. "This (the library program) was an incentive to get me to read books by authors I had not previously read." He noted also that, while he had read books by the majority of the authors, he was pleasantly surprised to be introduced to such authors as Robin Cook and Nelson DeMille. Goldesberry was also pleased to be reacquainted with the works of Roald Dahl and says he plans to read more of these authors as well as those authors he's enjoyed in years past. The Author of the Week drawing was part of the library's 100th birthday activities.

Agassiz Lost Bay Habitat drive closes for season

The Lost Bay Habitat Drive and Maakstad Hiking Trail at Agassiz National Wildlife Refuge will close on Wednesday, October 31, and remain closed until spring 2002.

Visitors may continue to observe wildlife along Marshall County Road 7, which bisects the southern portion of the refuge, and along other roads bordering the refuge. Some of the resident wildlife species observed, heard, or signs of their presence observed during the winter months, are moose, deer, otter, fisher, common ravens, black-billed magpies, downy and hairy woodpeckers, white-breasted nuthatches, ruffed grouse and several other species of birds and mammals, which remain active during the winter months. Deer usually can be observed at Headquarters during morning or evening when they are most active. Visitors are encouraged to stop at the refuge office to observe birds visiting the bird feeder and to report wildlife sightings to refuge personnel.

The refuge staff hopes that everyone who visited the refuge during the summer months enjoyed the plant species making up each habitat type and wildlife species living in each habitat along the drive and hiking trail. The drive will open again approximately May 1, 2002.

The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service is the principal federal agency responsible for conserving, protecting and enhancing fish, wildlife and plants and their habitats for the continuing benefit of the American people.

Foster parents encouraged to become adoptive parents

To launch Adoption Month, the Minnesota Department of Human Services, counties and adoption agencies invite families and prospective adoptive parents to celebrate the adoption of children under state guardianship at "Celebrate Adoption: A Circus of the Heart."

First Lady Terry Ventura will welcome families in her opening remarks at the event at the Earle Brown Heritage Center in Brooklyn Center on November 4 from 1 to 4 p.m. During this month, they're encouraging people, especially foster parents, to consider becoming adoptive parents.

Hundreds of families are expected to attend the fourth annual celebration. Games, refreshments, face painting, pony rides and special appearances by team mascots, including the Minnesota Twins' TC Bear and the Minnesota Timberwolves' Crunch, will entertain families at this free event. Adoption experts will be available to answer prospective adoptive parents' questions and provide information on adopting children under state guardianship.

Prospective adoptive parents who would like more information about adopting a child under state guardianship may contact their county social service agency or the Minnesota Adoption Resource Network at 612-861-7115.

In Minnesota, 59 percent of the children under state guardianship who were adopted in 2000 were adopted by relatives or foster parents.

Adoptions of children under state guardianship have increased steadily over the past five year. Families adopted 417 children under state guardianship in 1997 and 636 in 2000. Minnesota increased adoptions of children under state guardianship by 14 percent in the past federal fiscal year.

In 2000, foster parents cared for almost 11,500 children in Minnesota; most of them returned home. However, today more than 650 of those children are waiting for a family to adopt them because they cannot safely return to their birth families. Most are 6 to 18 years old and sibling groups who need to remain together when adopted. Most have special needs.

"Foster parents provide the love, nurturing and stability children need when they must leave their homes, if only for a short time," said Erin Sullivan Sutton, assistant commissioner of Children's Services for the Minnesota Department of Human Services. "If children cannot return safely to their homes, we must find them permanent homes quickly. Foster parents are often the ideal candidates for becoming adoptive parents because they can provide the continuous and stable care that children need, ensuring that children are not moved once again to another home."

Tips for having a safe Halloween

For most kids, Halloween is ringing doorbells, gathering treats, and venturing out as fearless, and often thumb-sucking, monsters. For parents, it can be a time of caution and concern.

The Thief River Falls Police Department is advising extra caution this Halloween in spite of recent events that have occurred across the nation.

It recommends that parents accompany children as they go door to door, and to visit familiar homes. If there are any questions or concerns regarding candy, it is suggested that parents feel free to contact police. It is also recommended that treats are not eaten until they are examined by a parent, check wrapper of pre-packaged candy for signs of tampering and throw-away anything unwrapped.

The Minnesota Safety Council and the Minnesota Department of Public Safety encourage parents and children to take all safety precautions to ensure an injury-free trick-or-treat.

"While Halloween is a very special event for children, it's also traditionally a dangerous night for child pedestrians," said Amy Carroll-Olson, coordinator of the Minnesota SAFE KIDS Coalition.

To address that and other safety issues particular to Halloween, the Minnesota Safety Council recommends the following safety tips.

For increased visibility, attach retro-reflective tape, fabric, or decorative patches to costumes and trick-or-treat bags.

Children should be taught basic pedestrian safety rules, including when and where to cross a street, and to never dart out into the street.

Drivers should be particularly alert on Halloween and watch for children on the street, in alleys and crossing driveways.

To help prevent falls, face paint can be used instead of masks, and costumes can be made short enough to prevent tripping. Flashlights can be provided, and advise children not to cut across yards where tripping hazards may be hidden in the dark.

Choose costumes that are flame resistant. Avoid baggy sleeves and billowing skirts, which may be a hazard around candles. Keep candles, matches, lighters and jack-o'-lanterns with candles out of children's reach.

Visit the Minnesota Safety Council's website at www.mnsafetycouncil.org/kids/index.htm for more information.

Family tradition keeps spirit of Halloween alive

Heartwarming family ritual provides enjoyment for the entire family

by Kathi Carlson
Reporter

During a time when listening to the evening news is enough to send chills up and down one's spine, it was particularly heartwarming this year to spend an hour or so with members of a local family as they participated in their annual ritual of carving Jack O' Lanterns.

No pleading was necessary for RaeAnn Jacobson to invite this reporter into their home to observe her family partake in the pumpkin process. RaeAnn is a hairdresser at Creative Clippers, and husband John is a loan officer with the Farm Service Agency of the US Department of Agriculture. Their three children are Jordan, an eighth grader at Franklin Middle School, Whitney, a fourth grade student at Challenger Elementary, and Brock, who will be three in a few days.

Several layers of ever-useful newspapers covered the surface of the Jacobson's dining room table where the activity took place.

As she used a spoon and sometimes her hands to pull the gooey guts from the insides of her oversized pumpkin, Whitney informed me that the ritual is the same every year. The kids clean out their pumpkins and design faces on them with markers, dad does the actual carving, and mom takes photographs. (While it was wasn't discussed and I didn't stick around long enough to find out, instinct and experience tell me that mom cleans up the mess as well.)

When asked what they were going dress up as, Whitney was only too excited to model her costume, a pants and vest ensemble that mom had sewn from some psychedelic-looking fabric that was commonplace during the 1960's era. With a wig, some jewelry and small, round sunglasses, Whitney made for a very cool-looking hippie.

Almost-three-year-old Brock declared proudly that he was going to be "Bob, the Builder," a character, I guess, on a popular television show for kids.

Time with the Jacobson brought back a host of warm memories, both of my own childhood and the years when I was sewing costumes, baking cookies and overseeing my young family's pumpkin carving ritual.

It's said that Halloween is second only to Christmas as being children's favorite holiday. Obviously, the anonymity felt when wearing a costume and the opportunity to go door-to-door and issue that "Trick or Treat" threat is as appealing today as it was years ago.

Halloween History

The celebration that we know as Halloween began thousands of years ago, when ancient tribal people, who only knew the seasons of the year, harvested and stored their food and brought their animals in from the fields as they felt the air grow cooler and witnessed the daylight hours becoming shorter and shorter. Once prepared for winter, they held gatherings with bonfires, dancing and drumming, celebrating the harvest while petitioning the gods to keep them warm and safe in the cold, dark days to come.

Centuries later, Celtic people celebrated four fire festivals throughout the year, including Samhain, the Celtic New Year. While the true meaning of the word Samhain (pronounced sah-ween) is unknown, a Scottish-Gaelic dictionary defines it as "summer's end." According to legend, Samhain and Beltane, the fire festival of spring, represented magical fissures in time during which the living were allowed to enter the land of the dead.

The old Celts considered Samhain a very spiritual time, believing that the veil between the worlds of the living and dead was very thin. Honoring the dead, the Celtic people invited them to return to feast and lit bonfires to warm and welcome them. The bonfires were also lit to keep less friendly spirits — ghosts, fairies and demons — away.

In addition to being a time to honor their ancestors, Samhain was also a time for divination, fortune-telling and making new year's resolutions.

When the Romans came, some of the old Samhain customs were incorporated into their November 1 rituals that honored Pomona, the goddess of the fruits of trees.

Later, as the Christian church rose to power, priests taught the people that the Celt-honored fairies and ghosts were horrible ghouls, demons and devils. Christian priests also tried to change people and their customs by celebrating Christian holidays along side the pagan ones.

By AD 601, church officials realized that they were fighting a losing battle and Pope Gregory I issued an edict to his missionaries directing that, rather than try to obliterate those beliefs, they were to incorporate ancient rituals into church dogma. Samhain became "All Hallows Eve."

Over the years, October 31 came to be know by a variety of names, including Samhain, Eve of All Saints, Hallowtide, Hallowmass, Eve of All Hallows, Hallow Even and eventually, Halloween.

As people came to America so did the customs and practices associated with Halloween. Early settlers gathered in the fall and celebrated fairs that included the judging of livestock and homemade products, games, races, fortune-telling and bonfires. For the most part, the holiday was a local event with the social and religious structure of individual communities determining regional customs.

Through the years, some customs and practices were discarded while others became more elaborate and enduring, and Halloween, as we know it, became a cultural, rather than a religious, holiday.

Still, most of the customs enjoyed today have history behind their origins.

"Trick or Treat"

The modern practice of going door-to-door in search of treats is an adaptation of the Celtic Samhain tradition of leaving food on the doorstep as an offering to honor the dead. It also involves the ancient custom of house-begging, a practice which involved going from house to house offering some sort of performance — reciting a poem or singing a song — for some sort of reward — pastries, apples or maybe a coin or two

In Ireland, people went from house to house, begging for food for a community feast and materials to build a bonfire. Those who gave generously ("treats") were promised blessings for the coming year, and the stingy were threatened with plagues of bad luck ("tricks").

Costumes

Scholars continue to argue over the origins of this custom. While some say costumes were worn to scare off the "nasties" found traveling throughout the realm of this night, others say costumes were worn to bring their wearers closer to the spirit world. Still others claim that the costume custom began when people started dressing up like the fairies, witches and devils they believed walked the land on Halloween, performing antics for food and drink.

Witches, Cats and Bats

It was believed that a witch wore black to be like the night with a pointed hat that directed energy from higher dimensions to her mind and down through her body. The broom, believed to be the witch's chosen mode of transportation, symbolized the ability to blend home life with travel to other spiritual dimensions.

Cats became infamous with Halloween because of their ability to sense the presence of the deceased. Black cats are given special attention because the color black is associated with the Crone, the goddess honored by ancient and modern pagans this time of year. It was also believed that a witch could assume the shape of a cat, but do so only nine times during her lifetime.

Bats were associated with witches because it was believed they both came out at night and disappeared during the day. Bats also seemed mystical because of their ability to fly at night without bumping into things.

Jack O'Lanterns

Early trick or treaters placed a burning candle inside a hollowed turnip or beet to light their way on Halloween night. American immigrants replaced the turnips and beets with the pumpkins which were more plentiful and likely, easier to carve.

The Jack O'Lantern is also loosely associated with creatures of ancient lore known as will-o'-the-wisps, fox fire, fairie fire, friar's lantern and corpse lantern. These creatures were believed to be the souls of the dead who were trapped in the world of the living because for certain evil deeds or deeds committed during their lifetimes. In folklore, will-o'-the-wisps were said to have lured victims into swampy areas until they became lost and disoriented and died. After becoming hopelessly lost, the stranded victim was said to have heard the sound of mocking laughter. The modern Jack O' Lantern represents these mischievous spirits.

Another version of the origins of the Jack O'Lantern is from an old Irish tale of a man who could enter neither heaven nor hell. "Jack" was a trickster and drunkard who tricked a demon into climbing a tree and then carved an image of the cross on the tree, trapping the demon. Jack made a deal that if the demon would leave him alone and stop tempting him, he would let it down from the tree. When Jack died, legend says, he was condemned to wander through the land with only an ember to light his way. To keep it glowing longer, it is said that he placed it in a turnip.

It is believed that the flickering light inside the turnip (or beet or pumpkin) means the spirits are present. This probably led to the tradition of carving scary faces to frighten the spirits away.

Family Tradition

While the customs enjoyed by today's children may be eons old, the fun associated with them is forever new, and the wonderful memories such as those that were formed in the Jacobson dining room on Monday evening are the kind that will warm the hearts of Jordan, Whitney and Brock throughout their lifetimes.

All ready for Halloween 2001, Whitney Jacobson donned her way cool Halloween costume and posed with her brothers, Brock and Jordan, and their completed Jack O'Lanterns Monday evening. The Jacobson children report that the ritual is the same every year — they design their 'Jack O'Lanterns' faces and clean out the pumpkins, Dad (John) does the cutting, and Mom (RaeAnn) takes photographs.

- Busy thinking about the future.
- Exploring more long-term relationships.
- High moral standards.
- May get involved in causes.
- Has an opinion on everything.
- Less self-conscious about body.
- Independent, more self-reliant.
- Adult thinking capacity.
- Less influenced by peer group.

PARENT TIPS
- Regularly ask your adolescent questions about what they think and believe.
- Respect and celebrate your adolescent's uniqueness.
- Encourage their independent decision-making when appropriate.
- Talk with your adolescent about life goals, priorities and dreams.
- Discuss with your adolescent his or her plans for independent living (money management, health care, food selection and preparation, education, job/career).
- Spend time with your adolescent.
- Continue to give hugs and tell them you love them.

Down On The Farm

Eric Bergeson

The obnoxiously early snowfall brought a rude halt to the fall work. I take the onset of winter personally, and as the snow piled up and drifted in, I stewed and paced inside.

To keep from falling into a bitter funk, I cleaned the garage, no easy task for a pack rat. Thank goodness for the woods. I dragged seven pickup loads of junk out back around the corner and dumped the stuff by the rock pile, just on the edge of the field.

Defunct computers. An ancient microwave, one of the originals. Printers. Furniture. Clothing. Magazines. Tons of tin cans filled with nails and screws of every size. Lamps. Old curtains and paint cans from the house's previous administration.

The grand finale, as the snow started to gather on the ground, was the disposal of a 1956 Allen church organ that I purchased in a weak moment, only to decide that it sounded too awful to keep in my house. For the past five years, the monster has stared me in the face every time I opened the garage door, a daily reminder to think before writing big checks.

With great pleasure, I hooked a log chain through the hole for the volume pedal and around the base of the organ, put my pickup in four wheel drive, and slowly pulled out of the garage.

The organ stayed upright until it slid off the end of the slab, at which time it fell on its side with a huge bang, knocking the chain loose. I backed up, hooked it up tighter, and edged ahead.

The organ glided across the lawn, helped along by the slippery oak leaves, and left no marks on the grass. This was a real coup. It was going to be great to get rid of that thing. And without any help! I stepped on it as I approached the edge of the field.

As the organ followed the pickup off the lawn into the tilled soil, it rolled on its side. The keyboards dug a furrow into the ground. My pickup bore down. The instrument which had provided music for hundreds of weddings and church services became a one-bottom plow, with external speakers.

I unhooked the organ in a patch of cockleburs and triumphantly kicked it over on its back. Victory.

Then I got sad. I felt a little guilty, the same sort of guilt one gets when trading in a faithful car. So, just as I do when I trade vehicles, I paused for a moment of reflection, sort of to pay the instrument my last respects, before loading up the chains and heading back to the yard.

What a feeling! The garage sparkled. I swept away everything, even the cobwebs in between the studs, and surveyed my work with pride.

The garage didn't stay empty for long. The storm continued, so I decided to tackle the basement next. With the snow piling higher, the only place to put all of the junk from the basement was in the garage. Now the garage is full again, but with different junk.

In my book, that's progress.

Columbus Day: Why we Celebrate It

Christopher Columbus was an explorer for God. He was a man who had good intentions to find another route to the East. Many people of his time thought his ideas were crazy. He went to many kings to ask for help. He prayed for assistance for many months. Soon enough God answered his prayers. The king and queen of Spain said yes to his expedition and gave him three boats, the Nina, the Pinta and the Santa Maria.

Columbus set out on a journey that God had sent him on. He was determined to find land. The days on the ship were long and tiring. Some were ready to rebel against Columbus if land was not spotted soon. Columbus would not give up. He said, "Just give me three more days to finish this task that God has sent me on." The men all agreed, and they continued on their journey. The first and second days went by with no land to be found. On the third day one of the men in the crow's nest shouted, "Land!" When Columbus looked, he could see the shores. He fell to his knees and thanked God. He ordered his crew to drop the smaller boats from the ships. As he rode to the shores, he saw people. These people were dark-skinned and well built. They wore gold jewelry. They were friendly to Columbus and his men.

When Columbus was on the island, he thought he had reached India. He brought a flag with him and named the island San Salvador, which means "Holy Savior."

Upon his return to Spain, Columbus decided to bring some Indians with him. When he arrived in Spain, the king and queen stood up to greet him. They had a chair of honor waiting for him.

Today, on October 12, we celebrate the holiday of a great explorer. Christopher Columbus discovered the new world for God, because it was God's plan for him.

SPEAKING OF . . .

....Halloweens Past

Halloween just isn't as much fun now as it used to be. It used to be fun for everyone, back when I was young, back in the "olden days." Halloween was a time for pranks and good, clean fun (and sometimes not so good).

It was a time when we children could gather enough candy to last us through the entire winter, or at least until the Christmas haul. With our squeaky, sing-song "Trick or treat, money or eats!" (kids don't say that any more, do they?), we would run far and wide through town, visiting as many houses as we could as fast as our little feet could carry us, lugging Mom's old pillowcase to hold the goodies.

And what goodies we got in that old pillowcase! Seems like everyone in town was trying to outdo their neighbor in the treat department. The good cooks would bake cookies and cupcakes, and make popcorn balls, fudge and caramel apples. Those who couldn't cook would hand out apples and oranges; BIG candy bars and sometimes nickels with which we could buy five-cent candy bars, bottles of Coke or cream soda, or Popsicles or Eskimo pies. Some people even gave treats that were a little different, like pencils or notebooks (would you believe it - I don't think we had ball point pens yet), toothbrushes (usually given out by the neighborhood dentist), combs (from the neighborhood barber) and other useful things.

We didn't have to worry about razor blades and pins in our candy back in those days. Crabby people who didn't like kids and didn't want to give out treats usually just shut off their lights and sat in the dark on Halloween night. We always knew who they were. Sometimes we could see the curtains move or a dim light shining somewhere, or hear the faint sounds of a radio.

These people would usually get "tricked." Our tricks utilized things like soap or tomatoes. The mean kids used eggs. Spray paint was another thing that hadn't been invented yet, thank goodness, and besides, if we had used anything like that and done permanent damage, we would have gotten such a spanking!

Of course there were always those children, usually the bigger boys, who did some tricks that weren't so nice. Their tricks often involved outhouses. You know - outhouses - those little houses with the half moons on the door and the holey seats inside that sat out in the back yard. People had them instead of bathrooms in the house in the olden days.

These outhouses were not very well secured and could be tipped, and usually were. I remember hearing about some enterprising young fellows who simply moved the outhouse back a few feet so that the unsuspecting person who needed to use the outhouse that Halloween night found himself in a "hole" heap of trouble, or something like that.

Other mean tricks the boys did involved a lot of labor, such as moving large things from one area to another, or, better yet, hoisting things to sit atop other things. Sometimes these things were their neighbors' farm animals, like cows or pigs, hoisted atop the school or the local Farmers Union building. Big boys never seemed to mind the work they went through to accomplish their tricks.

Girls didn't do mean tricks. They enjoyed the costume part of Halloween more. It was such a wonderful chance to use mom's clothes and make-up and turn into someone else, whether someone glamorous like a ballerina or a favorite movie star, or someone mysterious, like a fortune-telling gypsy or a witch.

No one bought costumes in those days. Costumes were created, works of art, masterpieces of imagination from whatever could be found around the house. Talented mothers sometimes lent a hand and sewed costumes. You could always identify the kids whose mothers could sew because they won all the contests at the local Lion's Halloween parties.

Many families hosted Halloween parties for youngsters in those days, I suppose to keep us off the street and out of trouble with outhouses and such. However, there were always fun games, such as scavenger hunts which gave the participants a chance to run wildly through town seeking specific items from a list of sometimes unobtainable objects. This game gave party-goers a chance to run off some of those excess high spirits as well as scare the dickens out of the little kids who were still trick or treating around the blocks.

There were always plenty of games involving spooky things and fall fruits at Halloween parties, but at nearly every party there would be a big washtub filled with water and apples. Bobbing for apples in those big tubs was serious business. A person could drown in there. If the bobber didn't drown, he would often arise from the tub triumphant, apple clutched between his teeth, while water and make-up dripped down his or her face and onto his costume. It was a messy game, but somebody had to play it.

Mothers were ready when the revelers returned home, waiting with warm baths to wash off all traces of the evening's merriment, hot water bottles to soothe aching tummies too filled with treats and a little hot milk to calm everything down. You can bet there were plenty of sleepy smiles when the kiddies finally drifted off to sleep.

Have an old-fashioned, happy and safe Halloween this year.

School District 564

With the election just a week away, I'd like to highlight a few of the major points regarding the operating referendum levy that the school is presenting to you this fall. I have mentioned these items in presentations I have made to various organizations and service groups, and a number of people have encouraged me to continue to emphasize these same points at every opportunity I have.

The Thief River Falls Chamber of Commerce Board voted unanimously last week to support and endorse the operating referendum levy for the school district. It was obvious to them that a strong school system is in the best interest of the community. They understood that, while organizations based in the metropolitan area don't necessarily support our efforts in outstate, or greater Minnesota, all of us in communities outside the seven-county metropolitan area need to support each other regarding our business and commerce, our education, our small family businesses, our churches, and our neighbors. Strong and healthy schools are an integral part of our local communities.

In discussing this referendum issue along with other school and rural Minnesota concerns with Senator LeRoy Stumpf, he agreed with our philosophy of trying to maximize our state aid with minimal impact on the local property owners. Senator Stumpf is a wise man with a strong vision for rural Minnesota, and I think we all need to thank him for his diligence and perseverance in fighting for programs that reward and sustain the efforts of our local workers and communities. Our school district long-range plan is to continue to sustain a strong school system, ever striving to improve our efforts on behalf of our children and young people. This referendum is a piece of the larger picture of a continued quality school aimed at serving a wide range of needs of a wide range of students.

As I have mentioned previously, this school district has made significant cuts in the general fund for seven of the past eight years and we will continue to make reductions as our enrollment continues to decline.

This referendum replaces the referendum on the local property owners that was passed in 1997. The 1997 referendum is no longer in effect. That is completely part of the larger state aid package due to 2001 legislation. Consequently the proposed referendum will only be a small portion of the previous school property tax.

For each dollar that is collected in local property taxes, over four dollars will be received from state sources. That is why the $81,150 of local property tax money will actually bring in total revenue of $436,721. We feel it is good stewardship of our local tax dollars to access this amount of state revenue. There are several charts in the informational page found in this edition of The Times that reference the referendum issues. Our aim is to have an informed public that goes to the polls on November 6 to exercise the right to vote.

If anyone has not seen the tax impact of this referendum, I urge you to read the back page information that lists that chart, along with other statistical information related to our school revenue.

We have many quality programs in our schools. The investment we make into these programs is actually an investment in our children and young people. It is also an investment in our community as we have a large number of young people who stay in our community to further their education, and to work and to marry and raise families, which strengthens our total local economy and our high quality of life. The quality of our school programs can be seen in the quality of work that our young people exhibit and in the quality of their behavior and service within the community. I speak not only of Challenger, Franklin, and Lincoln students, but of all students of our community including private school students and students at NCTC and students of the ALC. I indicated several months ago that I sensed that pride in our schools from many people in the community, and as I address various groups around town, I still get that feeling of pride and quality. We need to be diligent in our efforts on behalf of children, young people, and everyone in the community.

You have seen articles in The Times and The Northern Watch either written by students or by reporters telling about student events where our students are rewarded and recognized for excellence. We have much to be proud of, and we have many people who qualify for a pat on the back for their efforts on behalf of the students. Connie Stock, one of our great teachers at Lincoln High School, was recently recognized as "Honor Roll Teacher" by the state of Minnesota as one of the nine finalists in the search for the Minnesota Teacher of the Year. What a great tribute for a great teacher. Mrs. Stock has worked tirelessly on behalf of our students. The bigger picture is that Connie Stock was recognized by her peers for her tremendous efforts. Only one of our teachers can be recognized in this capacity each year. We have many more teachers working extremely hard every day to perform at their peak. Hopefully in the future, we will have more local teachers of the year who can make it to the level of recognition that Connie has achieved. Our congratulations and thanks go to Connie, just as our congratulations and thanks go every day to many of our fine teachers and students. Quality is alive and well in Thief River Falls!

I urge you to go to the polls on November 6, and exercise your right as an American to vote. Thank you.

ACTIVITIES

Shaving Cream Painting

Shaving cream is a wonderful sensory material. Be sure to use unscented shaving cream, because the perfume in the scented kind may irritate children' skin. Baking sheets provide children with a contained surface on which to work, reducing the mess. Another option is to let children fingerpaint directly in the sink. The soapy residue leaves the sink sparkling clean. Hint: warm shaving cream feels especially good. To heat the shaving cream, simply set the can in hot water for a few minutes.

PARENTING TIPS

Make Time to Play

The holiday season will soon be here and many of you are already doing your Christmas shopping. The toy commercials are going full force trying to convince us to buy their products. In today's world the choices are unlimited, making shopping for toys very confusing for parents.

Often we look at toys as something to entertain children, to keep them occupied. We forget the important meaning that play has for children. It is how they learn about the world around them. It shapes their perceptions of the world and of themselves. As you select toys for your children, consider their value from the point of view of what your child will learn about the world around him or her.

To the young child:

•play is learning how things work in the world.

•play answers the questions: "who am I and what can I do?"

•play is the opportunity for the child to carry out his/her own ideas.

You can help to encourage play by providing materials, activities and space to play. Many parents find that they have fewer guidance problems if they provide for the child's need to have sensory experiences, to manipulate and learn, to practice muscle coordination, to use his/her imagination and to have materials to carry out his ideas.

For example playdough will give a child sensory experiences, it is creative, it can release tension, it can be a prop for imaginative play, and it provides practice in small muscle coordination. As you see, one play item can provide a child with a lot of valuable play. Remember also that just because playdough provides a good play experience, this does not mean that children can use it any time or any place. You, the parent, still can set limits: "Playdough stays on the table. You may leave, the playdough may not."

SOMETHING TO TALK ABOUT

Describe and name the actions your child is using as he/she plays with playdough. For example, roll it, cut it, pat it, pound it, squeeze it.

ON THE OTHER HAND

Brittany Larson, Lincoln High School

Scanning the church bulletin, you couldn't miss it. "Needed: Sunday School Teachers," it read, like a summoning from God Himself. In my mind, it might just as well have ended, "And that means you!"

On the one hand, I felt "called." On the other hand, I thought, "when am I going to have time for this?" and "what am I getting myself into?" But the Sunday School Superintendent nearly shrieked with delight at my offer to help. She almost instantly planted me in a classroom of second graders. I had no time to reconsider.

Little can rival the awkward transition from student to teacher. Standing in front of my students, it struck me. Six hours a day, five days a week, I'm somebody's student. And just like them, I gaze up at my teacher, waiting to be enlightened. Funny; but until I became the "enlightener," I never understood just how strenuous teaching really is. Maintaining students' interest, particularly a class full of boisterous (maybe even rambunctious) second graders, is no easy feat. The question isn't whether they have energy; it's whether that energy can be channeled toward learning. With the competition of spellbinding video games like Pokemon, you can imagine the pressure to entertain.

Take the Sunday we spent on King Solomon. The theme of the day was cooperation, and I resolved to impart this message so well that the kids would be "falling off their chairs" with excitement and anticipation. Okay, so I was overly optimistic. You can't fault me for trying, though. And I must admit, my plans were pretty impressive ... especially considering I didn't consult the lesson book until two days before.

I plunged into the lesson with fervor, hoping my enthusiasm would be contagious. After cutting construction paper people and acting out the Bible story, we began the ultimate challenge: constructing a cardboard replica of King Solomon's temple.

The kids set to work with exuberant gusto, slapping the masking tape down as soon as they could rip it off. Just watching them, I felt affirmed as a teacher. I had connected! But before my pride swelled beyond control, a little voice piped up. "Can I go get a drink of water?" "Sure," I consented, unprepared for the consequences of my decision. No sooner had I given permission to the first child than another one tapped me. "Can I go too?" she asked. I became concerned. What could be the cause of this pervasive thirst? Surely they can't be bored! I thought. No – they probably just had something salty for breakfast. Then came the final blow. It shattered my already brittle confidence like fine glassware being struck by a sledgehammer. Squirming, a kid blurted, "When can we go home?"

When the class left for the day, I cleaned up the mess that remained from the temple. It took quite a while ... but not as long as trying to regain my self-esteem as a teacher. Well, maybe the story of Noah's Ark will capture their imagination.

SOCIAL SECURITY

Q: I receive worker's compensation for an injury. It now looks like I will not be returning to work for a long time so I am also filing for Social Security disability benefits. The SSA representative told me that my worker's compensation will lower any Social Security received and I want to know why.

A: Each of these two separate programs is designed to help replace your earnings lost because of disability. Although the exact process varies depending on the state and details of the worker's compensation payment, payments from the two programs usually do affect each other so that the person does not receive more from the combined programs than is lost from earnings.

Q: My wife is going to be 62 soon and intends to retire. I am past that age but still employed. Can she file for Social Security from her own work and then go onto mine when I retire? Will my current earnings lower her retirement amount?

A: For Social Security purposes you and your wife are two separate individuals with individual SSA records and benefit possibilities. Making the assumption that the lady has worked enough to be insured for a SSA benefit on her own record, she can receive SSA retirement whether you do or not. Your earnings do not involve her own retirement benefits. Once you retire, the agency will consider both of your records to determine if she can receive as a spouse on your record, if you can receive on her record, or if the two of you will remain on your individual records.

Sitar virtuoso to perform at BSU Nov. 14

Internationally acclaimed sitar virtuoso Kartik Seshadri will present a concert at Bemidji State University's Thompson Recital Hall on Wednesday, November 14, at 7 p.m.

The performance is sponsored by Hobson Union Programming Board. Admission is $5 for adults, $3 for BSU students, and free for children under 12 years of age. Tickets can be purchased at the door, beginning at 6:30 p.m. on the evening of the performance.

Seshadri was hailed as a child prodigy by critics and prominent musicians when he began performing full-length solo recitals at the age of six. As a young man, he had an illustrious performing career and in 1965, met world-renowned maestra Pandit Ravi Shankar, who was already a profound musical influence on Seshadri's life. In 1974, he became a disciple of Shankar.

As a soloist, Seshadri performs extensively in India and abroad including engagements in the United States at Lincoln Center and Kennedy Center. Seshadri has also accompanied Pandit Ravi Shankar in major concert halls throughout the world, including India, Europe, the Middle East, Japan, Mexico and Carnegie Hall in the United States.

Seshadri will be accompanied by accomplished tabla artist Arup Chattopadhyay. Chattopadhyay is recognized as one of today's outstanding and most sought after tabla artists of his generation. As a premier disciple of the world-renowned maestra Pandit Shankar Ghosh, he has established himself both as an accompanist and soloist.

The sitar is the most popular stringed instrument of India and has existed there in its present form for approximately 700 years. It is fashioned from a seasoned gourd and teakwood. The instrument has a track of 20 metal frets with six or seven main playing strings above them and 13 sympathetic, resonating strings below.

The tabla is a two-piece drum of India with one hand providing a bass drum effect and the other tuned, and often re-tuned during the performance, to the specific piece being performed.

The system of Indian classical music, known as Raga Sangeet, can be traced back nearly 2,000 years to its origin in the hymns of Hindu temples. Unlike Western music, as much as 90 percent may be improvised, depending on the artistic capability and creativity of the performer. The Indian musical tradition is also an oral one, taught directly to the student by the guru rather than by the system of written notation used in most musical forms today.

Agassiz open to deer hunting Nov. 3-11

The 2001 deer hunting firearm season at Agassiz National Wildlife Refuge will be held November 3-11 in accordance with Minnesota Department of Natural Resources and Federal regulations. Area 203 (Zone2), consists of Agassiz NWR, and the Elm Lake, Eckvoll, and Mud Lake Wildlife Management Areas. This area is open only to legal bucks. Only youth under 16 who applied for and received a Youth-Only Antlerless Permit are authorized to shoot an anterless deer; 250 of these permits were available for Area 203. Hunters 16 and over are not allowed to shoot antlerless deer as a party on these youth only permits.

Within Agassiz National Wildlife Refuge per-season scouting will be allowed, Friday, November 2, from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m. Gates will be closed at 3:30 p.m. on this day. Hunters are reminded that construction of, or hunting from, permanently constructed - tree stands is illegal. Portable stands are legal and can be placed at any height, but cannot be left overnight to pre-empt a hunting area. Spotlighting is illegal at all times on the refuge year long. Casting spotlights or vehicle lights from a public road onto the refuge is considered spotlighting. Camping is not permitted on the refuge. Camping is available on adjacent state wildlife management areas where camping permitted signs are located.

The refuge is open to hunters at 5:30 a.m. and closes as soon as possible after legal shooting hours. Gated roads will be opened at 5:30 a.m. All other refuge roads, trails and dikes will be restricted to foot traffic, bicycles and non-motorized carrying devices for transporting deer. non-motorized watercraft may be used on ditches and pools. The use of snowmobiles, three- and four-wheelers, trail bikes and other off-road motorized vehicles is prohibited on the Refuge. For information on the use of off-road motorized vehicles on state wildlife management areas during the firearms deer hunting season see the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources 2001 hunting regulations.

Except for two closed areas around the Headquarters and Maintenance Center building areas, the entire refuge will be open to deer hunting. The closed areas are posted with "Closed Area" signs and are clearly marked on refuge hunting leaflets. Entrance into these areas is not permitted. If a wounded deer travels into a closed area refuge personnel must be contacted before the deer can be pursued. Deer hunting regulation signs with a map of Antlerless Area 203 are placed at six locations on the refuge showing open roads and listing refuge regulations. Deer hunting brochures are also available at the two kiosks along County Road 7.

Any hunter that is permanently or temporarily physically challenged, and wants to use the accessible deer hunting platform, needs to contact refuge personnel at Headquarters before or during the deer season.

Aerial deer surveys on February 15, 2001, estimated the deer population to be approximately 1,150; 350 more than estimated for 2000. Mild winter conditions over the last three years resulted in a high survival rate. Many does produced twin fawns the past three years helping the recovery of the deer population. The pre-fawn (spring) deer density for 2001 was nine deer per square mile. This is below management objective levels of 13.5 to 16.5 deer per square mile. For 2001, the pre-hunt deer population is estimated to be 1,600 within the 131 square miles of Area 203.

Deer taken in Permit Area 203 must be registered in Zone 2. There is no check station at Refuge Headquarters but there is at least one in most nearby towns. During the past four years, bucks only have been allowed to be harvested in Area 203. A total of 58 buck deer were harvested in Area 203 in 2000 and in 1999, 49 buck deer were harvested. Deer harvest average for the past 10 years is 365.

Hunter safety is always of special concern. Hunters need to be aware of other hunters in the area to prevent shooting accidents. Always be sure that the object being shot at is only deer. Look beyond the deer to make sure another person is not standing in the line of fire. The potential for hypothermia and heart attack also exists. Check ice conditions before attempting to cross any water areas. Most ditches on the area have five to eight feet of water. Hunter caution and awareness is advised. First aid rescue equipment is on hand at refuge headquarters. If assistance is needed contact refuge personnel at headquarters. All hunting accidents on Agassiz National Wildlife Refuge must be reported immediately at Headquarters.

Stop by the refuge office and share your deer hunting story with refuge personnel. Any questions about deer hunting on the refuge can be answered by calling 218-449-4115, extensions 211, 213, 214, 215 or 0.

Agassiz National Wildlife Refuge is administered by the United States Fish and Wildlife Service.

Edna, portrayed by Heidi Hoks, points an accusing finger at her husband, Joe, played by Al Rogelle, in "Waiting for Lefty," the Northland Community and Technical College production that opens Thursday. The play by Clifford Odet is set in the 1930's and has been both hailed as brilliant social commentary and condemned as melodramatic left-wing propaganda. Viewers can establish their own opinions at the play at noon on Thursday, November 1, and at 7:30 p.m. on Friday and Saturday, November 2-3 in the NCTC Auditorium. Tickets are $5 for adults, $3 for children and free for NCTC students and staff.

School District 564 is electing to reach out to Pennington County veterans and award them with real — as opposed to honorary — diplomas. Participation by both the veterans and the school district is voluntary. Eligible veterans who have died and/or those with alternate credentials, such as GEDs, are also candidates for the recognition.

When the program was initiated in 1999, Minnesota Education Commissioner Christine Jax, PhD. said, "Many who served in the military during World War II may not have needed a high school diploma to succeed, but today's students do. Awarding diplomas to veterans now shows tomorrow's graduates that completing high school is important and valuable." Bernie Melter, commissioner of the Department of Veterans' Affairs (DAV), added, "World War II veterans formed a remarkable generation that gave up a lot. They returned from a hard war to make this country strong. Giving them high school diplomas both honors them and shows our young people inspiring examples of heroism and sacrifice."

Melter encouraged all veterans to pursue learning opportunities. "It is never too late to learn or too soon to honor the accomplishments and sacrifice of our World War II veterans," he said.

Interested veterans who did not serve in World War II are encouraged to take advantage of educational programs such as the GED.

A simple one-page application was developed by the Minnesota Department of Children, Families and Learning (CFL) and DAV for veterans wishing to ask their high school for a diploma. In Pennington County, the applications are available at the Veterans' Service office at the Pennington County Courthouse. They can also be found on the Internet at http://cfl.state.mn.us./veteransapp.pdf or http://www. mdva state.mn.us.

Applications received are reviewed by local veterans' service officers and forwarded to local school districts through the CFL. In the case that a high school attended by a veteran has closed, the request for a diploma will be forwarded to the public high school currently serving the veteran's hometown.

Diplomas will also be awarded posthumously, and families of deceased World War II veterans are welcome to apply for them.

High school students coming of age during World War II entered the "real world" in ways that would literally change the world as they served their country, restoring and protecting freedom and human rights. Awarding them with diplomas today is one way of bringing "living history" to the schools as students, have the opportunity to meet and interact with the veterans. It is also a meaningful way for communities to honor those who have sacrificed so much.

"• Whereas Agricultural land is not taxed for referendums due to new legislation — only the house, garage and one acre;

"• Whereas high quality education standards for our youth are crucial to the future economy of Thief River Falls;

"Therefore be it resolved that the Thief River Falls Chamber of Commerce urges the citizens of School District 564 to vote 'yes' for the proposed levy referendum on Tuesday, November 6, 2000."

SCHOOL DISTRICT #564 REFERENDUM INFORMATION

Thief River Falls has always been a community that prides itself on excellence. To maintain this excellence in our schools, a School Referendum Levy will be presented to voters for approval Tuesday, November 6, 2001.

SUPPORTED AND ENDORSED BY THE THIEF RIVER FALLS CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

1. What is a School Referendum Levy?
The state of Minnesota provides minimum base funding for school districts in the state through state aid. If this amount is not enough to fund the existing educational programs, the school district voters may approve a referendum levy.

2. What happened to the School District's previous excess levy referendum passed in 1997?
Due to changes in the state funding formula, the 1997 referendum has been eliminated and is no longer a local tax burden.

GOOD NEWS...
The portion of your property taxes that goes to the school district will go down dramatically, even if this proposed new operating referendum levy is approved. Agricultural land is no longer taxed through referendums. Due to new legislation – only the house, garage, and one acre are taxed.

Bad News...
Most of our equity revenue has been eliminated with the loss of the previous referendum.

3. Why is the School District proposing a new referendum levy?
- To maintain excellence in our schools.
- To become eligible for additional state equalization aid and to restore the equity aid that was lost.

4. What will the Referendum dollars be used for?
- Provide an education that allows our students to be competitive.
- Maintain existing course offerings.
- Meet technology needs for our students.
- Maintain class sizes.

5. What is Equity Aid?
- Equity Aid is additional funding in state aid to reduce the disparity between wealthy and poor districts.
- Most districts in the state are eligible for $10.00 per pupil unit in equity aid, including our district.
- However, districts with an operating levy referendum are eligible to receive additional state funding through Equity Aid.

6. How much funding will the district receive from the State next year in EQUITY AID if the referendum levy IS NOT approved?
$24,104

7. How much funding will the district receive from the State next year in EQUITY AID if the referendum levy IS approved?
$130,790

8. How much funding will the district receive from the State next year in EQUALIZATION AID if the referendum levy IS approved?
$224,781

9. How much State funding will the district FORFEIT if the referendum levy IS NOT approved?
$130,790 + $224,781 = $355,571

10. To gain $355,571 in State Aid, how much must local taxpayers contribute through the approval of the referendum levy?

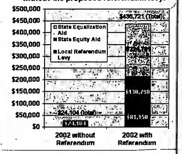
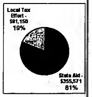
State Equity Aid	$130,790
State Equalization Aid	+ $224,781
State Contribution	$355,571
Local Contribution	+ $ 81,150
TOTAL	$436,721

(in additional revenue for the district)

11. Comparison of district funding with and without the proposed referendum levy:



12. Percent of dollars from the State and percent from local funds if the referendum levy is approved:
(For every $1.00 paid locally the district would receive over $4.00 from the State.)



13. How much will the levy cost each household?

PROPERTY TAX IMPACT
Tax Rate is 0.00024285
This is not in addition to your previous referendum tax, but in place of it. It is considerably less than last year's referendum tax.

Referendum Market Value	Annual Tax Impact
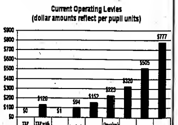
40,000	$ 10.00
60,000	$ 15.00
80,000	$ 19.00
100,000	$ 24.00
150,000	$ 36.00
200,000	$ 49.00
300,000	$ 73.00
500,000	$121.00

Agricultural land is not taxed for referendums due to new legislation, only the house, garage, and one acre are taxed.

14. Do other school districts use operating levies to fund education?
Yes, many districts still have an operating referendum levy.

This chart indicates dollars per pupil unit received by neighboring districts.
- Note: TRF both with and without proposed referendum levy.



15. How can I get my questions about the referendum levy answered?
☎ Call the Superintendents Office, 681-8711

The TIMES

Even though he was wrapped up by Thief River Falls' Darrin Momersk, Rocori quarterback Alex Kofoed avoided a sack by getting off a second quarter pass during Saturday's Section 8AAAA high school football playoff semifinal game at the Multi-Events Center. The Spartans passed for 228 yards in a 27-18 win over the Prowlers.

Rocori ends Prowlers' season

■ Spartans win 27-18 Section 8AAAA semifinal

A seven-game Thief River Falls win streak and dreams of reaching the Section 8AAAA high school football playoff championship game at the Fargodome ended Saturday when the Prowlers lost a 27-18 decision to Rocori in a windy, chilly Multi-Events Center semifinal match-up.

The Prowlers, who opened the 2001 season with a pair of losses, then rattled off seven straight wins, were looking to make their first title game appearance since 1996. But instead, they saw the year end with a home field loss to a Central Lakes team for the fifth straight year.

And for the second time in five days, Thief River Falls' defense was hurt by the pass. Tuesday, the Prowlers got by Little Falls in a 63-48 quarterfinal shootout that featured a 28-for-52, 315-yard, five-touchdown passing performance by the Flyers' Noah Czech. Saturday, a stiff breeze didn't stop Rocori from putting the ball in the air 34 times. The Spartans completed 13 of those passes for 228 yards and two touchdowns.

"I guess we're going to have to start scheduling schools that throw the ball more so we can get used to it," offered Thief River Falls coach Jeff Mumm after watching Rocori quarterback Alex Kofoed. "You have to give a lot of credit to the quarterback. He threw the ball against the wind just as well as he did with the wind."

While the Prowlers negated Czech and Co. with a near-record offensive effort, they weren't able to do that against the Spartans – because the competition was stronger, and their own mistakes.

Thief River Falls looked in fine form with a game-opening 17-play, 80-yard touchdown drive that ended with a 3-yard quarterback keeper around the left end by Robby Anderson.

But a fumble, a penalty and an interception kept the Prowlers out of the end zone the rest of the half. A second-possession fumble stopped things at midfield; a 10-yard carry to the Rocori 14 was erased by a third-possession holding penalty; and a tipped ball resulted in an end zone interception on a second-and-goal play from the Spartans' 5-yard line with 2.4 seconds left in the second quarter.

"Mistakes you make this time of the year are magnified, especially against a good football team," said Mumm. "The mistakes we made in the first half – the fumble, the penalty and the interception – were huge. You just can't make those kind of mistakes in the playoffs."

Rocori responded to the Thief River Falls touchdown march with a 7-play, 58-yard scoring drive of its own. Kofoed hit Gary Kiess streaking down the left side on a 27-yard pass play to the Prowlers' 4-yard line, then scored on a quarterback sneak from two yards out.

The Prowlers, who missed their conversion kick after being pushed five yards back on an illegal procedure call, found themselves trailing 7-6 when Zach Reif split the uprights on the Spartans' extra-point attempt Rocori took control with a five-minute drive into the wind late in the first half that covered 80 yards in 16 plays following a Thief River Falls miss on a field goal try – necessitated because of that before-mentioned holding penalty.

Big plays kept the Rocori drive alive, including a 25-yard run by Kiess on a third-and-15 reverse; a 19-yard Kofoed-to-Kiess pass on another third-and-15; and a 10-yard Kofoed-to-Quenton Lind throw on fourth-and-9. Kofoed then found Mike Burtzel open over the middle for a 17-yard touchdown pass with just 38.4 seconds on the clock. Kofoed and Kiess hooked up on the conversion pass, making it 15-6.

Thief River Falls nearly got that one back when a short kickoff was followed by back-to-back plays that netted Dan Almquist 21 yards on an inside carry and Anderson 27 yards on a deft fake inside that set up a keeper around the end to the Rocori 7-yard line. However, the interception followed two plays later.

Rocori opened the second half with another 16-play scoring drive that featured Kofoed passes to Robert Lutgen covering 16, 17 and 16 yards. The quarterback scored on a fourth-and-goal sneak from inside

Wolverines repeat as 31A champions

Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke lost two invitational championship matches to Red Lake County Central during the regular season, but Monday, with the stakes higher, the Wolverines beat the Mustangs 3-1 in the 2001 Sub-Section 31A high school volleyball tournament finals.

The Wolverines improved their record to 18-9 and won their second straight Sub-Section 31A crown by beating the Mustangs 15-11, 8-15, 15-7, 16-14 in the second half of a championship night doubleheader at Northland Community and Technical College.

Kittson Central swept Stephen-Argyle 15-4, 15-6, 15-10 in the Sub-Section 32A title match to open the twinbill.

The two winners at Northland will be Section 8A semifinal foes Thursday at 6:30 p.m. at the University of Minnesota-Crookston.

Sub-Section 30A champion Ada-Borup and Sub-Section 29A winner Fosston will meet in the 8 p.m. semifinal match that night. Ada-Borup beat Mahnomen 15-4, 15-4, 15-8, while Fosston defeated Climax/Fisher 15-1, 15-4, 13-15, 15-0 in Friday sub-section championship matches at Crookston.

Section 8A championship match will be played Saturday at 6:30 p.m. at UMC.

Red Lake County Central beat Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke 2-0 in the finals of the Thief River Falls Invitational on Sept. 22 and won 2-1 when they met again in the Red Lake County Central Invitational title match Oct. 6.

But the post-season encounter belonged to the Wolverines, who came up big at the service line, where Ashley Stavnes (8), Kelsey Johnsrud (3), Ashley Holthusen (2), and Lacey Hoffman (2) combined for 15 aces.

Beth Tharaldson led the net play for the winners with 12 kills.

Brittany Berberich and Maureen Munt were the Mustangs' attack leaders with 14 and 10 kills, respectively.

Red Lake County Central, moved from Sub-Section 29A to 31A this fall, finished the year 19-6.

Section 8 Nine-Man high school football playoffs...

MCC making first trip to finals

Marshall County Central will make its first-ever post-season title game appearance Friday when the Nordics tackle Stephen-Argyle in the 2001 Section 8 Nine-Man high school football playoff finals at the Alerus Center. Kickoff at the Grand Forks, N.D. facility is scheduled for 3 p.m. Winner will move into the state quarterfinals.

In Saturday semifinal games, the Nordics held off East Grand Forks Sacred Heart 21-18 and the Storm shut out Kittson Central 41-0.

Section 8 Nine-Man Football
■ Semifinals Saturday, Oct. 27 - Stephen-Argyle 41, Kittson Central 0, Marshall County Central 21, East Grand Forks Sacred Heart 18.
■ Championship Friday, Nov. 2 - Stephen-Argyle vs. Marshall County Central, 3 p.m. Alerus Center.

While 7-3 Marshall County Central makes its first appearance in the section finals, unbeaten No. 1-ranked Stephen-Argyle is the five-time defending champion. The Storm beat the visiting Nordics 56-8 in a Sept. 21 meeting.

Saturday's playoff victory was the third Marshall County Central win over Sacred Heart this fall, but all three were nail-biters for head coach Scott Parker, whose team won the home-and-home regular season series 22-16 and 18-14.

This time, two second quarter Adam Reisen touchdown passes, a 66-yard third quarter Pat Brons touchdown run, and three conversion kicks by Matt Wagner completed the season sweep.

A 5-yard Kyle Novacek touchdown run provided the Eagles with a 6-0 first quarter edge.

Reisen's touchdown passes covered 36 yards to Louis Peterson and 18 yards to Arron Holtan – the latter off a fake field goal with just two seconds left in the first half.

It was 21-6 when Brons broke away on his touchdown run.

But the ensuing kickoff was returned 98 yards by Jason Kaiser for a touchdown, and a 6-yard Novacek run made it 21-18.

The scoreboard difference at the end was an 0-for-3 game in the conversion department for the Eagles, who failed to reach the end zone on three runs. But the outcome remained in doubt until Holtan came up with a midfield interception with about a minute to play.

Brons finished with 86 yards rushing and Jake Anderson had 80. Reisen was 5-for-8 passing for 80 yards.

Anderson was in on 15 tackles to lead the Nordics' defense. Brons had a hand in 10 stops, Josh Larson and Treston Magner were both credited with 9 tackles.

While the Nordics celebrated their win and prepared for their championship game appearance, head coach Scott Parker was away from his teaching and coaching duties to have his gall bladder removed. He was expected to back at work and practice this week.

Larsons keep a full fall sports schedule

by Mike Lundgren

It has been a busy fall for the Larson twins at Marshall County Central. Josh and Andy, a pair of seniors who have had outstanding high school cross country careers, decided to double up in 2001 as first-year members of the Nordies' football team while continuing to run for the Tri-County/Badger/Greenbush-Middle River/Marshall County Central cooperative cross country program.

Success has followed them on both fronts. Friday they will be with the Nordics when they play Stephen-Argyle in the Section 8 Nine-Man football playoff championship game at the Alerus Center in Grand Forks, N.D. When the final horn sounds, they will take off for the state cross country meet scheduled Saturday at St. Olaf College in Northfield.

The football game is scheduled to start at 3 p.m. The Class A boys portion of the state cross country meet has a 1 o'clock start time the next afternoon.

It is the type of schedule they have kept all fall. Saturday was even busier than usual for Andy, who took his ACT college entrance test in Thief River Falls at 9 a.m.; ran in the rescheduled Section 8A cross country meet at Bagley at 4 p.m.; and was back in Newfolden by 6:45 that night – in time for a Section 8 semifinal football game against East Grand Forks Sacred Heart.

"It's been a nightmare," said cross country coach Kim Jones describing efforts to produce a schedule for the Larsons that accommodates both sports. "We tried to organize it so they wouldn't get too tired and wear themselves out."

During the course of the season, football practice served as Larson's speed workouts. They did distance work whenever they could make a cross country practice, or by following a work-out sheet developed by Jones that had them running before school or after football practice.

It worked. Andy Larson was second to East Grand Forks' Matt Damico at the Section 8A cross country meet, 17:15 to 17:34, and Josh Larson ran fifth in 18:04.

Those placings produced a fourth straight state cross country meet berth for Andy and a third straight trip for Josh. A 12th place finish at St. Olaf a year ago earned Josh all-state honors. Andy ran 35th at last year's state meet.

In football, Josh is a starter at outside linebacker. Depending upon the sets the Nordics use, Andy is a starter at wide receiver. Josh has earned Defensive Player of the Week recognition from the Marshall County Central football staff this year, and the coaches are quick to point out that Andy has not dropped a pass thrown to him.

There was just one scheduling conflict that took the Larsons away from being in the line-up for either sport this fall. They missed a regular season-ending football game against Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke to run a cross country meet at Park Rapids. It was a decision made well in advance because of a time lapse they faced between the end of the cross country schedule and the sectional meet.

Jones admitted being worried about having her top runners playing two sports. She went through the same thing two years ago when Troy Levenhagen played football (at Tri-County) and ran cross country, too. "He excelled at both sports, but it was tough on him physically," she said.

The Larsons have survived. And as soon as the fall sports season is done, they'll be inside the gym, where they also fill key roles on the Marshall County Central basketball team.

MCCC state volleyball tournament...

Pioneers consolation champs

Northland finished with a 4-1 record and the consolation championship at the 2001 Minnesota Community College Conference state volleyball tournament Friday and Saturday in Rochester.

The Pioneers drew season-long nemesis Rainy River as a first-round foe in Friday's round-robin pool play portion of the eight-team tournament and lost a 3-0 match (30-21, 31-29, 30-26) – their sixth setback of the year at the hands of the Voyageurs.

They completed the Friday schedule with 2-1 wins over Riverland (30-23, 28-30, 32-29) and Rochester (30-18, 30-25, 26-30).

With Saturday bracket play placement based upon the number of games won or lost in the three-game pool play matches, Northland had a chance to advance into the championship round – in place of Rainy River – with a 3-0 sweep of Rochester. The Pioneers were on their way with two match-opening wins, but the Yellowjackets came out a Game 3 winner.

"I thought we played well against Rainy River, "but they played better," said Northland coach Mike Zachow. "For some reason, all year long they played really well against us."

Zachow gave his team credit for bouncing back from the opening round loss to complete the tough pool play draw in winning fashion.

"We were really up and down against Riverland," Zachow explained. "We had a big lead in Game 2 and wound up losing. Game 3 was really big for us. We knew we needed to win that one to stay in the (championship) picture. It was a must-win situation, and they came through."

Zachow liked his chances after beating Rochester in Games 1 and 2, but fell short of completing the sweep. "I thought we played well, especially in the first two games," he said. "Rochester is a very good team."

In 3-out-of-5-game Saturday matches, Northland swept Vermilion 30-26, 30-27, 30-23 in the consolation semifinals, then won a tournament rematch with Riverland 30-12, 30-17, 29-31, 30-28.

"It was great to see the kids come back and play well Saturday," said Zachow. "It was tough, emotionally, after losing that third game to Rochester, knowing that would keep us out of the finals and that we would not be able to advance to the regions. But they came back the next day and won a pair of matches."

Ridgewater beat Rainy River 3-2 in the championship match and Rochester defeated Central Lakes by the same score in the third place match.

As the top two Northern Division finishers in the state meet, Rainy River and Central Lakes will form the two-team National Junior College Athletic Association Region 13A tournament. They play Saturday at International Falls, with the winner moving on to the NJCAA Division III national tournament Nov. 9-10 in Rochester.

Northland finished the year 22-11 overall. "We were 22-5 without Rainy River," quipped Zachow.

The Pioneers' Christel Berube, a freshman from Fisher, and Becky Bray, a freshman from Thief River Falls, were named to the all-tournament team. Bray was selected even though she battled the flu Friday and didn't even play Saturday, pointed out Zachow.

Rochester hands NCTC 62-6 loss

A 2001 Northland football season that opened with a one-sided loss at the hands of Rochester ended in the same way Saturday when the host Yellowjackets crushed the Pioneers 62-6 in the Minnesota Community College Conference state playoff semifinals.

Rochester was a 46-6 winner when the two teams met in the MCCC Kickoff Classic at the University of Minnesota-Duluth back on Aug. 24.

"They're a very good football team," acknowledged Northland coach Guy Finstrom. "They beat us fair and square. We got whipped."

The unbeaten defending state champion Yellowjackets led 14-0 at the end of the first quarter, had a 35-0 halftime cushion and maintained a 42-6 third quarter spread.

Northland's touchdown was a 5-yard Steve Crummy run that finished off a length-of-the field drive.

Northland actually did have some success moving the ball against Rochester, but the Pioneers had trouble reaching the end zone. They took a game-opening drive to the Rochester 4-yard line; a second possession to the Yellowjackets' 10; and had a third-series pass from the Rochester 20 intercepted in the end zone.

The Pioneers' frustration continued when, facing a 21-0 deficit, they saw another scoring opportunity that reached the Rochester 16 turn into an 84-yard interception return for a touchdown.

"We moved the ball on them, but we couldn't score," pointed out Finstrom, whose team rushed for 302 yards in the matinee match-up, including a 32-carry, 217-yard effort by Maurice Johnson and a 95-yard afternoon by Crummy. Johnson finished the 10-game season with a state-best 1,824 yards rushing.

But Northland couldn't complement the run with the pass, noted Finstrom. "That's what killed us," he said. "We could run on them, but we couldn't complete the passes."

Northland finished the year 5-5.

Game statistics and a scoring summary were not made available.

Spuds sweep in 8AA

■ Cross country meet results

Moorhead boys and girls both turned in championship performances Friday in the 2001 Section 8AA high school cross country meet.

The Spuds finished with a 69-76 winning margin over runner-up Alexandria in the boys portion of the meet and had a 53-72 spread over second place Sauk Rapids-Rice in the girls competition.

Adam Kopperud of Moorhead and Breanna Carey of Big Lake were the individual winners.

Fifteen schools were on hand for the rescheduled event – moved back a day because of the weather – held on the Pine Beach East Golf Course at Madden's Resort near Brainerd. Cold, windy weather greeted the 104 boys who competed in the 5000 meter race and the 101 girls who ran the 4000 meter course.

Thief River Falls boys and girls finished 14th and 15th in their respective races. The Prowlers' top finishers were Brian Newton, 41st, and Michelle Noreen, 77nd.

"We didn't run up to our potential, but we took it out hard and gave it a shot," reported Thief River Falls coach Chad Persons.

Despite the placings, Persons said there were some bright spots in the Prowlers' performances.

"The girls ran hard, with Michelle leading us," noted Persons. "Ashleigh Anderson came back tough, and Janae Harlow had a fabulous kick. We still need two or three more runners to come out and help us."

Thief River Falls boys started strong, but couldn't keep pace, explained Persons. "Brian Newton and Nathan Browning positioned themselves for a great race for a mile-and-a-half, but fell off the pace. They gave it their all on a hard course. Jesse Sich was also up there at a mile, but then fell way back. Evan Jones was our third runner, and Joaquin Westerman picked up as our fourth man."

Team and individual qualifiers advance to the 2001 boys and girls Class A and Class AA state cross country meets Saturday at St. Olaf College in Northfield.

the one with 5:12 gone in the third quarter.

Thief River Falls comeback hopes then took a hit when Jon Swanson, who established a school single-season rushing record in the win over Little Falls, took a blow to the head on a first down carry. He did not return to the Prowlers' backfield the rest of the night.

"It hurts, obviously, having your best running back on the sidelines," acknowledged Mumm. "It takes some things away. You don't have that breakaway threat."

The Prowlers' second touchdown was scored by the defense. Despite a low punt snap, Tommy Greelis got off a 47-yard kick that rolled to the Rocori 2-yard line.

On a first down dive play, the ball popped free and was grabbed in midair by linebacker Jason Smsky, who stepped into the end zone with 2:52 remaining in the third quarter.

But the Prowlers then not only failed to cross the goal line on a two-point conversion run, they were flagged for a personal foul on the play.

With 15 yards marched off on the kickoff, Spartans wound up with just a half of a football field to cover for a touchdown. And they did it in dramatic fashion. After losing 13 yards on a fumble to set up a third-and-19 from the Thief River Falls 46, Rocori struck on a reverse/half-back option pass thrown by Kiess to a wide-open Lutgen. That made it 27-12 one play into the fourth quarter.

"That was a great call and a great play," acknowledged Mumm.

Major yardage by Trent Christensen, Aric Berg and Anderson quickly brought the Prowlers down the field and set up a 5-yard touchdown run by Dane Kjono, who got around the right end with 8:03 on the clock.

However, a third unsuccessful conversion attempt of the night, a run that would have made it a seven-point game, required two scores down the stretch to make up a nine-point deficit.

"The extra-points are crucial," noted Mumm. "It really hurts when you miss those."

Lakers, Spartans in finals

Detroit Lakes and Rocori will meet Thursday in the 2001 Section 8AAAA high school football playoff championship game at the Fargodome.

The No. 1-seeded Lakes handled No. 5 Sauk Rapids-Rice 49-14 and No. 3-seeded Rocori beat No. 2 Thief River Falls 27-18 in Saturday semifinal games.

Berg wound up as the Prowlers' leading ball carrier with 154 yards on 26 carries.

"We moved the ball all night," pointed out Mumm. "They didn't stop us; we stopped ourselves. But you can't fault the effort. We asked them to leave everything on the football field, and they did."

Mustangs' comeback results in 31A victory

Top-seeded Red Lake County Central overcame an 0-2 deficit to beat No. 4 seed East Grand Forks Sacred Heart 3-2 in the Sub-Section 31A high school volleyball semifinals played Friday at Northland Community and Technical College.

Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke, the tournament's No. 2 seed, swept No. 3 Red Lake Falls 3-0 in the second half of the semifinal doubleheader.

Red Lake County Central did not panic after losing Games 1 and 2, but instead regrouped and avoided a upset loss by beating East Grand Forks 9-15, 12-15, 15-4, 15-7, 15-3.

"Our first two games were a little sluggish," admitted Red Lake County Central coach Nancy Bray. "We just couldn't get anything going. Our top two hitters only had two kills each, and we served just 77 percent."

The message in the huddle was short and to the point, according to Bray, who said the team was reminded to focus and pay attention to the fundamentals: pass, set, spike.

Red Lake County Central responded by jumping out to an 11-3 Game 3 lead. The Mustangs never looked back.

"We got the momentum back," noted Bray. "They just decided it was time to play."

Brittany Berberich led the winners with 21 kills. Michelle Halvorson had a 15-kill, 17-assist night.

Tree stand safety being stressed

"If you're a hunter, chances are you know or know of someone who has been injured in a tree stand accident," says Jackie Bushman, the founder and CEO of Buckmasters, the world's largest whitetail deer hunters association. "In our hunting club a few years ago, one of the guys didn't check his stand from the previous year before using it. When he went to climb onto it on opening day of deer season, the limb he used to step into his stand had rotted. When he stepped on to it, it broke. He fell to the ground, broke his hip, and lay there for four hours before crawling to the road for help."

Most tree stand accidents are the result of careless and costly errors, explained Bushman. "But tree stand hunting is safe and rewarding if we pay attention to a few basics," he said. "People don't like to bother with things like safety belts and other safety measures, but paying attention to safety measures, like wearing a safety belt, is smart."

According to Bushman, being safe in a tree stand isn't difficult. "It boils down to a little time and advance work – which provides some of us with a really good excuse to spend extra time in the woods before hunting season," he noted.

If you plan to hunt from tree stands this year, there are some things Bushman recommends keeping in mind.

"No accident was ever planned, that's why they're called accidents," reminded Bushman. "Accidents often occur when you're tired, or when you're still sleepy from getting up early. One fall can leave you dead or paralyzed.

"Any time your feet aren't on the ground and you're not wearing a safety belt, you're in what I call "death territory. If you hunting from anything that's hooked to a tree, you need a safety belt. If, for some unknown reason your stand breaks, or you fall asleep, or you lose your balance, the safety belt can save your life.

"If you like to stand up and shoot when you're bow hunting, use a safety belt that keeps you snug to the tree when you stand up. If you have to lean a little bit, you want to feel the safety belt grab."

Always check your tree stand before the first day of the season. "If you use a homemade tree stand, don't forget: trees grow wider as well as taller from fall to fall and the nails might be deeper in the tree than they were, leaving the steps or stand less stable," pointed out Bushman. "Check to make sure that wooden parts are not rotten. If you plan to make your own stand this year, consider using treated lumber, which will last a lot longer.

If you plan to use any of the limbs on a tree as steps to get into your tree stand, or for balance after you get in, make sure that they're alive and sturdy.

"Remember the "death territory" - when you're putting a tree stand in place or when you're putting in screw-in tree steps, wear a safety belt," said Bushman. "There are many safety belts and harnesses on the market. It's important to buy one that gives you a feeling of comfort as well as security. I like one with a push-button on the ropes so I can tighten it to get closer to the tree or loosen it so I can lean out against the tree. It gives me a little more versatility when I'm putting up a tree stand or when I'm hunting."

Hunters should be sure the belt is big enough to go around a tree. If you're hunting from big trees, you might have to get an extension rope.

In another common sense area, hunters bring a gun or bow up after arriving in the stand. Before going up into the stand, make very sure your gun is unloaded and the bolt is open. Then tie a rope or line to the gun so the barrel points toward the ground. Before going down, reverse the procedure: unload the gun, open the bolt, tie it so the barrel points downward.

"Sure," Bushman said, "taking safety precautions in a tree stand is sometimes bothersome, but your friends and family will appreciate your safety efforts because they'd like to see you again. Enjoy your hunts. And, if you get a chance this fall, take your family and friends hunting. Hunt safely, hunt ethically and try to introduce someone new to hunting before the season is over."

Cell phone use by hunters restricted

Cellular phones have become a common piece of gear for many hunters these days, right there alongside blaze orange clothing and Global Positioning System equipment.

They can save your life if you're hurt, help you get found if you're lost and they even allow you to chat with your spouse as you sit around the campfire at night.

But they can also land you in court if you use them for the wrong things.

According to Minnesota hunting regulations, it is illegal to use radio communications to aid in the taking of game, such as talking to another hunter about the location of animals or driving animals.

"Cell phones are in fact radio communications, they do transmit on radio waves," said Schwartz. "A lot of people don't think of it as such, but it's no different than talking to somebody on a walkie-talkie."

Schwartz says more hunters are using or taking a cell phone into the field with them for safety reasons. Used for the right reason, they can save a life.

"We've had cases where people lost have used cell phones for emergency reasons," he said. "They can be a real safety tool, just as long as you use them correctly. Remember, just because it's available doesn't mean it's necessarily legal for hunting or fishing in Minnesota or any other state so buyer beware."

Use of radios to take animals is specifically mentioned on page 30 of the Minnesota Hunting and Trapping Regulations Handbook under general hunting information: a) using radio equipment to take big game or small game is unlawful; b) a DNR permit is required to take unprotected animals with the aid of radio equipment.

Schwartz said the biggest problem conservation officers encounter with radio communications is hunters using cell phones, walkie-talkies or CB radios to communicate with other hunters or vehicles in locating or driving game.

"It's not real common but it happens," said Schwartz. "If you're using radio communications devices to direct anyone in on game that's a no-no," said Schwartz.

Matriarch in Minnesota swan project is found dead in Itasca County

A trumpeter swan with wing tag No. 7 was found dead by a grouse hunter in northwestern Itasca County in September. Since her 1987 release, during the first Department of Natural Resources sponsored release in Minnesota, No. 7 has done more than her share to re-establish the species, raising more than 20 young. She was one of the oldest free trumpeters in Minnesota at 17 years of age, according to Steve Kittelson of the DNR.

Seven and her mate, No. 8, were a bonded pair, raised at the Minnesota Zoo. To this day, her mate, at 35 1/2 pounds, is the largest bird released during the restoration project. They were on national television, as hundreds of people watched in person, at a public ceremony signifying the return of the trumpeters to northern Minnesota after an absence of more than 100 years.

Over the years, No. 7 established a pattern of nesting in northern Minnesota and wintering on the Mississippi River at Monticello, Kittelson said. Most autumns, No. 7 would arrive at the wintering grounds with a mate and cygnets in tow.

Normally, trumpeters retain the same mate from year to year, but after No. 8 collided with a bridge and was killed at Monticello in 1990, No. 7 was documented to have paired with No. 28 until he died in 1992. Later, No. 7 bonded with an unmarked male. Last winter, Number 7 arrived at the wintering site with her mate, but without young, perhaps a sign of aging.

In 1989, No. 9, the first offspring of 7 and 8 and one of the first in the project, hatched and was banded. She, too, paired and began to show up at Monticello with young. The legacy of No. 7 continued.

Today, the population has come a long way due to the efforts of these birds and others, according to Kittelson, the DNR's Swan Restoration Project leader. "While a count is still being tabulated, it is possible that Minnesota has nearly reached a milestone of 100 nesting pairs," Kittelson said.

More than 75 pairs are known to have attempted nesting in 2000, pushing the estimated state population to at least 900 swans. When the final numbers are in later this fall, Minnesota could have more than 1,000 birds, which has not occurred since the mid 1800s. A survey flight in a portion of the northern Minnesota nesting range found 42 pairs with 171 young, a healthy 4.1 cygnets per brood. The key will be how many survive to reproduce at 4 years of age.

"Minnesotans can help the trumpeter swan recovery by being extra careful when participating in the hunting season and by not disturbing swans on breeding and resting sites," Kittelson said.

Trumpeter swan sightings should be reported to the DNR. Those who sight swans should record the date, location, number of white adults and gray young, and the color and codes of any markers noted. That information should be reported to the DNR, along with the reporter's name and phone number in case follow-up questions are necessary.

"It is especially important to assist in tracking the number of successful breeding pairs," Kittelson said.

Trumpeter swan sighting reports can be made by calling Kittelson at 651-296-9662 or by sending e-mail to steve.kittelson@dnr.state.mn.us. More information is available on the DNR Web site at www.dnr.state.mn.us.

Trumpeter swans are protected under state and federal law and are on the threatened species list in Minnesota. People who harass or injure trumpeter swans should be reported as soon as possible.

"Each year some swans are shot by vandals or by mistake, which should never happen," Kittelson said.

Waterfowl hunters often provide information leading to the conviction of those responsible, resulting in fines of up to $700, restitution to Minnesota of up to $3,000, and possible loss of equipment. People should call the Turn-in-Poachers line at 1-800-652-9093 to report a violation.

Non-band members need state licenses for hunting, fishing

Minnesota Department of Natural Resources officials remind all persons hunting or fishing within the boundaries of the White Earth Indian Reservation, who are not official White Earth band members, must possess appropriate state licenses to conduct hunting or angling activities.

Possession of White Earth tribal green card licenses alone will not be legal licensure for non-Band members.

Non-band members must also follow state seasons, limits and other rules while hunting or angling within the boundaries of the reservation.

State conservation officers will be issuing citations this fall to non-band members engaged in hunting or fishing activities while not in possession of appropriate state licenses.

DNR is promoting a safety-first hunt

Minnesota Department of Natural Resources sells about 600,000 hunting licenses each year, so there will be a large number of hunters afield this fall in search of a variety of big game and small game. DNR officials say it's important that each hunter put safety first to ensure an enjoyable and successful hunting trip.

Double-digit hunting fatalities were the norm in Minnesota during the 1950s and 1960s, with a high of 29 fatalities in 1961. But with the help of mandatory hunter education classes, the requirement that hunters wear blaze orange, and regulations against keeping a loaded firearm in a vehicle, the annual fatality average has been lowered to one.

Hunters born after Dec. 31, 1979, cannot purchase a license to hunt in Minnesota without first taking a DNR Safety Training Course and receiving a certificate. The majority of classes are held in August and September, although some are offered now. Current DNR Enforcement Division education class listings are available on the DNR Web site at www.dnr.state.mn.us.

Capt. Jeff Thielen, DNR Enforcement education program coordinator, believes most hunting incidents could be prevented if hunters applied what they learned during Firearm Safety Training.

"Minnesota is a very safe place to hunt and hunting is a very safe activity," Thielen said. "The few hunting incidents we do have are almost always linked to a safety violation. Hunters can prevent incidents by remembering some basic firearm safety rules."

As a refresher, DNR offers the following hunter safety tips:

- ■ Always point the muzzle of a firearm in a safe direction.
- ■ Treat every firearm with the same respect given to a loaded gun.
- ■ Be sure of the target and what is in front of and behind the target.
- ■ Unload and safely store firearms when not in use.
- ■ Handle firearms and ammunition carefully.
- ■ Never climb a fence or tree, or jump a ditch or log with a loaded firearm.
- ■ Carry firearms safely, keeping the safety on until ready to shoot.
- ■ Never point a firearm at anything that you do not want to shoot.
- ■ Don't drink alcohol or take mood-altering drugs before or while handling firearms.
- ■ Be aware of additional circumstances that require added caution or safety awareness.

Ethical hunters play a key role

Nearly 10 percent of Americans enjoy hunting, while nearly 10 percent oppose the sport. That leaves about 80 percent of the population that can be influenced by the actions of both groups. Therefore, it is critical for hunters who are passionate about preserving their pastime and traditions to be ethical and conservation-oriented, according to Capt. Jeff Thielen of the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources.

"Unfortunately, it is the handful of problem hunters who are the most visible," said Thielen, the DNR Enforcement Division education program coordinator. "It is up to the rest of us to be especially responsible and courteous so the non-hunting public can see that the majority of hunters behave in a responsible manor."

Thielen said hunters can take a few simple steps to protect their reputations as sportsmen.

- ■ Hunters should do everything possible to keep the area visited looking as it did before they arrived, by taking all trash and equipment with them.
- ■ Hunters should try to stay on roads with their vehicles as much as possible and refrain from tearing up land with off-road vehicles, all-terrain vehicles, or off-highway motorcycles.
- ■ Hunters should take the time to sight-in and know the capabilities of their firearms; the decision to take low percentage shots can lead to wounded animals, which is wasteful and unethical.
- ■ Hunters should do everything possible to respect other hunters in the field and keep from infringing upon them.

"Hunting ethics go deeper than just public image," Thielen said. "An ethical hunter can be proud of his or her actions and will most likely have fond memories of the hunting trip.

"For many hunters, hunting trips are more about spending time with friends and family than about killing ducks or deer," Thielen said. "Hunters who only perceive a trip to be successful if they kill an animal probably aren't going to be proud of their actions once they get home."

Hunters also need to remember that they are sharing Minnesota with hundreds of thousands of hunters and that their actions also can affect them.

"We have to be tolerant of others," Thielen said. "Hunters need to keep in mind that other people are out trying to enjoy themselves and that some of the things we do in the field can have either positive or negative effects on other hunters.

"Real sportsmen think about what it is that they like about hunting, and they do the kinds of things in the field that they will be proud of when the hunt is over."

Poaching is one of the most unethical acts that conservation officers see in the field. "An ethical hunter reports poaching to officers," Thielen said. "Not only is poaching unethical hunting, it leads to a lot of game waste and can get poachers a citation."

Turn-in-Poachers is a nonprofit organization working with the DNR's Enforcement Division to stop poaching and other unethical behavior. It pays rewards to anyone who reports poachers or resource violations. Callers do not need to reveal their identities. The TIP toll-free number, available 24 hours a day, seven days a week, is 1-800-652-9093.

Thielen said that crossing private property boundaries and improper use of off-road vehicles are also among the more common behaviors where hunters cross the lines of ethical behavior.

It takes a constant effort on the part of every hunter to protect the future of hunting, according to Thielen. "As hunters, we have a responsibility to ensure the future of hunting," Thielen said. "To a large degree, our own behavior is going to dictate what that future looks like."

Doe permit error will requires a response from license holders

Some winners of this year's antlerless permit lottery, who have not yet received a permit by mail, will need to take steps to obtain one.

The Minnesota Department of Natural Resources issued more than 196,000 permits for taking antlerless deer during the 2001 deer hunting season. Those permits were mailed Oct. 18. However, the bulk mailing equipment of a vendor outside the DNR put two permits into some envelopes. As a result, an estimated 3,500 of the envelopes mailed out contain the correct permit for the addressee and a second permit intended for someone else.

Unfortunately, the DNR does not know which permits were mailed incorrectly, according to Kurt Ulrich, head of the DNR Bureau of Information, Education and Licensing.

"This was something we had no control over, but we are doing our best to correct the situation," Ulrich said. "We know that deer hunters are eager to get these permits."

The DNR urges those who have applied for a permit, but who have not yet received one, to check the DNR Web site at www.dnr.state.mn.us, where the winners of this year's lottery are posted.

Anyone who is listed as a winner, but who has not yet received a permit, can obtain one by e-mailing the DNR with their full name, current address, date of birth and driver's license number, or by calling the DNR Information Center and provide that information over the phone.

A duplicate permit will be mailed or faxed within 48 hours. The DNR urges permit lottery winners to make the contact on line if possible, to avoid potential delays due to high telephone call volume.

Ulrich noted that those who received two permits can help sort out the problem. "If those folks would call us and give us the name on the second permit, we can mail out a duplicate. Another hunter may be very grateful."

DNR Information Center can be contacted toll free at 1-888-MINNDNR (646-6367), or by e-mail at info@dnr.state.mn.us.

Minnesota is ranked the healthiest state in the nation for the eighth time in 12 years

UnitedHealth Foundation's report on "America's Health: UnitedHealth Foundation State Health Rankings" put Minnesota at the top of the list of healthiest states in the nation.

For the eighth time in 12 years, Minnesota was ranked the healthiest state in the nation. Minnesota has been among the top three states for each of the 12 years the rankings have been published. The state led the nation this year in three key measures of health: highest support for public health care (includes investments in health, hospitals and self-sufficiency), lowest incidence of heart disease, and lowest premature death. The following improvements over the past year also contributed to Minnesota's number-one ranking:

- A reduction in violent crime, from 310 to 274 offenses per 100,000 people;
- A reduction in limited-activity days due to illness or injury, from 4.3 days per month to 3.4 days per month;
- An increased high-school graduation rate, from 83.6 percent to 84.7 percent.

This year's report also documented the progress that all 50 states have made toward better health over the past decade. The report shows a 14 percent increase in the overall national composite scores used to represent healthiness since 1990. During that time, Minnesota's score improved 17.9 percent due to several factors, including:

- A stable rate of people without health insurance, while rates of uninsured in other parts of the country increased;
- A reduction in heart disease, from 260.6 to 197.9 deaths per 100,000 people;
- An increase in the number of pregnant women receiving adequate prenatal care, from 72.2 percent to 75.9 percent (the report notes that this is a slower rate of improvement than elsewhere in the nation).

Minnesota Commissioner of Health Jan Malcolm welcomed the news, but said that the basics of public and personal health must remain strong as the nation focuses on the threat of terrorism. "As we address urgent threats such as bioterrorism, we must not forget the basics of public and personal health that have produced our overall good health in the first place," Malcolm said. "Protecting the safety of our food and water, promoting good physical and mental health, and detecting and preventing infectious diseases are examples of important activities that must remain strong."

Malcolm said that the state's initiative to eliminate health disparities is another critical activity that must continue. "Even though the averages show we're the healthiest state in the nation, we also know we have critical inequities in health affecting populations of color and American Indians." She referred to the department's recent research showing that infant mortality rates are two to four times higher for American Indians and African-Americans; diabetes rates are six times higher for American Indians; and the teen pregnancy rate for African-American girls is one of the highest in the country. "As we celebrate our number-one ranking, we must renew our commitment to eliminate disparities so that all Minnesotans have an equal opportunity to enjoy good health." MDH last week launched its $13.9 million initiative to eliminate health disparities, proposed by Gov. Ventura and approved by the 2001 Legislature.

Malcolm also noted that individuals should take positive steps to protect their own health while the nation addresses terrorism. "People are far more likely to get the flu or suffer from stress this fall than they are to be victims of bioterrorism. That's why it's important for people not to neglect their personal health and the health of their communities." Malcolm encouraged Minnesotans to get a flu shot, eat well, exercise, wash their hands frequently, get plenty of rest, avoid abusing alcohol or drugs, and provide positive emotional support for one another. "Minnesotans should be assured that we have one of the strongest state and local public health systems in the country for detecting and responding to threats of bioterrorism," Malcolm said. "We need Minnesotans to focus on their personal health so that, collectively, we can remain one of the healthiest states in the nation."

UnitedHealth Foundation's report is a comprehensive, yearly analysis of the relative healthiness of the American population using information supplied by the U.S. Department of Health, Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, National Safety Council, U.S. Department of Education, the U.S. Department of Labor, and the American Cancer Society. The rankings were developed by a panel of leading public-health scholars and analyzes physiological, mental, cultural and environmental characteristics using various factors such as prevalence of smoking, high school graduation percentages and unemployment rates. The rankings are available in their entirety at www.unitedhealthfoundation.com.

Ethanol could be economic development tool for region

Many farmers and legislators are promoting the construction of ethanol plants as a way to help struggling farmers, and as a way to diversify energy sources so that we aren't so reliant on petroleum. While the use and development of ethanol may help farmers, don't place too much faith in it as way to solve all of our problems.

Recently, Sen. LeRoy Stumpf came out in support of a plan to expand Minnesota's role in the manufacture of ethanol and biodiesel fuels. A second news story, this one by the Agricultural Utilization Research Institute that reported the completion of a report indicating that there is potential for a small grain-powered ethanol plant in northwestern Minnesota, demands that residents sit up and pay attention.

AURI is providing area residents an opportunity to participate in the decision-making process by attending one of three meetings planned to discuss the potential of developing a ethanol plant in northwest Minnesota. One of the three meetings will be held in room B at 9 a.m. Tuesday, November 20, at the Best Western in Thief River Falls.

The AURI story about the meetings indicated that the Minnesota state legislature has not yet approved an extension of Minnesota's ethanol producer's credit to the proposed plant, so there is no current plan to build a plant. However, the grower meetings will help move the process forward. According to the feasibility study, a plant with a production capacity of 15 million gallons per year would be optimal.

Ethanol production would add value to Minnesota's crops.

In his news release, Sen. Stumpf points out why another plant is needed and why it should be located in northwestern Minnesota. Minnesota travelers, Stumpf said, buy about 250 million gallons of ethanol each year, which is 10 percent of the total fuel consumed in the state. Ethanol plants are currently located in Marshall, Morris, Winnebago, Winthrop, Benson, Claremont, Bingham Lake, Buffalo Lake, Melrose, Preston, Luverne? Little Falls, Albert Lea and St. Paul.

"The state's next ethanol plant should be located in northwestern Minnesota, which would use our abundant wheat and barley resources in fuel production," said Sen. Stumpf.

Those in favor of ethanol production also note that the growing demand for ethanol is being holstered by federal requirements of states to sell fuels containing oxygen in order to reduce ground level ozone. Ethanol is one of only two "oxygenated" fuels which meet the federal requirements. The other fuel MTBE is being banned in a number of states as the result of developing information about the risks it may present to the environment and to human health.

Because of the growing concern about the environment, and our increasing demand for fuel, proponents of ethanol use and development have correctly surmised that demand for ethanol and biodiesel fuels will only increase. The uncertainty caused by turbulence in the Middle East, and the present state of our economy, strengthen's their cause. And because of Minnesota's early initiative in ethanol production, it is in an excellent position to capture new ethanol markets during this time of economic uncertainty.

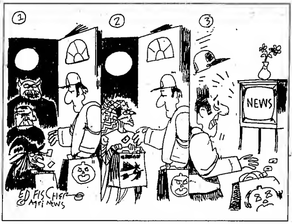
While ethanol production is successful as an economic development initiative; as an alternative energy resource, it faces an uphill battle.

Same experts are saying that relying on ethanol as an energy resource to reduce our reliance on petroleum products, is probably a false hope.

Ethanol is highly subsidized because it is expensive to produce. Without subsidies, which you and I know, don't last forever, it cannot compete with oil. In fact, some studies say that it takes more energy to produce ethanol than is produced by the process.

Secondly, production potential already far exceeds demand, with most of that capacity being controlled by one major corporation. So who will receive a majority of the the subsidies? The one major corporation.

Regardless of these disadvantages, the development of an ethanol plant in northwestern Minnesota is an excellent economic development initiative that deserves further study. We don't want to put all of our eggs in one basket, but it would certainly be one way to add value to crops grown and produced in Minnesota.



To understand drugs in the heartland, we must understand its history, origins

by Clark Carr
President Narconon International

Part 2 of a 5 part series

The Heartland — where a handshake is still a point of honor, where people are not afraid to bid a friendly greeting to a stranger and family values are strong. How could it be then that Middle America is being violated so badly by drug abuse in such epidemic proportions? The fact that the drug epidemic in our rural communities is worse per capita than the drug problems in New York City or Los Angeles is a hard pill to swallow.

The truth is the drug epidemic that is now posing a threat to us all is not a new problem. Back in the 1960's, as the increased use of drugs in America hit a new plateau of acceptability, one of the early anti-drug crusaders, American author/researcher and humanitarian L. Ron Hubbard wrote, "The acceleration of widespread use of drugs such as LSD, heroin, cocaine, 'angel dust,' marijuana and a long list of others has contributed heavily to a debilitated society. The drug scene is planet-wide. It is swimming in blood and human misery." It was this observation and grave concern that motivated Mr. Hubbard to spend the better part of the next 20 years researching effective antidotes to treat drug addiction.

As the drug epidemic began to find its way from the big cities to the rural communities in the heartland the problem grew unchecked. This happened because typically, smaller communities did not have a large enough tax base to meet the increasing need to hire and train sufficient numbers of law enforcement officers. The often limited resources of our small towns created greater difficulty in providing accessible drug treatment programs or enough trained substance abuse professionals or school nurses.

A legislative push to supply Federal funding to help small town America address the drug problem is currently underway. But this will be a lengthy process and chances of every rural community in need of receiving enough financial resources from the Feds to effectively address the substance abuse problem in the heartland is unlikely. So besides waiting for a federal handout, what can we do on a short term basis to protect our homeland from the scourge of substance abuse? There is actually a great deal that can be done to tackle this problem.

In this editorial series we will attempt to arm you with information that will help give you tools to impact the drug problem in your home and/or community. This is not a one-soldier war. It's a fight that concerns us all. If rural communities are educated on drug abuse and band together in a united effort to depopularize drugs, we can be triumphant in this battle, and in doing so preserve the way of life we hold so dear in the heartland. It must first be understood that the driving force behind the drug problem in America is "supply and demand."

The recent meth crisis has opened up our eyes to the fact that law enforcement alone will not solve the drug problem in America.

The recent meth crisis has opened up our eyes to the fact that law enforcement alone will not solve the drug problem in America. We have spent the better part of 30 years and countless billions of dollars to bolster law enforcement and military actions against the drug cartels, importers, and street pushers all in an attempt to keep illegal drugs from our borders and out of the hands of Americans. And to what end? The more money and resources we have thrown at keeping drugs out of the country, the more multi-million dollar methamphetamine and marijuana industries become established and successful within our country's borders. While law enforcement needs to be part of the overall solution to the drug problem, much more emphasis and resources need to be put towards de-marketing drugs in America. Drugs are popular with entirely too many Americans. As long as this is the case the drug problem will problem will continue to flourish.

If there is one thing we as Americans have successfully communicated to the world at large, it is that if we desire a product and are willing to pay for it, that product will be made available to us at just about any cost. The examples are many. The Hula Hoop, Pet Rocks, Cabbage Patch Dolls and now Pokemon. The main difference between these products and drugs is that while Americans eventually get bored with the toys, we continue to be intrigued by drugs despite the negative societal effects. Why? It is a matter of marketing and advertising/supply and demand. Most of us tend to think that drugs like LSD, heroin, cocaine and marijuana have only become a problem in the latter part of this century. The truth is that these drugs are not new to us. The drug epidemic that has been steadily brewing since the 1960's is not the only time in America's history that drug addiction has effected a large portion of the U.S. population.

To solve the drug problem today we must first understand the history and origins of drugs and their abuse in America. Whether we want to admit it or not we have become a drug oriented society. This mindset didn't just happen overnight. There has been a marketing and advertising campaign on drugs both illegal and legal that has been alive and well in the U.S. for more than 150 years — the details of which will be the subject of future articles.

No easy fix for mounting transportation concerns in Minnesota

by Sen. Roger Moe

At a time when the state budget is in trouble, Minnesota is facing a real transportation financing crisis. Frankly, we could have avoided this problem.

In recent years, we failed to strike a proper balance between tax cuts and investing in the preservation of our transportation system. Now that the state is clearly headed for harder economic times, solving this costly problem becomes more difficult.

Recent statewide surveys indicate growing concerns about the adequacy of Minnesota's transportation system. A majority of citizens polled are particularly interested in a response to worsening congestion problems in the Twin Cities area and along primary roadways throughout the rest of the state.

At the same time, we need to preserve the existing road and bridge system.

We are beginning to see transportation funding proposals designed to deal with the problem. Unfortunately, we failed to respond adequately to these mounting needs during good economic times in recent years.

Transportation takes a big slice out of the state budget pie, ranking third behind only K-12 Education, and Health and Human Services. So, the fact that we aren't keeping up with transportation needs puts the state in a very difficult financial position, especially with a budget shortfall looming.

In the Senate, we have consistently favored keeping up with dedicated transportation funding needs by voting for gradual increases in our investment. These efforts have been continually stymied, resulting in the state's failure to keep pace for more than a decade.

The gas tax, which is dedicated to road repairs and improvements, has remained unchanged at 20 cents a gallon since 1988. Buying power has shrunk by more than one-third since then. If the gas tax rate had been adjusted for inflation over the past 13 years, many of our transportation worries would be answered.

Another concern is the other major source of dedicated highway funds — the vehicle registration (tab) fees. Governor Ventura has succeeded in lowering these fees, primarily giving big breaks to owners of newer, expensive motor vehicles. To bridge the gap caused by the tab fee reductions, we have used general state funds available from recent surpluses to make up the shortfall in the dedicated Trunk Highway Fund.

However, the slowing of the economy could jeopardize these diverted general fund dollars because they come from the same pool as education, health care and crime prevention appropriations. If the state suffers a deficit, all of these areas are likely to suffer cuts.

One recent proposal to "solve" the transportation financing crisis sounds too good to be true, but it is really nothing more than an empty pipe dream. The idea of using state tobacco settlement revenues is unworkable. Those dollars are now part of the general fund budget that goes to education, health care and public safety.

Our highways, roads and streets are a substantial investment in need of adequate funding for preservation and necessary improvements. Unfortunately, no quick and easy solutions are readily available. We need to address this problem in a straightforward and long-term manner so that we won't have a literally crumbling transportation system in the years to come.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The title of "hero" belongs to those who risk their lives to save others

To The Editor:

I wish to thank the TRF Times, John Mattson, and Dave Hill for the flattering article in the Times issue of October 17. I wish to especially thank Kate Morberg, Times Reporter for the nice interview and her professionalism in writing and reporting. She is a great addition to the talented staff of the Times.

It was a great honor for me and I was privileged to be with 12 other winners of the Blue Cross Blue Shield "ageless Heroes." I can tell you that, as I stated in my short speech at the Mall of America, that I do not consider myself a "hero." That title belongs to individuals who put their lives on the line to help people who are in distress. I was honored to be in the midst of a lot of volunteers who donated their time and talents to help others. That is happening every day all over, including Thief River Falls. There are many who should be recognized but are content to enjoy themselves by the work they do. I also must thank several people in TRF who gave references to my nomination, Blaine White, and I thank them for that. Thanks for the many cards, letters, calls and greetings from so many. I even received a card from Arizona who saw the article on the Times Web Site. Thank again to the Times, Kate and residents of TRF. You are the real HEROES.

Respectfully,
Cliff Larson

Heavy Snowfall Misses This Area

"Chilly temperatures prevailed locally during the past week, reaching a maximum of 41 Monday afternoon, with a low for the week of 11 above Tuesday morning. No precipitation occurred during the week, this area having been fortunate in escaping a heavy snowfall Monday that brought six inches of snow to the Detroit Lakes and Fargo areas, and created blizzard conditions from St. Cloud to Wadena."

Nu-Way Sandwich Shop Closes November 3

"The Nu-Way Sandwich Shop, operated the past four years in the bus depot building, will discontinue business Saturday, November 3, it was announced today by Les and Ella Larson, proprietors. The space vacated by the sandwich shop will be remodeled to provide quarters for Dr. H. Paul Wendt, local physician."

W. E. Dahlquist To Leave Sunday For Camp Rucker

"In company with four other state senators and five representatives, W. E. Dahlquist will leave by plane from St. Paul Sunday for Camp Rucker, Alabama, where the group will inspect facilities. Approximately 35 of the members of Company F, Minnesota national guard, who entered federal service last January, are still stationed at Camp Rucker. The visiting delegation will be escorted by Adjutant General J. E. Nelson of St. Paul and will return Tuesday. Arrangements for the trip were made at the direction of Governor C. Elmer Anderson."

Halloween Window Painting Contest Prizes Awarded

"Numerous attractive paintings have adorned windows in the downtown district during the past week, and the selection of prize-winners posed a problem for the judges in the Hallowe'en window painting contest sponsored by the merchants' committee of the Civic and Commerce association.

"In Class A, fifth and sixth grades, first prize of $5 went to a painting on a Red Owl store window prepared by David Klop and Raymond Mjelde. Second prize of $3 was won by Shirley Kulseth and Ordell Helgenset for their painting on Bjorkman's window; and third prize of $2 went to Kay Kollitz, Sandra Nabben and Ruby Waale, for the painting at the Waale Studio.

"In Class B, seventh, eighth and ninth grades, Patty Clinton, Glenda Gausen and Florence St. Martin won first prize with their window painting at the Hartz store. A painting on the Thief River Pharmacy window by Janice Aase and Minnie Poland won second honors and third prize went to David Berg, Arlene Booren and Glenn Carlson for their painting at the Robertson Lumber Company.

"Due to the lack of entries in Class C, senior high school, only a third prize was awarded, this going to Helen Hendrickson for a painting at the Prior Electric company.

Serving as judges in the contest were Orrin Hall, Mrs. Lloyd Bennes, Mrs. G. L. Biddick and Miss Bernice Troumbly."

MUCH DAMAGE
Prairie Fires Burn Considerable Hay.

"Prairie fires west of here in the towns of Bray and Norden did considerable damage last week. In a number of instances farmers lost their hay and several small buildings were burned. The fires originated on the vacant school lands.

"On the reservation east of here a large tract of land was burned over, and a number of Indians' houses and logs in the river were burned."

PAPER MILL
One May Be Built Here Next Year.

"George W. Mason, well know in this city, arrived here last week from Wisconsin. Mr. Mason is the owner of a water power just south of the city and is here to ascertain the amount of power that can be developed. If the results of his investigations are favorable, Wisconsin parties with whom he is interested will erect a paper mill here next year. There are unlimited quantities of material around here of which paper can be manufactured, and a mill that will give employment to 200 or more men the year round is one of our possibilities."

Those who visited Judy last week were Peggy Skoglund from the Old Mill, Kelly Leiraoth, Karl Kasprowicz and Marcus, Marie Steffan, Juno Kasprawicz, Pat and Wayne Larson, and Ronnie Kleinvachter from Stillwater and Claudia Berggren. The visitors this week are welcome repeats. Could it be the good coffeepot or Judy's wonderful hospitality?

Paul and Shirley Anderson traveled to Baton Rouge, La. for Shirley's nephew, Danny Bomard's wedding. Kristopher and Kenrick Anderson were able to be at the wedding also. ▶ Tuesday morning, a groundbreaking ceremony was held at the future site of the new Wells Fargo bank in downtown Thief River Falls. Representatives of the Thief River Falls Chamber of Commerce were on hand to help Lenee Iverson, community banking president of Wells Fargo in Thief River Falls, with the ceremony. Pictured from left are: Rohlf Bredeson, Chamber of Commerce Ambassador, Julie Olson, Chamber of Commerce President, Lenee Iverson, and Kermit Genereux, Chamber of Commerce Ambassador. Construction on the building began Tuesday.

Wells Fargo breaks ground on new bank

Construction on the new Wells Fargo full service store in Thief River Falls began on Tuesday, November 6.

The new 7,000-square foot facility, which will be located at 208 Main Avenue North, will be home to banking, investments, mortgage, insurance and private client services. Three lanes for drive-up services and a new Wells Fargo full-service Express ATM with stamp dispensing capabilities are added customer conveniences in the plan.

"It's exciting to see the construction process start," said Lenee Iverson, community banking president of Wells Fargo in Thief River Falls. "When it's done, I think our customers will love the convenience of one-stop financial shopping all on one floor."

Groundbreaking for the new Wells Fargo bank in downtown Thief River Falls that took place on Tuesday, took years of planning. Local officials are very pleased that bank officials decided to build in the downtown business district.

"Obviously we're very pleased that Wells Fargo decided to do their project in the downtown business district and we would like to encourage others to do so," said Don Stewart, Thief River Falls community development director.

Stewart pointed out that trends in shopping have changed over the years, and because of these trends Thief River Falls is lucky to have what it has. It's also why the community doesn't have the choices and selection it used to have.

Stewart said downtown businesses, like the banks, JC Penney, Budget, Ben Franklin and Sears, and the other downtown businesses

Grant for camera puts minors in local courtrooms

Pennington County Attorney's office received a grant for $5,980 this week to install a camera in its witness room. The purpose of the two-way communication and camera is to allow minors who are victims of criminal sexual abuse to testify in a setting outside of the courtroom.

Pennington County Assistant Attorney Al Rogalla explained that there are times when it becomes very difficult for minor children to testify in the courtroom in criminal sexual abuse cases without becoming victimized again. On the other hand, it's important to guarantee that defendants also have the right to face their accuser. Two years ago, the county received funds to provide for a witness interview room. This room will now be outfitted with equipment purchased with the grant funds that will allow interviews to take place, and two-way direct communication to the courtroom.

Pennington county received the grant for the new equipment from the Minnesota Department of Human Services. With this equipment, victims will be able to testify in the courtroom without being physically present in the room, but still respond to questions from the prosecution and defense.

Rogalla said in view of the fact that there was a lot of competition for the $80,000 in grant funds that were available, Pennington county was very fortunate.

The reporting of incidents of criminal sexual misconduct in Pennington county have increased in the past 10 or 15 years. According to law enforcement records for Thief River Falls and

Although he didn't get to shoot a gun this year, Dustin Holt, 11, Ramsey, enjoyed his first year of deer hunting with his dad, other relatives, and their friends. The group of 10 hunters he was with have been coming to this area for 18 to 20 years. This year, they shot 13 deer in two days. They stopped at Amoco 24 in Thief River Falls Sunday afternoon to register their deer.

Success rates for deer hunters vary substantially

Law enforcement receive no reports of accidents

Good weather and three successive easy winters for deer helped contribute to a successful hunt for many deer hunters last weekend.

Registrations at Amoco 24 in Thief River Falls were down Saturday, but picked up quickly Saturday evening and Sunday, according to clerks.

One group of deer hunters stopped at Amoco 24 Sunday afternoon to register their deer. One of the hunters explained that their group of 10 hunters shot 10 of their 13 deer on Saturday.

These hunters didn't have any complaints about the weather. "It can't never be too warm for all the cold years we've had to endure," said one of the hunters.

The group, which consisted of hunters from Ramsey, Watertown, Stillwater, Bemidji, and Minot, N.D., has been hunting in the Viking area for 18 to 20 years. Some years have been better for bigger deer, said one hunter, but the farmers wanted them to take the smaller deer, and they did.

One of the members of their party this year was 11-year-old Dustin Holt of Ramsey. Although he didn't get to use a gun this year, Dustin said he had a great time, and is looking forward to his next hunting trip.

At Amoco 24, which holds a special promotion for deer hunters registering their deer at the store, clerks said they didn't have any problems. Sunday they said over 150 deer had been registered at the store. They said the hunters seemed satisfied, but many mentioned shooting smaller deer this year.

Not all of the deer taken last weekend were small. Dustin Marquis, 18, Grygla took an eight-point buck that dressed out at 230 pounds. The Marquis family also took another eight-point buck, but this one only dressed out at 215 pounds. Dustin entered the "big" buck in the Big Buck contest at Diamond's in Grygla.

Marquis reduces the importance of luck in his hunting by spending a good part of his summer scouting for deer. He knew the pattern of these two bucks before he even entered the field on Saturday and Sunday. Luck did play a little part in taking the big buck, however. In what is probably a "slight" understatement, Marquis said of taking the buck at 400 yards at a run, "I was kind of lucky."

Both of the deer taken by the Marquis family were taken just west of their home near Grygla. They plan to have both deer mounted.

This was not Dustin's first big buck. About four or five years ago, Marquis took an 11-point buck that dressed out at 260 pounds.

As an interesting side note, the big buck only had three teeth left, and although it had fewer points than the 11-point buck taken four or five years ago, the eight point has more mass.

Dustin attends Northland Community and Technical College in Thief River Falls.

Thief River Falls Mayor Mark Borsheim had a good time hunting this past weekend, but didn't take a deer. Borsheim, who hunts around Leonard, said their party got one out of four deer this first weekend, and will go out next weekend. But Borsheim is more impressed with the economic trophy deer hunting

TRF to host 2001 Dairy Producer Forum

Thief River Falls will be one of the several communities throughout Minnesota to host a 2001 Dairy Producer Forum. The event will take place on November 28 at the Best Western in Thief River Falls.

Minnesota Milk Producers Association and industry sponsors are hosting a series of 14 meetings across Minnesota's Dairyland to provide information on the new environmental rules, access to new funding sources to meet the new standards and to receive input from producers on dairy related issues.

The theme is "Protecting our Environment." Minnesota Dairy Producers are faced with conforming to new environmental standards. Even though most producers are already committed to sound environmental practices, the rules have caused a great deal of confusion across the countryside. These meetings will eliminate the confusion.

The meetings will address, "What the new rules mean on my farm, local resources available to help, and money to get the job done." Representatives from Minnesota Pollution Control Agency, County Feedlot Officers, Minnesota Department of Agriculture, Extension, Natural Resource Conservation Service and Soil and Water Conservation District personnel will introduce themselves, their programs and will be available for questions during the Forum. MMPA will explain the wide range of funding sources available to help dairy producers modernize their farms. The real key to the whole Forum series is having the people in one place to assist the producers on the spot.

The Forum continues after lunch with Producer Experiences. Several area producers will briefly explain what they have recently done on their farm to meet the requirements of the new rules. A question and answer period, issues discussion and the cost-share registration wrap up the event. Information gathered from all forum sessions will guide MMPA action on behalf of all dairy producers in Minnesota.

For more information contact Minnesota Milk Producers Association at 1-877-577-0741.

Hunting and Writing

Matters of Passion

by Kathi Carlson
Reporter

For many, this past weekend was one of passion.

No, I did not join the thousands of Minnesota men and women who took to the woods Saturday morning in search of in search of innocent four-legged creatures but rather endured the days that led up to it.

For days, the preparations and incessant talk of family members prior to their trip to the woods wore on my nerves, and I was only too glad to come home to an empty nest on Friday after work.

Solitude was a welcome respite. It afforded me the opportunity to spend some time by myself and engage, uninterrupted, in some passions of my own.

Believe it or not, grabbing a pen and paper or sitting down at a keyboard and organizing words on paper is among those passions. While I've been a reporter for a little more than four years, I've been a writer all of my life.

Among my favorite words are those that appear in the opening pages of Writers INC, a writing guide that was once, and perhaps still is, issued to freshman at Lincoln High School — "Writing is mind traveling, destination unknown."

Those words are true. Regardless of who you are or what you're writing, when you sit down to write, you never know where your words are going to take you.

I'll have to admit that writing as a reporter can be downright mortifying at times when you're trying to tell someone else's story. Even more difficult is reporting facts without tainting them with one's own ideas or opinions. Writing these stories right is so important that one's livelihood frequently depends on it.

Sharing my passion for reporting, however, isn't the direction I want to go this time, however.

Rather, it's the personal writing that I did for years and years before getting paid for it and the writing that I'll continue to do long after the job ends that I'd like to discuss in hopes of encouraging others to share my passion.

By recording them on paper, many of life's magical moments can be preserved. The excitement of a first date, the anticipation that leads up to a wedding day, the feelings one experiences for an unborn child, the mixed emotions we feels as we watch our child get on a school bus for the first time, graduate for high school, get married — by recording these thoughts and experiences on paper, one can leave a priceless legacy for generations to come.

Kids do say the darnest things, and writing their words down preserves them for later enjoyment and reflection.

One of my favorite stories involves my oldest son when he was in the first grade. As we were driving down First Street on our way home from a Tiger Cub meeting one fall evening, he looked at me and asked, "Mommy, what does 'gay' mean?" I, of course, did some fast thinking and tried, as best I could, to explain same-sex relationships in simple terms a seven-year-old might understand.

Worried that he'd viewed some too-adult television program or engaged in an inappropriate conversation on the playground, I delved into his inquiry and asked him why he asked. His easy reply was one I'll never forget. "Oh, I was just wondering," he said. "We're singing a song in school about a turkey who's happy and gay."

I had gotten all shook up over a Thanksgiving song! Naturally, Mommy had to do some more quick thinking and retract her previous statement, setting the child straight without confusing him.

This little story is among the many that, when in print, can be laughed about over and over again through the years. Giving it permanence on paper also drives home the important lesson a mom learned that day.

While writing down the little antidotes that comprise our lives can bring us joy, writing about the things that hurt us can bring us peace and often, understanding.

During the grieving process, I wrote a letter to my dad, telling him all of the things I wished I'd said to him while he was alive.

After being scorned by a friend several years ago, I wrote her a letter, telling her how much she had hurt me and how disappointed I was in her.

So far, I've kept the letter I wrote to my dad. However, when I was finished with the letter to the former friend, I ripped it up into tiny pieces. While sending it to her would not have changed the situation, the ritualistic act of tearing it to shreds helped me forgive her, thus letting go of the pain and moving on.

While much of what I write is preserved, more is thrown away as it's not a finished product I seek but rather the discoveries I make about myself and sometimes others while writing it.

While a computer is great for reporting and I wouldn't have yet turned out my first publishable story without one, a basic pen and loose-leaf notebook are my favorite tools for the personal writing that I enjoy.

If, as I begin my writing journey, my mood is good, my handwriting will be as good as it gets. However, as the tone of how I'm feeling changes so does my handwriting. Sadness and especially anger are almost always reflected in my penmanship.

While I suppose these same feelings might be expressed in the way one touches a keyboard, I have a feeling that frequently expressing anger could result in considerable expense. Besides, it's interesting to simply look at one's handwriting and observe the feelings it reflects as it goes from neat to scratchy and scrawly and back to orderly again.

There's that freedom-producing tearing-up process, too, that the "delete" key on the word processor just doesn't measure up to.

The theme of this story is nothing new as I try to persuade others to join me in my passion.

Since September 11, I've written more than ever before as I seem to be among the 25 percent of Americans who are having problems going about their daily routines since the terrorist attacks.

No, I have not, through my writing, figured out why Osama bin Laden and his followers hate us and are hellbent on destroying the United States and all it represents, and I doubt I ever will. I have, however, overcome some of my fears about the situation.

As I holed up by in my blessed solitude over the weekend and rambled on paper, I came to some conclusions about the rite of the hunt.

Others hunt for the same reason I write. As they tramp through the woods, communing with nature, hunters make discoveries about themselves and the world around them just as I do when I'm searching for the right words to express my thoughts and feelings.

It's simply a matter of passion and finding what we all want more than anything else — personal peace.

Representatives of Digi-Kay Corporation recently accepted an award from the Minnesota Developmental Achievement Association (MnDACA) in recognition of the opportunities the company has provided for employment of people with developmental disabilities. The award was presented at a reception on Tuesday, October 30, attended by Falls D.A.C. staff and clients. Pictured (from left) are Doug Brandt, Bruce Saustad, Janet Olson, Marci Lindahl and Marie Finney, representing Digi-Kay, Jerry Mueller, executive director of MnDACA, and Sally Erickson, director of Falls D.A.C. According to Erickson, the successful relationship between Digi-Kay and Falls D.A.C. has existed for about 10 years. The work from Digi-Kay performed by Falls D.A.C. clients includes the packaging of resistors and various types of hardware and components and the shipping of several hundred catalogs each day to Digi-Kay customers in the United States and Canada. Erickson, who nominated the company for the award, said that it is a symbol of Falls D.A.C.'s gratitude for Digi-Kay's continuing cooperation.

This wide-eyed tiger was among the 350 children who enjoyed the 57th annual Thief River Falls Lions Club Halloween party at the National Guard Armory.

After a few minor adjustments to her costume, this trick or treater was ready to roll at the Thief River Falls Lions Club Halloween party October 31 at the National Guard Armory. Over 350 children and their parents attended this year's 57th annual event.

Dressed as the Statue of Liberty, Jill Safrenski was among those who received a $2 bill for her "best costume" at the 57th annual Thief River Falls Lions Club Halloween party at the National Guard Armory October 31. The patriotic theme of Jill's costume was frequent at the party as numerous policemen, firemen and soldiers milled about enjoying the games and prizes provided to each participant.

This vampire wound up for the pitch and hurled a dart at a target at the 57th annual Thief River Falls Lions Club Halloween party at the National Guard Armory. Hitting the target was of no consequence as a prize was guaranteed at every game for every participant. Over 350 children and their parents attended the afternoon event for children in the fifth grade and younger, and that evening, the Lions hosted a pizza and pop party/dance for sixth, seventh and eighth grade students.

St. Bernard's to host blood drive in November 20-21

The holiday season is just around the corner and even after suffering so many losses in September, Americans have much to be thankful for. United Blood Services thanks all those who turned out to donate blood in September and asks the community to come together to donate blood at Thief River Falls' upcoming blood drive. The blood drive will help replenish the local blood supply and stock area hospital shelves. This drive will be held at St. Bernard's Catholic Church on Tuesday, November 20 from 1 to 7 p.m., and on Wednesday, November 21, from 7 a.m. to noon.

"If you did not have a chance to donate blood during the weeks following the attacks on the World Trade Center and the Pentagon, your donation is especially precious as we prepare for Thanksgiving and the holidays," said Rhonda Ellefson of United Blood Services. "Traditionally, the holiday season brings on blood shortages; the people of Thief River Falls can help assure that a blood shortage does not occur this year," Ellefson said.

The blood drive comes at a critical time. United Blood Services is concerned about a serious blood shortage during the holiday season when the tremendous amount of blood donations that were given during the terrorist attacks will no longer be available to hospital patients since the blood can be stored for only 42 days.

Make a commitment to donate blood locally by calling Sylvia Jensen at 681-4512 for a convenient appointment. Volunteer blood donors must show identification, be at least 17, weight at least 110 pounds and be in good health. The entire donation process takes less than an hour and begins with an interview about medical history and current health. The donation itself takes less than 10 minutes, then donors enjoy refreshments before resuming their day's activities.

SPEAKING OF . . .

Sherry LaCoursiere

...Did You Get Your Deer, Dear?

For the life of me, I can't understand what pleasure people get from hunting deer. Although you may think I'm so softhearted that I can't bear the thought of shooting such a dear creature as a deer, that isn't it at all.

I grew up in a hunting home. We thought of the deer as game - venison - meat for the table. No one turned up their nose at a nice venison roast, steak or stew, nor did they mind the crisp-roasted ducks and geese, and plump little grouse or partridge breasts. So it isn't that I'm a wimp about hunting and eating game, but the reason I cannot understand the pleasure people get from deer hunting is that it seems like so doggone much work for such a short amount of time and so little meat.

Let me tell you what it was like when I had a houseful of hunters going out every year.

Weeks before the hunting season began, guns were brought out to be admired and petted like a puppy in the house. Sometimes new guns were bought and then it was like adding a new baby to the family, all the oohing and aahing and cooing that went on. They called it "getting the guns ready," but I think it was themselves they were getting ready. The smell of gun oil would linger in the air, permeating the house for weeks after the hunt.

Of course the guns had to be "sighted in," and this entailed making targets. The hunters carefully drew them, big bulls-eyes, colored them in and placed them on stiff cardboard so they all could go out and shoot the cardboards full of holes. They were so proud when they filled them with holes, especially in the middle. They just had to bring them home to show me. I would make appropriate noises of approval.

Hunting clothing was brought out - never washed for fear the deer would smell the soap, I suppose - but brushed, holes and tears mended, buttons re-sewn and pockets checked. This was, perhaps, the only time I saw my sons take up needle and thread to actually sew something. But hunting clothes were still something special - they must be done by the person who will wear them, you see.

Boots were checked and warm innersoles put in place. Gloves were examined and tried on to see how well the fingers fit the triggers this year - bring up the gun, stick the gloved finger in the trigger place and, zoom, zoom, sight around the house on whatever knick-knack is closest to make sure all felt just right. Be careful not to aim at one another or anyone else in the house though.

Food was discussed for weeks - who would bring what, whether breakfast would be bought from a fast food place and eaten on the road or fixed at the camp site, how many cookies, potato chips and sandwiches would be needed, what kind of sandwiches would be best, and where are the thermoses.

The morning before the hunt, everyone is up before 5 a.m. to "get used to it" for the following morning. They wandered around in a fog the entire day, scarcely daring to sit down for fear they would fall asleep and ruin the "getting used to it."

By this time their personal grooming had deteriorated to the point that they looked (and smelled) like bums. If they were able, they let their facial hair grow, and sometimes the hair on their head too. They didn't shower or wash their hair because the deer would be able to smell it and wouldn't come near them. Of course there would be no deodorant or other smelly stuff used either.

Comes the night before the hunt and the guys are so excited and worked up about tomorrow (and probably overtired) that they can't get to sleep. They are bouncing through the house like rubber bands. I would finally give them each a sleeping pill and they would bounce off to bed about 8 p.m. and fall asleep snoring with their mouths wide open and their alarms all set for long before sunrise.

The morning of the hunt was unbelievable. Anyone who is trying to sleep in a house with deer hunters may just as well give up on it. The noise of the many alarm clocks going off would wake the dead, let alone the noise of a houseful of hunters getting ready.

Lights would blaze all through the house, water was running, toilets flushing, coffee perking, doors slamming. I would stumble from my bed to confront the pumpkin-colored poltergeists and be greeted by a hyperactive dog racing in circles throughout the house. Evidently even the dog had caught a whiff of whatever hunting bug was in the air.

The draft from the open door would be frigid. All I could think of was my warm bed with my electric blanket set on high. The draft crept up my pajama legs and froze my whole body.

The hunters didn't seem to mind the cold at all. They ran in and out, loading up the vehicle, perky and lively, looking nothing like they did last night. Come to think of it, they looked great and I was the one who looked like they did yesterday.

Off they went, loaded for...deer, I guess. Suddenly the house was utterly silent. I closed the dog in the kitchen with a bone and went back to bed, glad it was them out in the cold and not me. I snuggled into my warm bed under my electric blanket.

I just can't understand what there is to enjoy about that deer hunting. It seems utterly exhausting to me. And I haven't even told you about how they looked when they got home at night.

Shooting Star introduces Digital 21 game

Shooting Star Casino has unveiled the latest in gaming technology - Digital 21.

Digital 21 is a traditional blackjack with a hi-tech twist. In Digital 21, the dealer administers the cards through a computerized control panel, or Digital Card System. Each player's hand is displayed on a hi-resolution LCD screen and the total is updated as each additional card is dealt. At the end of each round, an outcome border illuminates indicating a winning hand, a losing hand or a push.

From a players' stand point, Digital 21 offers many advantages. It increases interaction between the dealer and player by virtually eliminating the need to add up cards. It offers tips to players such as when to hit, stand, double down or split. The Digital Card System, DCS, also cuts down on the time spent shuffling. In traditional blackjack, it takes approximately two minutes to shuffle six decks. The DCS shuffles six decks and deals out the cards in less than seven seconds.

Shooting Star currently operates four Digital 21 tables, which were installed at the beginning of October. Shooting Star is holding a free Digital 21 blackjack a tournament on Nov. 9 at 3 p.m. and 8 p.m. to help players become acquainted with the new version of the game.

Samanthe Frazer, 10, daughter of Chad and Tiffany Frazer of Thief River Falls, is the winner of the $200 gift certificate incentive prize this year for wearing protective gear while bicycling. Northwest Medical Center and the Thief River Falls Police department have teamed up to provide the $200 gift certificate as an incentive to encourage youth throughout the community to wear protective gear while bicycling. Samanthe was chosen from among 86 youth who were "caught" wearing protective gear this year. In addition to becoming eligible for the $200 gift certificate, each of the youth who were caught also received a coupon for a free ice cream treat at the Northern Lights Ice Cream Wagon. Q&A SOCIAL SECURITY

Provided by the Social Security District Office in Grand Forks, ND

Q: I saw that the cost-of-living adjustment information for next year was announced. When does this go into effect?

A: The 2.6 percent increase will begin with benefits that 45 million Social Security beneficiaries receive in January 2002. Increased payments to more than 6 million Supplemental Security Income (SSI) beneficiaries will begin on December 31. The annual Cost-of-Living Adjustment (COLA) is one of the most critically important features of the Social Security program," stated Acting Commissioner Massanari. "For the elderly, it guarantees that their foundation of retirement income will remain strong for as long as they live." Social Security and SSI benefits increase automatically each year based on the rise in the Consumer Price Index for Urban Wage Earners and Clerical Workers (CPI-W) from the third quarter of 2000, through the third quarter of 2001, Social Security and SSI beneficiaries will receive a 2.6 percent COLA for 2002.

Q: What will the Medicare premium be next year?

A: The Medicare (Part B) premium will be $54 per month in 2002. This represents an increase of $4 per month. In most cases no premium is charged for the Hospital (Part A) of Medicare. Worth noting is that the Part B premium charged to the client represents about one-fourth of the actual cost with the difference picked up by Medicare. By the way, you can obtain Medicare information and publications via the Web site www.medicare.gov or by calling 1-800-MEDICARE (1-800-633-4227) during the hours of 8 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. local time, Monday through Friday. With access to a TTY/TDD, hearing impaired individuals can call 1-877-486-2048.

Q. I have made arrangements to retire early in 2002 and have an appointment to file for Social Security in a couple of weeks. Will my earnings for 2001 be used to figure out my SSA benefits?

A. Earnings for the purposes of Social Security retirement mean gross wages or net income from self-employment. This question is answered in terms of wage income. Your earnings for the year 2001 will be considered in determining the amount of your retirement benefit. This can take place in several ways.

The fastest way for you to tell the SSA representative the amount of your gross wages during the interview and for us to receive proof of those earnings from you with your application. Since you have not yet received a W-2 for the year, have available your computerized pay stub showing year-to-date earnings information, the name of your employer and your name or Social Security number. If your pay stub does not show year-to-date information, you could use as proof a signed letter from your employer on a company letterhead showing the information. This will allow the SSA representative to credit your record with all of your earnings, to that point, for the year. When all wages for a year are credited to to employee records, usually during late summer of the next year, any additional wages credited to you will automatically be checked against your retirement benefits to see if they should increase. This is done without any action needed on your part, and any change to your retirement benefit amount would be retroactive.

PARENTING TIPS
Discipline

"Can't you make your children behave?" "What that child needs is some good discipline."

Maybe you have either heard or said something like these two comments. Unfortunately, these comments are not very helpful for anyone. They are too vague. Exactly what does "behave" mean? What does "discipline" mean? For both adults and children it is far more helpful to say exactly what you mean.

For some people the word discipline means punishment. I prefer the dictionary meaning of "to train." If we are going to train children as to what is acceptable and what is not acceptable, then it seems to me we would have to do two things: first to be specific and then to let them know what to do every time they do something they shouldn't.

For example, if your discipline consists of: "Stop that," "No," "don't do that" and nothing else, I would expect a young child to continue the misbehavior. Why? Two reasons:

1) you did not tell him/her what to stop and

2) you did not tell him/her what to do.

A more effective approach would be to say: "Stop jumping on the couch. Couches are for sitting only. If you want to jump you will have to go to the basement."

Try thinking of yourself as a teacher or trainer and then discipline your children in a way that will teach or train.

SOMETHING TO TALK ABOUT

Talk about outdoors and what you see when you look out the window. Do you see trees, birds, squirrels? Cars, buildings? Describe what you see by color, size, shape, etc.

ON THE OTHER HAND

Kate Levinson, Lincoln High School

Touring prospective colleges over MEA break was very exciting for me. However, it had a different effect on my mom, who is an exceedingly emotional person at times. Unlucky for her, she inherited her mother's ability to be moved to tears by everything. She has even been known to cry while watching Campbell's Chicken Noodle Soup commercials on TV. Needless to say, visiting colleges was a traumatic experience for her.

The first two schools we looked at were beautiful. We spent the majority of the tours in awe of all the buildings, people, and energy around us. There was no time for Mom to be sad.

It wasn't until school number three that it hit her. I was talking to a few students at an activity fair about events and concerts when the tears started. I turned around to see them dripping down her face. "Come on, Mom," I thought. "I'm not going to college for almost two years."

So there was my poor mother crying in the middle of Special Visit Day because her only child, her baby, will eventually be going to college, and I was laughing at her. I felt guilty for laughing, but to me, the tears were pointless. I felt even worse for my dad, who wanted to disown both of us. Embarrassed, my mom managed to make it through the rest of the day with a minimal amount of tears.

I found it strange that the exact same event – the college tours – could have such different effects on Mom and me. I was so excited that I could've packed my bags and gone off to college the next day. It made me realize how eager I am to move forward. But the reality made my mom want to go back to when I was in kindergarten and start over.

I know she will continue to cry at every concert I'm in, every banquet I have, and every other college we visit. I don't understand why my mom does it or how to make her stop. I'll just have to figure out how to fix the problem before I inherit it and start crying over Campbell's Soup.

are very important to Thief River Falls. Residents, he said, need to realize their importance and remember to shop locally.

Thief River Falls has tried a number of things to attract and enhance opportunities for business in the downtown business district. Beginning about 1997, for example, several downtown businesses participated in a state and local program that provided $1.5 million for renovation — each individual project providing owners with a mixture of low interest and deferred loans. The money being paid back on the loans is going into a loan fund which will be used for future projects.

Thief River Falls Mayor Mark Borsheim said it's important to keep downtown Thief River Falls as active as possible.

In the case of Wells Fargo, he said he would have hated to see them go out on the strip mall section of the community, because it would have been detrimental to the downtown section of the community.

Borsheim said the city cooperated with Wells Fargo to help them iron out some problems with parking and other issues, and that the city is willing to work with any business interested in improving the climate of downtown Thief River Falls.

The city, Borsheim said, has participated in a number of programs to re-vitalize the downtown section of the community, including the grant program mentioned by Development Director Stewart.

For small rural communities like Thief River Falls, survival often depends on going the extra mile with local business.

During the construction, customers are asked to use the bank's front entrance at 110 Third Street East. The back entrance will be closed, except for handicapped accessibility. The Wells Fargo South store, Highway 59 and Dale Street, is offering special extended hours during the construction from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. on weekdays.

Success rates for deer hunters vary substantially provides for the community. "It has a huge impact on our community," said Borsheim. "For many businesses in the community, it is one of their busiest weeks."

Local law enforcement and emergency personnel are, also pleased with hunters. A check with local and area law enforcement agencies indicated that during this, the first weekend of deer hunting season, no accidents were reported.

Lincoln High School students rehearse an abstract dance/fight scene for the upcoming fall play, "Peter Pan." The play will be performed November 16 and 17 at 7 p.m. Connie Stock is the director. Michelle Duffy is in charge of choreography.

Sisler Country Blossoms and 24/7 have formed a new partnership. Doug Dallmann, owner of 24/7, an outlet providing Prowler clothing and gifts, announced as of October 1 the store would be located in Sisler Country Blossoms on the second floor. Beth Sisler, owner of Country Blossoms, which sells cut flowers, plants, gifts, silk arrangements, party needs, and candy bouquets, said she is excited about the possibilities for the two stores. Recently, the Thief River Falls Chamber of Commerce Ambassadors presented Sisler and Dallmann with a More Progress Award. Pictured from left are Lisa Robson, Chamber Ambassador, Beth Sisler, Doug Dallmann, and Grant Wantz, Chamber Ambassador. Sisler Country Blossoms is open from 9 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Monday through Friday, and from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Saturdays.

Dustin Marquis and his sister Ashley stand next to one of the deer he shot just west of their home near Grygla during deer season last weekend. The eight-point buck dressed out at 230 pounds. Four or five years ago Dustin, who is now 18, shot an 11-point buck that dressed out at 260 pounds. The Marquis family also harvested a second big buck this year, but the eight-point only dressed out at 215 pounds. Dustin, the son of Earl and Penny Marquis, is an avid deer hunter, who spends considerable time preparing and scouting for the season.

Pennington County, the number of reported incidents have stabilized at about 20 to 22 in the last few years. In 2000, Thief River Falls Police received 24 reports involving 25 incidents. There were 11 adult arrests and two juvenile arrests. There were six reported incidents of criminal sexual misconduct in Pennington County.

Criminal sexual misconduct is a serious charge, and it requires a great deal of effort on the part of investigators and and other law enforcement personnel.

Rogalla said he has not noticed an increase in the incidence of criminal sexual misconduct. He believes people are more willing to come forward because they see that officials are very serious about prosecuting criminal sexual misconduct crimes, and his office works very hard on these cases.

No, the incidence of criminal sexual abuse is probably not increasing, according to experts, but tools like the two-way communication and camera in the witness room make it easier for victims to report crimes to law enforcement.

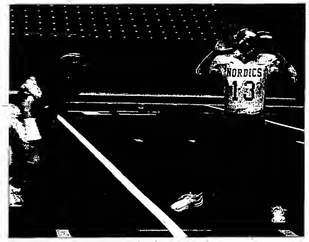
The TIMES



Looking downfield, Marshall County Central quarterback Adam Reisen got off this first quarter throw before the Stephen-Argyle pass rush reached the junior left-hander during the Section 8 Nine-Man high school football playoff championship game Friday in Grand Forks, N.D. Reisen and the Nordics fell prey to the unbeaten Storm 48-14 at the Alerus Center.

TRF second in North Border girls swim meet...

Warroad wins conference title

Team title went to host Warroad Friday in the annual North Border Conference girls high school swimming and diving championships.

Warroad finished the meet with 433 points, followed by Thief River Falls with 309.5, Roseau 230.50, and Crookston 151.

Medals went to the top three finishers in each of the individual events, and to members of the top two teams in the relay races.

Thief River Falls senior Chelsea Haviland was the only swimmer to win two individual events, taking both the 100 freestyle and 200 freestyle.

Haviland, the reigning three-time defending Class A state champion in diving, did not compete in that event at the conference meet, but she added to her individual laurels by being part of a first place 200 freestyle relay team, along with Cami Hendrickson, Allyson Helling and Brittany Haviland. That same foursome finished second in the 400 freestyle relay.

In Haviland's absence on the board, Helling won a first place North Border medal.

Thief River Falls third place medal winners were Brittany Haviland, 50 freestyle and 100 butterfly; Amber Curry, diving; April Peterson, 100 backstroke; and Hendrickson, 200 freestyle.

"The girls swam really well," reported Thief River Falls coach Dawn Coauette.

In addition to the medal winners, Coauette said top Thief River Falls individual performances were turned in by Hendrickson, fourth in the 100 freestyle; Tiffany Sorenson, fourth in the 100 breaststroke; Helling, fifth in the 200 individual medley; Michelle Johnson, fifth in the 100 butterfly; and Carli Cota, sixth in the 500 freestyle.

A fourth by Peterson, Sorenson, Johnson, and Suzie Rosencrans in the 200 medley relay, along with a fifth Danielle Sorvig, Carli Cota, Johnson, and Kendra Mooney in the 400 freestyle relay also included coaching-pleasing times.

Thief River Falls will be part of the 2001 Section 8A swimming and diving championships Friday and Saturday at Bemidji High School.

Prelims start Friday at 2:30 p.m. Saturday finals begin at 1 p.m.

Qualifiers will move on to the Class A state meet Nov. 19-21 at the University of Minnesota.

Storm ends Nordics' season

■ MCC makes first football title game appearance

While Marshall County Central celebrated its first-ever title game appearance, Stephen-Argyle hoisted its sixth straight Section 8 Nine-Man high school football championship trophy Friday when the Storm beat the Nordics 48-14 at the Alerus Center in Grand Forks, N.D.

It was a breakthrough campaign for the 7-4 Nordics and fourth-year head coach Scott Parker, whose three previous seasons in Newfolden netted a total of seven wins. But it was business-as-usual for unbeaten Storm, who have qualified for the state playoffs every year since the two schools combined their sports programs in 1996-97.

Marshall County Central advanced with post-season wins over Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke 34-14 and East Grand Forks Sacred Heart 21-18, producing the title-game match-up with the No. 1-ranked team in the state – a team that handled the Nordics 56-8 in a regular season Top of the State Conference meeting.

Any hopes of staying close to the Storm required a perfect game from the Nordics, acknowledged Parker. And that didn't happen. Five turnovers (three interceptions, two fumbles) and some breakdowns in assignments added up to the 34-point spread at the end.

"We made too many mistakes, and you can't do that against a team like Stephen-Argyle," said Parker. "We were able to do some things, but you have to be able to do them on a consistent basis, and we didn't."

But Parker wasn't selling his team short. He liked the Nordics' effort, from start to finish. "We still have a ways to go, but for the first time here (finals), we did okay," he said. "We did some real good things against a very good football team. And we never quit. They never stopped. They kept going even when they fell behind."

The Nordics actually had some early success, with a game-opening drive that covered 63 yards of the spongy artificial turf. However, that still left them 13 yards shy of the end zone. And after finally digging in on defense, the Storm struck quickly on offense when Brennan Laudal took a second-snap pitch to the left and sprinted 66 yards for a touchdown 4:44 into the matinee.

One of the mistakes Parker alluded to earlier occurred on the ensuing kickoff when the Nordics touched, but failed to field the ball. Reece Henrickson of the Storm dove between the two return men to gain possession in the end zone. Officials ruled it a muff at the 1-yard line, and when Ryan St. Germain scored on a first down quarterback sneak, the winners had two touchdowns in six seconds.

That was the first of four straight St. Germain touchdowns. He scored on another 1-yard keeper in the final minute of the first quarter to finish an 8-play, 66-yard drive; produced the only points of the second quarter on a 9-yard run after a clipping penalty had wiped out a 42-yard Henrickson punt return for a touchdown; then capped a 10-play, 87-yard drive that opened the second half with an 18-yard option keeper to the right, making it 33-0.

Another Stephen-Argyle option, this one turning into a pitch to Todd Jensen, went 15 yards for a touchdown with 2:30 left in the third quarter.

Moments later Marshall County Central was on the scoreboard when quarterback Adam Reisen rolled left to avoid a hard rush and lofted a pass downfield to Louis Peterson behind the Stephen-Argyle secondary. It was an easy run to the end zone for the receiver to finish a 67-yard scoring play.

The Stephen-Argyle defense got into the scoring act on the final play of the third quarter when, after a 58-yard Brent Halfmann punt was downed inside the Marshall County Central 1-yard line, Mitchell Benson led a middle-of-the-line charge that caught Nathan Bennett in the end zone for a safety.

With the ball going right back to the Storm on the free kick, Stephen-Argyle tacked on another touchdown when Dustin Safronski scored from a yard out to finish a 7-play, 46-yard march.

Final touchdown was scored off another long Marshall County Central pass. This time a throw by Justin Magner that was tipped by the defensive back landed in the hands of Jay Maurstad to complete a 43-yard play with 50 seconds remaining.

Stephen-Argyle will take a 10-0 record into a state quarterfinal game at Cromwell Friday. The Cardinals are 9-1. The winner will move on to the semifinals Saturday, Nov. 17, at the Metrodome against either Ada-Borup or Tower-Soudan.

Warroad finished the meet with 433 points, followed by Thief River Falls with 309.5, Roseau 230.50, and Crookston 151.

Medals went to the top three finishers in each of the individual events, and to members of the top two teams in the relay races.

Thief River Falls senior Chelsea Haviland was the only swimmer to win two individual events, taking both the 100 freestyle and 200 freestyle.

Haviland, the reigning three-time defending Class A state champion in diving, did not compete in that event at the conference meet, but she added to her individual laurels by being part of a first place 200 freestyle relay team, along with Cami Hendrickson, Allyson Helling and Brittany Haviland. That same foursome finished second in the 400 freestyle relay.

In Haviland's absence on the board, Helling won a first place North Border medal.

Thief River Falls third place medal winners were Brittany Haviland, 50 freestyle and 100 butterfly; Amber Curry, diving; April Peterson, 100 backstroke; and Hendrickson, 200 freestyle.

"The girls swam really well," reported Thief River Falls coach Dawn Coauette.

In addition to the medal winners, Coauette said top Thief River Falls individual performances were turned in by Hendrickson, fourth in the 100 freestyle; Tiffany Sorenson, fourth in the 100 breaststroke; Helling, fifth in the 200 individual medley; Michelle Johnson, fifth in the 100 butterfly; and Carli Cota, sixth in the 500 freestyle.

A fourth by Peterson, Sorenson, Johnson, and Suzie Rosencrans in the 200 medley relay, along with a fifth Danielle Sorvig, Carli Cota, Johnson, and Kendra Mooney in the 400 freestyle relay also included coaching-pleasing times.

Thief River Falls will be part of the 2001 Section 8A swimming and diving championships Friday and Saturday at Bemidji High School.

Prelims start Friday at 2:30 p.m. Saturday finals begin at 1 p.m.

Qualifiers will move on to the Class A state meet Nov. 19-21 at the University of Minnesota.

U.S. National women's hockey team, Gophers play Dec. 8 at Warroad

A Saturday, Dec. 8, women's hockey game matching the United States National team against the University of Minnesota will be played at The Gardens in Warroad. Face-off will be at 7:30 p.m.

Efforts initiated last spring by Cal Marvin brought the game to Warroad. Co-chairs of the event are Jeff Scheving and Brenda Baumann.

"We are just now getting the word out to the public, said Baumann. "Posters are being hung around Warroad and around northern Minnesota and Canada. We've established some ticket outlets and expect to establish more."

Tickets are now on sale at the Dairy Queen, Marvin Hardware, and Security State Bank in Warroad; the Cenex C Store in Roseau; Wells Fargo Bank in Baudette and International Falls; DJ's gas station in Salol; Hugo's in Thief River Falls; Kobilka Sporting Goods in Bemidji; from Dean Knutson in Roosevelt; and Rick McKeever at the Angle.

"This is going to be great hockey, and we expect that there will be a sell-out crowd," said Scheving.

Tickets are priced at $8 for adults and $4 for students.

"We wanted to make the ticket prices reasonable so that everyone can come out and enjoy a great hockey game between two first-class teams," said Marvin.

Arthritis Pain Mystery Solved

Horse Liniment Is the secret!

OCALA, FL. — An ingredient used to treat inflammation in thoroughbred racehorse legs, is now recognized as safe and effective for human use. The ingredient has been formulated into a product called ARTH-Rx™ and comes in a strength designed for humans. Researchers are excited and say the formula can relieve arthritis pain for millions.

Developed by the Phillips Gulf Corporation, ARTH-Rx is a breakthrough in the treatment of painful disorders ranging from minor aches and pains to more serious conditions such as arthritis, bursitis, rheumatism, tendonitis, backache and more.

Scientists suggest that ARTH-Rx works by intercepting the pain messenger substance that sends pain signals to the brain. Although the mechanism is not totally clear, pain is relieved in the affected area because the pain signal actually disappears.

ARTH-Rx is the only product on the market with Neurocaine and is available in a convenient, pleasant scented roll-on applicator without a prescription. According to a spokesperson for the company, ARTH-Rx is available in pharmacies, nutrition stores, and even some food stores. ARTH-Rx can also be ordered by calling 1-800-729-8446 www.bcdsales.com ©2000PGC

Local recreational, trail grant application forms are available from DNR

Applications are now available from the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources for the year 2002 local grants, trail grants and cooperative water recreation grants. These grants help local governments, organizations and individuals throughout Minnesota create partnerships with the DNR to fund projects that protect natural resources and provide outdoor recreation opportunities.

These matching grants fund projects such as natural area acquisition, local park development, trail connections or trails for long distance travel, water-based recreational facilities, and parks that provide regional natural-resource-based outdoor recreation opportunities.

Programs include regional parks, natural and scenic areas, outdoor recreation in local parks, local trail connections, national recreational trails, regional trails, fishing piers and public boat accesses.

Although state funding for these programs is uncertain at this time, it is anticipated that federal funds will be available through the Land and Water Conservation Fund and the National Recreational Trail Grant program, according to the DNR.

Additional state funding may be provided by the 2002 Minnesota Legislature. Initiating the application process now provides more time for project completion if additional funding is approved.

A series of public informational meetings about these grant programs will be held in December at six locations around Minnesota. These open houses will include a brief presentation and opportunities for informal discussion with grants staff.

DNR officials urge people who are interested in the trail grant programs, or who have applied in the past, to attend one of the meetings to hear about changes in the grant programs.

More information about these programs is available on the DNR Web site at www.dnr.state.mn.us.

Out-of-shape hunters asked to use caution

While stalking their quarry, hunters often fall prey themselves - not just to shooting accidents, but to health problems triggered by underestimating the rigors of hunting.

To help prevent injuries and ailments this hunting season, the Pennsylvania Medical Society is urging hunters to take stock of their physical condition and mental acuity before they take to the woods.

"To avoid situations that cause harm to themselves and others, hunters need to be fully alert and in good physical shape," says Keith K. Burkhart, M.D., an emergency medicine physician at the Penn State Milton S. Hershey Medical Center, and a hunter. "Unfortunately for too many outdoorsmen, hunting is their only real outdoor or physical activity, and their bodies aren't accustomed to dealing with the added physical exertion and tough weather conditions."

Out-of-shape outdoorsmen are at risk, agrees Paul D. Williams, D.O., a family physician in Harrisburg. "Sometimes I think the deer claim more hunters than the other way around," he says. "People who sit at a desk all week suddenly decide to go trekking for miles through rugged terrain with a rifle, so it's no wonder a number of heart attacks occur." Dr. Williams, a member of the Pennsylvania Medical Society, advises sedentary hunters to see their doctors for a checkup at least two months before hunting season begins. If they need to go on an exercise program, that gives them enough time to get in shape.

A number of heart attacks strike when hunters try to drag their heavy buck or doe back to the vehicle, says Dr. Burkhart, who has treated such cases in the emergency room. "Especially when it's cold," he says, "the body is under more stress, and the extra effort of hauling the deer can be too much for the heart." The Pennsylvania Medical Society cautions hunters to get help when dragging or lifting a deer, or at least to make frequent stops to rest.

Hunters with an existing heart condition should have their medicine handy in their jacket pocket. Members of their party should know about this condition. If someone is incapacitated by a heart attack, friends can administer the proper medication dosage immediately. Until medical help arrives, they should keep the victim warm and at rest.

"In these situations a cell phone can be a lifesaver, giving hunters instant contact with 911 emergency services," says Dr. Burkhart. It's prudent to also bring along flares to help emergency crews locate an injured hunter, and walkie-talkies for communication among hunting companions

Lack of mental alertness can cause trouble, too, warns Dr. Burkhart, who compares hunting to driving. "Just as you can't maneuver a car safely if you've had too much alcohol or too little sleep, you can't hunt safely either. At deer camp, hunters often will stay up late playing cards and then rise early in the morning to head into the woods. Insufficient sleep can impair their judgment and slow their reflexes."

Hunters can put themselves in jeopardy just getting to the camp. Dr. Burkhart has noted a number of traffic accidents involving hunters en route to their destination. "In their anticipation, hunters shouldn't forget road safety," he says. Hunters should schedule enough travel time so they don't have to rush and should take sufficient rest stops along the way, he advises.

Poor eyesight is a frequent culprit in shooting accidents. Dr. Burkhart reminds older hunters - and younger ones with imperfect vision - to have their eyes and eyeglasses checked so they can identify their target clearly and shoot accurately.

Hunters don't have to be doing something strenuous - like dragging a buck or climbing a hill - to bag an injury. In fact, 29 percent of hunters shot by accident last year were in a sitting position, according to the Pennsylvania Game Commission. In getting to an elevated stationary position - a perch in a tree stand - hunters sometimes injure themselves. To prevent falls while ascending and descending a tree stand, hunters always should wear a safety harness, both while climbing and in the stand. The gun or bow and arrows should be raised and lowered by a separate safety line, not carried along on the climb.

If a hunter breaks an arm or leg in a fall from a tree stand or other misstep, Dr. Burkhart says he or she should be kept immobilized, with pressure exerted on the artery above the break to slow any bleeding, until professional help comes. The same procedure applies to a gunshot or arrow wound to the arm or leg. "Above all, don't move the person until medical assistance arrives," cautions Dr. Burkhart.

As a member of the Pennsylvania Medical Society, Dr. Burkhart believes that the relationship between doctors and their patients is educational as well as healing. To make hunting a safer pursuit, he encourages doctors and their patients who enjoy this pastime to discuss the physical requirements and safety rules of hunting. "Most of these things are just common sense, and people have heard or read about them before," he says, "but sometimes it takes a doctor's advice to make people think seriously about what they can do to safeguard their lives."

Hypothermia can be a danger to hunters

By nature, anglers and hunters know patience is an essential skill in order to take a prize buck or catch a record walleye. However, participating in the sports they enjoy can bring risks of hypothermia as the air turns crisp in Minnesota.

Conservation officer Doug Sandstrom of Longville and Leech Lake Tribal conservation officer Frank Bowstring recently rescued an 83-year-old man from Leech Lake suffering from the onset of hypothermia. Lawrence Kahlert, Browerville, had been fishing when he apparently became lost when he used his cell phone to call for help. Sandstrom and Bowstring found the man in the bull rushes on the north end of the lake, the wind was blowing at 15 to 20 mph making the rescue difficult. When the officers got close to the boat Sandstrom entered the water and carried the man to safety.

"He had been on the lake for 12 hours and immediately rushed to the hospital in Deer River," Sandstrom said. "Later in the week we assisted him with his boat recovery and he stated that the hospital told him that his body temperature was just 2 degrees above hypothermia."

"Hypothermia is a silent killer," said Captain Jeff Thielen, Department of Natural Resources Education Program Coordinator. "You can sit out there duck hunting and not think you're cold, but you can be losing body heat. Wind and water reduce body heat so people need to prepare for these conditions."

Hypothermia occurs when the body's temperature falls below normal. Early and mild symptoms include shivering, slurred speech, mental slowness or lethargy, muscular stiffness and clumsiness. Symptoms of severe hypothermia include mental confusion, disorientation, stupor or coma, absence of shivering, stiff or rigid muscles, shallow and very slow breathing, weak pulse and a fall in blood pressure.

"If you notice any of these signs, get medical attention immediately," he said.

If medical care is not available, get the person into a warm room, shelter or vehicle. Remove any wet clothing and dry them off. Warm the center of the body first - chest, neck, head and groin - with layers of blankets, clothing, towels or sheets.

Hypothermia is most likely at very cold temperatures, but can occur at temperatures above 40 degrees. The most important thing is to dress properly and that includes wearing several loose-fitting layers of clothes, a hat, a scarf or knit mask to cover the face and mouth, mittens and water-resistant coat and shoes.

If anglers or hunters fall into the water, Thielen said it is important for them to get out of the water as fast as possible and keep their clothes on.

"If you have 32 degree water, you have about 15 minutes before you go unconscious," he said. "Keep your clothes on. Wet clothes trap heat. Once out of the water, get to a warm area and remove the wet clothes and dry off."

Outdoor enthusiasts should take along an emergency kit that includes a warm blanket, food, such as granola bars, and a bottle of water.

"Cold weather can be very dangerous," Thielen said. "Don't drink alcohol. It actually increases the loss of body heat."

Additionally, many prescription drugs may make you more sensitive to the cold, so check with your physician or pharmacist to find out if your medication falls in this category.

"Basic survival tips are taught in both our Firearms Safety and Advanced Hunter Education programs," Thielen said. "Attending one of these courses could mean the difference between being a victim or a survivor."

New calendar shows plants that are native northwest Minnesota

A new 2002 calendar featuring illustrations and information about wildflowers, berries, mushrooms, and other native plants and plant communities of northwest Minnesota is available free for the asking from the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources Division of Ecological Services.

The calendar is a project of the DNR Natural Heritage and Nongame Research Program, and is printed on recycled paper using soy ink.

Each month features a black-and-white drawing or print of a plant or plant community, as illustrated by one of ten very talented Minnesota artists. Some pages include additional information about Minnesota plants, wildlife and plant communities, including peatlands, old-growth forests, native orchids, birds and berries, and species diversity.

The back page includes biographical information about each artist, plus a list of seasonal phenology events and space for the calendar owner to keep track of these occurrences in their own neighborhood.

Individual calendars are available free of charge by contacting: Jody Duff, Minnesota DNR, 2115 Birchmont Beach Road NE, Bemidji, MN 56601; by e-mail at jody.duff@dnr.state.mn.us; or by telephone at 218-755-3955. The supply is limited, so the number of calendars sent to a single person or address will be limited.

The weather in northwest Minnesota during this first week of November is absolutely beautiful. Each morning I look outside to determine what the day will be and this past week must be a late Indian summer. It put that deep snow drift into just a memory in a couple of days and left the lawn a dark green. Roy is wondering if it needs mowing again. A flock of chickadees has taken up residence again for winter in the cotoneasters next to our back door and one flew into the window just now, but I was more startled than it was hurt.

The Bethesda Lutheran Church had their fabulous Annual Hunter's Dinner Saturday evening, accommodating the community which is hosting scores of out-of-town hunters. It is nice to get together and compare the day's hunting results and make new friends. It also gives the cooks a time out, to enjoy visiting hunters.

Judy Kleinvachter had a couple of hunting guests who stopped to see her this week, Ronnie Kleinvachter from Stillwater, and Buddy, Cindy and Anthony Berggren from Sudan. Other folks who visited Judy this week and partook of her kind hospitality were Kelly Lafrooth, Merle Staffen, June Kasprowicz, Elmer Holmstrom, Evelyn Albaugh, Claudia, Jasela and Kali Berggren and Larine Berggren and two friends, Scott and Tarry.

Elphie Adils served dinner to hunters on Sunday and friends and relatives who were there to enjoy the fun of the hunt. Richard Johnson from Albertville, and Scott Wikstrom from north St. Paul went home Monday, with their deer bucks all ready for the freezer by the help of Uncle Stanley. Other guests and visitors were Joyce Wikstrom, Betty and Mike Johnson of Warroad, Cory and Lori Wikstrom and children, Kali, Jordan, Aaron and Dorian.

Visitors at Peter and Pearl Thompson's recently have been Glen and Audrey Rasmussen of Walker, LaVerne Rasmussen of Frazee, Vergil and Ruth Rasmussen of Grygla and Sandy Hagenbeck of Sturgeon Lake. Local visitors were Dave, Brant and Karen Thompson, LaVonne and Brian Johnson, Becky Johnson and Jake and Isaac and Betsy Thompson. Isaac comes over and helps Peter with odd jobs. Peter is feeling about the same as he was, but this nice weather helps him as he can be outside more of the time.

On Sunday afternoon Gary, CoCo, Brian, Jodi and Kelsey Hempel visited Elsie Lafrooth. Elaine Grovum of Thief River Falls and Douglas and Parker Holmstrom of Farmington and also spent Sunday afternoon visiting Elsie.

Isaac and Betsy Thompson had Peter and Pearl Thompson and Morris and Hazel Anderson as dinner guests on Wednesday.

On Wednesday, LeRoy and Ruth Sustad visited at the Bob Erlanmayer home.

Thursday afternoon, Lloyd Ranum was a coffee guest at the LeRoy Sustad home.

Friday evening Brenda Baisdale of Alexandria and a friend visited at Grandma Liz Swanson's home.

LeRoy and Ruth Sustad attended the performance at the Stephen High School presented by Anders Gustafson from Sweden who began playing piano at the age of 20 months. Now at 15 he has traveled world-wide and at private invitations to perform for the king and queen of Sweden. His program included classical masterpieces and also while lying on his back on the piano bench, he played the piano upside down. What a talented fellow! This program was sponsored by the Agassiz Swedish Heritage Society and the Swedish Arts Council. Anders also performed at the Hostfest in Minot.

Saturday morning Valarie and Hannah Enblaid of Cook visited Grandma Liz, and Brian and Patty Grandstrand and girls at Chaska also came for a visit. They were all here to attend the 80th birthday party for Irene Grandstrand held at the C'mon Inn on Saturday afternoon. The party was well attended with lots of relatives and friends, and lots of good food.

LeRoy and Ruth Sustad left on Thursday via Bergan Travel from Thief River Falls to Minot, N.D., to attend the 24th annual Hostfest. We were well acquainted with several on the bus, but got to know many more. Arriving at the Fairgrounds, you are on your own with over 8,000 people present. There is always a seating area in each of the halls where we enjoyed music and singing. The Great Hall at the Vikings was often a sell-out to hear Kenny Rogers, Anne Murray, the Statler Brothers, and Neil Sedaka, and even here we met people we knew and could enjoy the ethnic lunch. Our motel was located at Bottineau, N.D., an hour and one-half drive north, which was interesting. Many cattle farms and a buffalo ranch, and saw Lake Metigoshe. Nice weather all the time and we returned safely to Thief River Falls on Saturday evening.

On Sunday afternoon, Arlene Erickson and Liz Swanson drove to Glen and Marian Halvorson's farm east of Fosston, by way of Oklee. It was fun and we saw an enormous amount of baled hay.

Corey and Julie Skjarvan, Dan and Kathy Olson, and the Arnold Waleskis visited at Gordon Skjarvan's home on Sunday afternoon to celebrate Corey's birthday.

LeRoy and Ruth Sustad visited Lillie Asp at her new home in the Skylight Apartments on Friday.

Kay Olson visited at Liz Swanson's home on Friday.

Edna Hyde • 465-1538

Sincere sympathy is extended to the Louis Lallier family in the death of his mother, Mae Lallier. She had been a resident of Hillcrest Nursing Home and died last Tuesday. Howard and Margaret Greenwald were among the mourners who attended the funeral for Mae Lallier on Friday at St. Joseph's Catholic Church of Red Lake Falls.

Lee Vigstol of Minot, N.D. arrived on Thursday night and spent until Saturday morning head-quartering at his mothers home, Effie and Burnel Byer. He visited with Eldon and Karen Vigstol and friends in the area, and took care of business.

Kindergarten Trip

Last week, Alysa Krueger, along with her kindergarten class went on a field trip to a pumpkin farm by Erskine. The children enjoyed a story, a hike, and a trip to the "big pumpkin patch." Mrs. Duden is the kindergarten teacher and Alysa's grandmother, Kathy Juneau went along as one of the helpers.

Dennis Hyde spent the weekend with his mother and brother, Edna and Roger Hyde and worked up some firewood.

Birthday for Anna

The children and grandchildren of Anne Jaeger hosted a surprise for her 70th birthday on Sunday, October 21 (I think someone let the cat out of the bag, though). Guests, along with her family were Annie Schumacher, Carolyn Pittman of Goodridge, Edna Hyde, Jean Carpenter, Bunny DuChamp, Pat Larson, Fern Eskeli, Mary Ann Gagner, Howard and Margaret Greenwald, Colleen Holen of Thief River Falls, Loretta Hesse, Gary and Cindy Arit, Mark and Sheila Holen, Tyler, Kaley and Madison of Thief River Falls, Rodney and Faye Wold, Courtney and Dylan of Goodridge, Jeff Jaeger of St. Paul, Helen Jaeger and Steve Konickson of Thief River Falls, Kathi Jaeger, Jackie Jaeger, Jordan, Kayla, and Christopher, Carol and Jerry Gerardy, Tim and Mary Skime and Nicole of Roseau, Art and Alma Hanson, Art and Gloria Fossum, Linda Lorenson, Doug and Lacey Willett, Carol and LeRoy Stumpf, Mike Sheller and Abbie Austad of Thief River Falls. The hosts served a lovely lunch and Anne opened her gifts, and reported a great day!

Carol and Jerry Gerardy visited with Ethel Hyatt at Oakland Park Nursing Home on Sunday.

Fern Hesse, Doris Malwitz and Peggy Hesse attended the LWML Rally in Crookston on Sunday afternoon. Pastor Donald Kirchner of St. John's Lutheran Church of Thief River Falls led a study on the New York attack.

Inga Linder spent Sunday afternoon with Leonard and Margaret Johnson of rural Oklee. They visited with Clara Johnson of Thief River Falls and were supper guests of Dick and Judy Reger of Thief River Falls.

Effie and Burnel Byer drove to Bemidji on Sunday, ate at Bonanza and visited with classmate, Lilly Dehart and cousin Virginia Olson of rural Guthrie. We took some lesser roads on the way home, thru our old home area, and saw a lot of deer.

Lon and Brain Oberpriller of the Twin Cities spent the weekend at the Rick Froiland home and visited Art and Avis Froiland on Sunday.

Herb and Esther Walter, Roger, Mark and Christine Walter returned home on Sunday night after spending several days at Brook Park, helping David Walter build a new home. Others who came to lend a helping hand were Duane Walter of Minot, N.D., Iona Markley of Buffalo, June and Jim Smith, Janella Wilkie of Hugo and Jeff Smith of Roseville. They all ate one meal at the casino in Hinkley and on Sunday there was a post-graduation party for David's son Nicholas.

Ruth Wilkens and Delia Rewertz visited Ann Olson of Red Lake Falls on Monday.

Jolayne Simpson drove Howard and Margaret Greenwald to Fargo on Monday where Howard spent the day at the VA hospital.

Perhaps some of you readers remember Pastor O.M. Simundson and his wife Venus who pastored at Immanuel Lutheran Church of Plummer in the 50's and 60's. He had died in 1961 and word has come of her recent death. She died at the age of 96 in the Luther Memorial Home in Madelia. Her funeral was on Monday, October 22 at Lake Hanska Lutheran Church. She is survived by two sons, Rev. Jon and wife, Alice of Spooner, WI and Dr. Dan of Jacksonville, Flor., four grandchildren and seven great-grandchildren.

Bunny DuChamp and five other classmates from years back got together for a mini reunion on Monday night. Bunny accompanied Hazel Schultz of Red Lake Falls, to the Evergreen Restaurant where they enjoyed a meal together. Later, they went to the home of Charles and Idella Samuelson and watched some videos and Idella served a nice lunch. Two of the classmates were from the Twin Cities.

Lyndon and Mary Leining of Austin were overnight guests of his sister, Carole and Jim Wright on Tuesday. They were going on to Bemidji to visit Mary's brother.

Cathy and Brady Samuelson of Sarles, N.D. arrived on Tuesday to spend a few days with her mother, Bunny DuChamp and other relatives.

Alice Johnson and her sister, Jennie Ulstad of Mankato came to visit their sister, Martha Hamre at Pioneer Memorial home in Erskine. On Tuesday, Alice came to Plummer and was a dinner guest of Bunny DuChamp, also visited with Art and Avis Froiland, Art and Gloria Fossum, Inga Linder, Edna Hyde, and perhaps others. We had gone to Thief River Falls, so I missed seeing her and hope she'll come this way again soon.

Jake and Jean Friesen of Altona, Man. and Percy Blair of Neche, N.D. were Tuesday visitors of Edna Hyde. Esther Walter was a coffee guest, too.

Visitors of Bunny DuChamp on Tuesday were Alice Johnson, Edna Hyde and Jean Carpenter.

Robert and Tish Blake of Grand Rapids were Tuesday visitors of his Uncle Art and Avis Froiland.

Lloyd Sorenson underwent surgery on Wednesday at Altru Hospital in Grand Forks, N.D. Wavell is with him and due to the storm, I haven't been able to get any further news, but he came through the surgery okay.

One Fund Drive

The rural One-Fund Drive for Red Lake County is about over and we want to thank all those who worked as solicitors and those who gave money for the various causes. I have been the coordinator for Plummer and Arlene Froiland for Emardville. Emardville Township workers were Bec Willett, Dean Koskela, Julie Dulka and Arlene Froiland served as chairman and also collected. Special thanks go to Harriet Norman, who just completed her 20th year as solicitor! She had the longest list of contributors, too, and surely deserves a special commendation. Again, thanks to all who worked and gave for this annual drive!

And suddenly we have winter! A blizzard hit Minnesota and N.D. with sudden fierceness on Wednesday and caused school closings and other botheration. We have six or eight inches of heavy, wet snow to warn us of the winter to come, but we hope for an Indian summer and some nice days yet.

A brand new month, bringing us closer to the Christmas holiday! Enjoy the days ahead.

Bring Sara Jane Olson back into court to explain

Former SLA member needs to explain why she thinks she's still innocent

Moments after Sara Jane Olson left the courtroom last week in Los Angeles, she told the media, "I pleaded to something of which I'm not guilty." Friday, the judge ordered that she return to court on Tuesday and explain her actions so that he can decide whether to set aside her plea of guilty.

Apparently, Olson failed to realize that she shouldn't send mixed signals to the judge. I have no sympathy for Olson, and I think that it's quite proper for the judge to order her back into his courtroom to find out what she meant.

I've been in our local courtroom when defendants have tried to enter a guilty plea without accepting the fact that what they did was wrong. In every instance when I've been present, the judge informed the defendant and his attorney that he would not accept the plea.

I agree and believe that to do so would be a great injustice, and make a mockery of the system we rely on.

For the record, this week Olson pled guilty to two charges of possession of bombs with intent to murder police in 1975. At the time, Olson who was Kathleen Soliah, was a member of the Symbionese Liberation Army (SLA). The SLA is best known for kidnapping heiress Patty Hearst. The charges in this case, however, stem from a complaint that she, along with others, planted bombs under two Los Angeles police cruisers in 1975, in retaliation for the deaths of six SLA members killed in a shootout earlier that year. In 1976, when Olson was indicted on the charges, which originally included three other charges including conspiracy to commit murder, she had disappeared. She surfaced a couple of years ago in Minnesota under the name of Sara Jane Olson after being featured on America's Most Wanted.

Apparently, Olson changed her plea this week because she didn't think she could get a fair shake in court after the Sept. 11 terrorist attack on the United States. Maybe that would have happened, but having been a juror several times, I personally find it very hard to believe that jurors wouldn't set aside news of events that have nothing to do with her case and decide the outcome based on the facts of the case alone.

Bring Sara Jane back to court. If she says she isn't guilty I hope the judge sets aside the plea. The court case can then proceed and a jury of her peers can decide the outcome. Let there be no confusion or question about Sara Jane Olson's innocence or guilt.

Never too late to raise awareness of snowplow safety

Of course it's too late to remind residents of the hazards associated with winter driving as we have already had our first snow storm, and a bad one at that. However, it is never too late to raise awareness of snowplow safety.

Minnesota Department of Transportation has unveiled its new theme for snowplow safety: "Too fast. . . too close. . . too late." This is an important event for the department, because, accident figures show that the greater majority of crashes involving snowplows result in injury or death to the drivers of cars or trucks.

The Department of Transportation knows that a key factor in these accidents is the fact that many of these crashes could have been avoided if drivers had given themselves more time to react. Snowplows travel at much slower than posted speeds and there are blind zones behind the plow and on either side so drivers cannot see cars around them. It's therefore important for motorists to slow down, give the snowplows plenty of room and give themselves plenty of time to react if the plow turns or exits.

The Minnesota Department of Transportation is also reminding motorists of a few precautions that can save lives during winter. Motorists are reminded to plan ahead, prepare your vehicle for winter driving, pay attention to weather forecasts, notify others of travel plans and carry a winter survival kit.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Insurance industry, medical profession about to dissect the goose that lays the golden egg

To the Editor:

In October we saw the state employees go back to work after a somewhat nasty strike. Last year we had a school bus driver's strike, and the year before while no strike was considered, the city and its employees had to do some creative negotiating. Why should problems be developing between groups of adequately paid people who like their jobs, and honestly concerned administrators?

Negotiations between every labor unit and its employers are getting more difficult each round. The problem is (for the most part) not wages, not working conditions, not vacation or holidays; the big hang up is consistently the skyrocketing cost of health care and the question of who is going to pay for it. I hate to gore a sacred cow but it may be time to admit that health insurance, as we know it, is a failed experiment.

The basic ideas behind health insurance are to assure the health care providers payment for their services, to protect the policyholders from financial ruin if their health should fail, and to pay the insurers a fair profit for administering the program. A serious problem has developed. The causes of the problem are also threefold: 1. The health care provider is no longer even slightly concerned about costs to the patient, "it's just the insurance company," the more the health care provider charges the richer they get and that is the end of it; 2. The insurance company works on a percentage. The more expenses the health care provider runs up one year, the more the insurer can justify charging the next year, and the larger their long-term profit. Although they do a lot of posturing about cost control they are busily pushing costs up; 3. The patient/policyholder is (at the time they should be looking at cost control) often feeling frightened and vulnerable, and afraid they will look like a total ingrate to the people who just helped them. Worst of all, we are also inclined to take the attitude that "considering what the insurance company charges me, let the jerks pay." The end result is that (in an economy that has a fairly stable inflation rate of 2.5 to 3 percent) health insurance had advanced at more than 12 percent per year for years and this year the increase is 19 percent. The increase may be as high as 40 percent in areas with lower rates but lets look just at this area.

In the Blue Cross group that I am in, this year's increase in the cost of a full coverage family health insurance policy is now $138.47 per month, which comes to 80 cents per work hour. The total cost of the policy is now $837.66 per month or $4.83 per hour of work. We are told by the health care providers that it is not legal to have one set of charges for insurance policy holders and another for people who pay their own health care costs, so this insanity is crushing everyone equally. Whether a person pays their own premium or it is paid by their employer in lieu of wages really does not change anything, it is still part of that person's negotiated wage package.

Let's give this some perspective. If gasoline had kept pace with health care since 1980, it would be somewhere around $6.50 per gallon now and going to $7.74 per gallon starting next month. If everything was allowed to keep up with health care, a person earning $10 per hour in 1980 would have to earn more than $65 per hour now and at least $77.35 next year just to break even. If all of Arctic's cost went up as fast as the health care costs of their employees, a $7,000 Arctic Cat snowmobile would have gone up in price by $1,333 starting next month. Health care now costs many if not most people more than their home (house payment, taxes, homeowner insurance and all). health insurance costs most of us more than transportation (car payment, insurance and gas). I started working for the electric department in 1980 when electric heat was 2.5 cents per K.W.H., and still is. In 1980 it took 5 cents of gasoline to move the family car a mile, now 4 cents of gasoline will do it. In 1980, a normal child delivery cost $1,200, and now it costs about $8,000.

Some will say cost increases are due to technology and advances, but technology and advances in other fields drive costs down, not up. Some will blame malpractice insurance, but the numbers are hidden so deeply that we will never know for sure. Considering the number of successful lawsuits we read about, it does not seem that would be a large factor. I'm afraid it is mostly a case of the fox being in charge of the hen house.

Rather than protecting the policyholder from financial ruin in case of failed health, this system assures financial ruin no matter what happens to one's health.

Socialized medicine is about the only viable option and it is unlikely that anyone would be very happy with that.

If instead of a 19 percent increase there was a 15 percent to 20 percent but in insurance rates, and health care charges, we could probably carry on. It won't happen. I fully expect to see the medical profession dissect the goose that lays their golden egg and then grumble at the goose for not producing.

Sincerely,
Gary Page

November is National Diabetes Month

"Don't Let Diabetes Get A Foothold on Your Life"

To the Editor:

I am writing to you to share my concerns about the alarming increase in the rate of foot amputations associated with diabetes. Each year more than 87,000 lower limbs are amputated even though nearly three-quarters of these amputations could be prevented with proper foot care. Diabetes has reached epidemic levels in this country, and the American Podiatric Medical Association (APMA), the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) and the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services are working diligently to educate people about how to control and minimize their risk of having an amputation of part or all of their foot.

On behalf of the American Podiatric Medical Association, I would like to extend these risk factors and recommendations to anyone who has diabetes. Foot care is very important for people with diabetes who have:

- Foot ulcers or sores that do not heal.
- Loss of feeling in their feet.
- Changes in the shape or temperature of their feet.

Early intervention and education are the best ways of preventing amputations. If you have diabetes, keeping your blood sugar in good control and taking care of your feet every day can help you avoid serious foot problems. It is very important to:

- Inspect feet and toes daily, looking for cuts, bruises, sores or other changes in your feet.
- Wear thick, soft socks without seams that could rub and cause blisters or other skin injuries.
- Cut toenails straight across, never cut into the corners or taper, which could trigger an ingrown toenail. Use an emery board to gently file away sharp corners.
- All individuals with diabetes should have a thorough foot examination by a podiatric physician at least once a year to identify any high-risk foot conditions.

During the month of November the APMA is offering free foot screening materials by calling our toll-free number, 1-800-FOOT-CARE (1-800-366-8227), or by visiting our Web site (www.apma.org); The foot screening materials include; a monofilament test which is a simple tool to test for sensation in the feet, and the brochure "Don't Let Diabetes Get a Foothold on Your Life," that details how to care for and prevent foot complications. Please let your readers know that there is something they can do to control diabetes-related amputations. This information could help save their feet! November is National Diabetes Month.

Senators against long duck season in the south

Minnesota Senators Mark Dayton and Paul Wellstone pressed the Bush Administration's top wildlife official to reject a proposal to extend the duck hunting season in six southern states by nine days, saying that such a step would give an unfair advantage to duck hunters in those states at the expense of Minnesota and the rest of the country.

In a letter sent to Secretary of the Interior Gale Norton, Wellstone and Dayton expressed their strong opposition to a recent proposal that would give Mississippi, Arkansas, Louisiana, Kentucky, Tennessee and Alabama an extra nine days of duck hunting this year. The Senators said that this extension would be grossly unfair to hunters in Minnesota and other states, and could reduce the national duck population enough to damage future hunting opportunities in all states.

"The current rules governing the length of the duck hunting season in the Mississippi Flyway strike a balance which was negotiated in 1998," the Senators wrote to Norton. "At that time, Minnesota wildlife management experts reluctantly accepted the Fish and Wildlife's rules allowing southern states to extend their duck hunting season to January 31, in exchange for rules limiting their season to 51 days. The proposal to change these rules would negatively alter this balance."

Dayton and Wellstone said that the southern states that would benefit from the rule change already enjoy a significant advantage over hunters in Minnesota because of weather differences, and since they are a primary destination for ducks migrating south for the winter. According to the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, the average Mississippi adult hunter shot 22.22 ducks over the course of the 2000 season, compared to just 5.83 for the average Minnesota adult hunter.

"Mississippi duck hunters clearly benefit from a hunting season when duck populations are at their optimum," the Senators wrote. "Your Department's proposal to further extend the duck hunting season in six southern states will only exacerbate an unfair situation, which Minnesota and other northern states' duck hunters have reluctantly accepted."

Dayton and Wellstone also expressed their concern that the proposed extension came about because elected officials in southern states had exerted political pressure on the Interior Department, noting that the Department only pursued the rule change after the 2001 duck hunting season had begun. Furthermore, they said, the Department did not consult natural resource management officials from other states, like Minnesota, which would be directly affected by the new rule.

Students do good job at recent lyceum

To the Editor:

I wish to thank the students at Lincoln High School for the lyceum they presented Wednesday on the September 11 attacks and the war in Afghanistan. They did an excellent job expressing in music, poetry, song, art, dance, and video, their thoughts and feelings regarding the events that have affected all of us so greatly. Once again it seems, we need to turn to the poets and artists among us to help put into words and expressions what we all so deeply feel.

I sat in the balcony of the auditorium three rows behind a group of 17-year-old boys who were being regular teenagers. They talked and jostled back and forth during the lyceum. But the thought struck me as a poet on stage wondered out loud, if one of her friends would be fighting in this war. I wondered if one of these boys would be fighting in the war someday. These are indeed serious times we are living in. I thank the students for giving their expressions and insights to us.

Sincerely,
Galen Sylvester

This Section Gets First Sample Of Winter Weather

"This locality got an abrupt introduction to winter last Wednesday and Thursday when about three inches of snow arrived, and the mercury dropped below the zero mark for the first time this fall. Low readings were recorded of -3 Thursday and -6 Friday and again Monday. Temperatures moderated Tuesday, reaching a high of 28 in the afternoon. The river pool here froze over October 31, about ten days earlier than the usual date."

Practically No Damage Locally Hallowe'en Night

"This city got by another Hallowe'en, October 31, without any serious destruction of property, it was announced by Police Chief Kenneth Judy. He reported that one outhouse had been tipped over and several garbage cans upset, this apparently having been the extent of the depredations. The chief attributed the lack of destruction to the fact that the youngsters were kept well occupied at the parties sponsored by the Lions club, and to the prevailing chilly weather, Hallowe'en night."

Preparedness Plan nets Minnesota millions in grants

The Minnesota Department of Safety's Domestic Preparedness Strategic Plan has been approved by the U.S. Department of Justice, making Minnesota eligible to apply for more than 2.5 million dollars in grant money.

The funds will come from the U.S. Department of Justice Office of Strategic Preparedness (on the Web at www.ojp.usdoj.gov/odp), and will be distributed among all of Minnesota's 87 counties. Counties will be funded in rank order, based on population, net tax capacity, and the number of hazardous chemical sites in each county.

The Preparedness Plan is a lengthy document that defines the nature and extent of potential terrorism in Minnesota, based on input from counties and response-related steering groups, data collected by private contractors, internal government resources, and conversations with federal law enforcement officials. It includes analysis of both resources and needs in Minnesota's readiness to handle any kind of terrorist assault. Listed among the "areas of greatest need" are continued training and additional equipment far Minnesota firefighters and emergency medical personnel in areas such as hazardous material handling and wespons of mass destruction.

The plan includes strategies, based on a federally required assessment of domestic terrorism threats, to enhance the state's Emergency Management Program. It also lists other sources of funding for domestic preparedness activities, which include the Federal Emergency Management Agency, the Metropolitan Medical Response System, the Minnesota Department of Health, and the Centers for Disease Control.

Minnesota has received a total of $949,000 from the Department of Justice in the past.

Stumpf Named to "Legislative Dean's List"

State Senator LeRoy Stumpf (DFL-Thief River Falls) was one of a select group of legislators recently named to the Minnesota State University Student Association's (MSUSA) Legislative Dean's List. Senator Stumpf, who has long been an advocate for increased higher education opportunities in Minnesota, is the chair of the Senate E-12 Education Committee.

"As the former chair of the Senate Higher Education Committee, I know firsthand the importance of our colleges and universities, and how vital our legislative support is to the countless students who seek to better their lives on campuses throughout Minnesota," said Sen. Stumpf. "This recognition, after a session in which we fought so hard to adequately fund the growing needs of our colleges and universities, is indeed a great honor."

MSUSA represents the nearly 65,000 students enrolled in Minnesota's seven state universities. The Legislative Dean's List is complied by the Association's Presidential Board of Directors, and recognizes state legislators who have supported initiatives such as affordable access to higher education, low tuition, fair financial aid, and adequate funding.

"Faced with a bare-bones budget recommendation from the Governor in the 2001 session, we fought to provide Minnesota's students with adequate funding, and to preserve our state's reputation as a place where higher education is one of our highest priorities," said Sen. Stumpf. "The Senate passed a higher education funding bill providing $283 million in new spending for the state's colleges and universities. By contrast, the Republican-controlled House approved just $165 million, and Govemor Venturo recommended just $99 million. Our bill sent the message that our students need and deserve more."

For more information, contact Sen. Stumpf's State Capitol office at (651) 296-8660.

Art Institute hosts high school scholarship contest

Some of the nation's top young artists will compete in The Art Institutes National Portfolio Review Competition. More than $200,000 in scholarships will be awarded for students to attend The Art Institutes system of schools nationwide.

The three-phase competition is designed to showcase the best high school talent in the United States in the field of graphic design through local and national competitions, and even a People's Choice Award.

Following a preliminary screening, ten of the best applicants are selected to show a portfolio at a special program to take place at The Art Institutes International Minnesota. Entrants selected to compete in this phase will present a portfolio of five pieces which include: one life drawing, one illustration, one advertising, and two additional pieces that show the entrants' greatest strengths.

Two local winners will be selected as finalists for the national competition. National finalists will show their portfolios on a special website linked to The Art Institute's site at www.artinstitutes.edu. Judges from across the country will access the site and complete judging online with winners awarded as much as a $25,000 scholarship to attend an Art Institute location of their choice.

Back to school with asthma

The new school year has begun and for many children in Minnesota and many adults as well, having an action plan for asthma is a key item for back to school.

At schools and college campuses across the country, the epidemic rise of asthma is a serious discussion topic. Asthma is the most common childhood disease and is the leading cause of absenteeism from school. Over 8.6 million kids nationwide are affected by asthma and the numbers have been growing at an alarming rate. In Minnesota, asthma rates have risen 87% since 1980. Parents need to talk to teachers and to each other, and raise the level of awareness about asthma and the needs of each individual child.

The school nurse is a key component of any asthma action plan and should be part of any discussion. Coaches and any other adults that come into contact with the child should be given a copy of the child's asthma action plan and list of medications with directions for use.

"If the whole staff is educated and has the information they need, it is a win-win situation for children and the treatment of asthma," said Penny Gottler Fena, Senior Director of Asthma and Children's Lung Disease Programs.

See a doctor regularly about your child's asthma and have a written asthma action plan. This is very important because your child's symptoms can vary and change and as he or she grows, medication dosages can change also. Medication should be taken as prescribed, even when the child states he or she is feeling well.

Airport to institute new security measures

by Kate Morberg
Reporter

Last Thursday, officials from the Federal Aviation Administration visited the Thief River Falls Regional Airport to discuss increased security.

The Regional Airport will be receiving a metal detector and an ex-ray machine to help ensure a safe environment aboard flights. In addition to the equipment, the airport is being required to enclose a pre-boarding area for passengers only. Prior to this development the airport has had limited security. However after September 11, the Thief River Falls Police Department has been sending an officer to cover every flight out of the airport.

Currently, the Thief River Falls Regional Airport is considered a Category 5 airport, which does not require security checks of passengers. All passengers currently going through gates in Thief River Falls go through reverse security screening at the Minneapolis/St. Paul airport. During discussions last Wednesday, it was announced that the Regional Airport in Thief River Falls will become a Category 4 airport, which does require security measures.

Thief River Falls Police Chief Jim Haugen said he does not know whether local law enforcement will have to provide personnel for the new metal detector and x-ray machine. He said the police department will continue to cooperate, but added that he expects further discussions with Mesaba to address security personnel staffing.

Security measures were in the making for the Regional Airport before September 11, but weren't going to be implemented until June, 2002. The terrorist attacks have caused the installation to be moved ahead of schedule. FAA/Special Agent Steve Rockenback said the new security measures need to be completed and ready for use by February 1.

Mesaba Financial Analyst Andrew Brown said one of the reasons the plan originated, before September 11, was to get rid of reversed screening. Now passengers screened in Thief River Falls will be considered "sterile" when they arrive in Minneapolis.

Brown said the reverse screening process was inefficient, and Northwest plans to "reallocate assets of screening points" at the Minneapolis airport to the main screening entrance.

Prior to landing in Thief River Falls, the visiting committee had made stops in St. Cloud, Brainerd and Bemidji, and was on its way to International Falls.

Seventh-grade Franklin Middle School Student Erick Peterson is among many students who have finished the entire series of Harry Potter books, or are in the process of reading the popular books, which have generated in the students a new appreciation and interest in reading.

Everyone's wild about Harry Potter

"Harry Potter and the Sorcerer's Stone" will be shown at the Galaxy Twin Theater in Thief River Falls beginning on the film's National Break, Friday, November 16, according to Jerry Hickerson, owner. Because the show is two-and-one-half hours long they will have one showing each night at 7 p.m.

Muggles throughout the world are looking forward to the showing of "Harry Potter and the Sorcerer's Stone."

If you happen to be among the few who don't know what a "muggle" is, you're not a child and you're definitely out of the loop.

This phenomenon called Harry Potter is considered to be among the biggest stories of the year, and may translate into some extra magic at area stores.

"It's amazing what it has done for reading," said Heidi Hoks of the Thief River Falls Public Library.

All of the books and cassettes of the popular series at the Thief River Falls Public Library have circulated very, very well, said Hoks.

When the books and cassettes first came out, there was a heavy demand for them, said Hoks. A request for one of the books the other day resulted in a check and the discovery that all of the books were checked out. But when that happens, it often leads to the discovery of other books, said Hoks. She explained that children or adults looking for the books may find something they might like to read from the same section. The Hobbit series by J.R.R. Tolkien for example, is becoming more popular, especially since they will be coming out in the movie theaters soon. She also said the Redwall series, by Brian Jacques, is also popular, although not especially in this area.

Franklin Middle School media center has several copies of the Harry Potter series on hand, but cannot keep them on the shelves. There is such a demand for the books, that there is a list of students waiting to check the books out.

Leslie Nordheim, media specialist at Franklin Middle School, said as a result of the Potter series there's an enthusiasm for reading among students, the like of which she's never seen before. "It's wonderful," said Nordheim.

When the books came out, Nordheim said, there was some concern about witchcraft references in the book, but during a discussion at AAUW, the consensus was that students this age know the information in the book is fictional. In addition they were pleased with the books because they have really encouraged students to read.

Nordheim said she sees some merchandise from the movie in the school, and knows that students are excited about going to the movie. An interesting footnote, for Nordheim, is the fact that she has observed that many grandparents

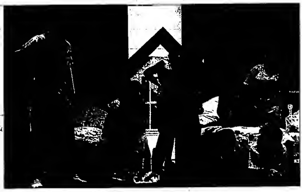
Students flying high with production of "Peter Pan"



"Peter Pan" will be coming to the Lincoln High School Stage Friday and Saturday, November 16 and 17 at 7 p.m. The story begins in the Darling nursery. Above, John Mickelson (Mr. Darling) talks to Tyler Bosh (Michael). Surrounding them are: (from left) Chris Adamson (John), Maggie Stock (Wendy), Heather Fellman (Liza), Danica Colby (Mrs. Darling) and Amber Russ (the children's nanny). Peering in on this family scene from the back window is Peter Pan (David Christensen).

LHS students to present "Peter Pan" Nov. 16 and 17

by Connie Stock
Director

In this time of uncertainty and fear, an uplifting story which is a testament to the power of faith may be just what we need to hear. This Friday and Saturday, November 16 and 17, at 7 p.m., the message to "have faith in what you believe" will come alive on the Lincoln High School stage when the drama department presents "Peter Pan," the original play by J.M. Barrie, directed by Connie Stock.

What seems to be a children's play on the surface is really a statement about the power of positive thoughts, about knowing what you believe and believing it all of the time, about the joy of youth, about imagination, and, of course, about mothers! (After all, the pirates only wanted to have a mother!) The Lincoln production will bring this timeless story into the 21st century to demonstrate that the power of faith and imagination truly is timeless. Artwork, dancing, choreographed sword fights, an abstract set (including a lagoon), and colorful costumes combine with lots of characters, lots of energy, and lots of imagination to create a place we should all try to never forget.

The story begins in the Darling nursery where the maid, Heather Fellman, tries to keep things under control with the help of the children's nanny, a dog, played by Amber Russ. The boisterous little Michael is played by Tyler Bosh, while his older brother and sister, John and Wendy, (who like to play at being grown up) are played by Kris Adamson and Maggie Stock. The always loving and nurturing Mrs. Darling is played by Danica Colby, and the distractable Mr. Darling (who eventually finds himself in the doghouse) is played by John Mickelson. Who should steal into this happy scene of family life but that part of all of us that doesn't really want to grow up, and still feels the need to be loved and nurtured — Peter Pan, portrayed by David Christensen. It doesn't take long before Peter Pan, with the help of the children's imaginations, transports them all (and us) to Never Never Land, a place "where dreams are born, where time is never planned, that you must find within your heart."

Entrance into Never Never Land begins with the song of that title sung by Lynne Hanson. She and Allison Wheeler, Brenda Wood, and Alyssa Norland portray mermaids; Ashley Read, Kelly Fawcett, Tyla Pream, Ana Hibbert, Daniela Cortez, Katie Schommer, and Allyson Torstveit, grace the stage as dancing fairies; AshLeigh Anderson as Tiger Lily and Natasha Hicks as Panther join the other brave Indian dancers, Amber Curry, Sarah Kopecky, Lindsey Engelstad, Brittany Peterson, Maureen Duffy, Amber Russ, Rebecca Delmore, Eym Clow, and Kelsey Christensen, to guard Never Never Land. Of course, Never Land would not be complete without dancing birds, Amber Gerardy and Megan Lunke, or the not-so-very-ferocious wolves, Nicole Thibodeau, Brandy Helm, Amanda

State Commissioner of Public Safety visits

Minnesota Commissioner of Public Safety Charlie Weaver and Minnesota State Patrol Chief Anne Beers met with local law enforcement officials in Thief River Falls on November 7.

"We pick their brains, to see how we can do a better job for them," said Weaver. It's a chance for concerns and suggestions to be expressed.

The topics of terrorism and vulnerable targets around this area were also discussed. Weaver named water treatment plants, pipelines, and bridges as vulnerable points. Ways of ensuring that the United States/Canadian border is adequately patrolled were also laid on the table. Weaver said Minnesota State Troopers are being asked to help out by putting in overtime hours.

Weaver named "good information" as the best way to fight terrorism. If an act of terrorism was to occur in the area, Weaver said efficient communication throughout law enforcement agencies would be essential. This intertwines with a quick response time, and the ability to demonstrate "a clear line of authority at the scene."

Pennington County, like other Minnesota counties has a plan to refer to if terroristic activity ever occurs.

Weaver said "try to visit every office" throughout the state.

Public comment sought on Blue Cross Blue Shield plan

The Minnesota Department of Commerce is now accepting public comment regarding a plan submitted by Blue Cross Blue Shield of Minnesota that would address its excess surplus situation. The deadline for written comments is Dec. 10, 2001.

The BCBSM excess surplus was generated by its $469 million settlement with the tobacco industry. Under Minnesota law, non-profit health service plans, such as BCBSM, must maintain certain financial reserve and surplus levels. Reserves are set aside by the company to pay its expenses, such as health service claims. Surplus funds are meant to be a cushion for unexpected expenses and must fall within a range, specified by law, called a "corridor." The settlement with the tobacco industry placed the BCBSM surplus outside of that corridor.

The current plan is available at www.bluecrossmn.com/news/htdocs/WhotsNewNews.html#1. Comments should be addressed to Commissioner Jim Bernstein, Minnesota Department of Commerce, 85 7th Place East, Suite 500, St. Paul, MN 55101; email: public@commerce.state.mn.us; fax: 651-282-2568.

Open Arms Christian Fellowship youth hold food drive

Youth from Open Arms Christian Fellowship will conduct a door-to-door canvas of Thief River Falls neighborhoods this week on behalf of the local foodshelf.

Gloria Reiersan, Foodshelf Director said there is a definite need

"We anticipate increased use of our service during the upcoming holiday season," she says. "We will be in particular need of non-perishable foods such as canned goods and dry packaged products. We are also grateful to receive items for personal care, such as shampoo, soap, etc."

Besides visiting several neighborhoods, the youth will also be staffing a collection station at Open Arms Christian Fellowship, 401 St. Paul Ave. S. Donations will be accepted at the following times: Tuesday, 5:30 to 8 p.m.; Wednesday, 5 to 9 p.m.; Friday 3 to 5 p.m.; Saturday, 3 to 9 p.m.

The Northern Lights Pathfinders Club, as the youth are called, are affiliated with Adventist Development and Relief Agency, an international organization, which encourages responding to needs, including disasters.

"We wish to not only sensitize our youth to community needs, but we strive to also provide opportunity for them to respond to that need," said Marilyne Sayler, club director. "This community is a generous one. We are honored to be able to play a small part in facilitating that generosity."

Kids paint mural in aftermath of terrorist attack

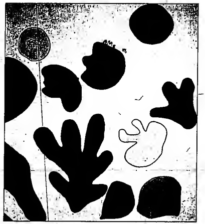
Focus on Kids, a seventh grade class at Franklin Middle School in Thief River Falls, recently completed a mural for the school. The mural will hopefully help students at the school and students in New York who experienced the impact of the tragedy.

Mary Follett, seventh grade art teacher, explained that the idea for a mural came out of a desire to help the students find a way to respond to the disaster and help others at the same time. The design idea for the mural was taken from the artist Henri Matisse. It was painted in the classroom on hardboard and then mounted to the wall adjoining the greenhouse. It is an abstract of flowers done in primary colors with a white background.

Donations will be collected for the mural, before being sent to a New York City middle school where students felt the impact of the tragedy. For a donation, students at Franklin Middle School in Thief River Falls will stamp "bugs" on the mural wall.

Students in the Focus on Kids class include: Kira Achlert, John Carlson, Komeko Graves, Kelly Hanson, Heidi Hoglo, Angela Humme, Brittini Johnson, Destiny Klade, Zack Larson, Cassandra Teie and Katie Trontvet.



Students at Franklin Middle School in Thief River Falls created this mural for middle school students in New York. For a donation, bugs like the one pictured, will be added to the mural. The donations will then be sent to the school as well.

Turkey Game Nite at St. Bernard's

Turkey Game Nite will be held on Sunday, November 18, at 7 p.m. at St. Bernard's hall.

The event is sponsored by the National Catholic Society of Foresters.

First Care celebrates Home Care

In honor of the thousands of home care workers serving our nation, First Care Medical Services will join home care providers throughout the United States in kicking off the November celebration of National Home Care Month, highlighting the theme, "Home Care: The Heart of American Health Care." This year's national celebration acknowledges that in these difficult and uncertain times, caring for one another is also the central value of home care professionals. At no time in our country's history has this reaching out and caring for one another been more evident or more important.

Sponsored by the National Association for Home Care, the month-long celebration pays tribute to the dedicated home care professionals and volunteers who enable elderly, disabled, and chronically ill individuals to live their lives where they want to most — in their own homes. As America's elderly population continues to rapidly grow, home health care will play a pivotal role in health care delivery in our nation's future. In less than 10 years when baby boomers begin to retire, one out of every five Americans will be over the age of 65.

First Care Home Health began providing services to recovering, disabled, or chronically ill people who need medical treatment and/or assistance with the activities of daily living back in 1985. Patients receiving Home Health Care in our area are typically recovering from surgery or a hospital stay, have a disability, or need help with medication administration. Home Health Care provides nursing care including symptom assessment and management, medication management, IV assistance, special feedings, dressing care, diabetic follow up, and health education. Home Health Aids are available to assist with personal cares including bathing, hair and skin care, and homemaking services. Home Health Care can also provide physical therapy, speech therapy, and occupational therapy in the comfort of a patient's own home.

"The vast majority of people faced with recovery, disability, or illness would obviously prefer to remain at home instead of in a hospital or institution," said Marinell Waterworth, RN, CRNA, Home Care and Hospice Manager. "Home Health Care staff provides the high quality health care and the close, personal contact that allows that to happen."

First Care Hospice and Home Health kicked off the month by providing a staff appreciation celebration to recognize the dedication and hard work of both home health and hospice staff on Monday, November 5, in Erskine. "The event provided a wonderful opportunity for staff to receive acknowledgment for their hard work and to spend some enjoyable time together away from their busy work schedules," said Waterworth.

First Care Medical Services is a non-profit organization headquartered in Fosston with home health and hospice branch offices in Fertile, Thief River Falls, Oklee, Mahnomen, and a home health office in Ada. If you would like more information about home health care, please call 218-681-6189.

Goodridge Lion Tamers host blood drive November 15

Goodridge Lion Tamers will host a blood drive on Thursday, November 15, from 7:30 a.m. to noon at St. Anne's Catholic Church. Anyone wishing to donate may call Sylvia Walsh at 378-4117 or Frances Aandal at 681-4893.

What would happen if there was a blood drive and nobody came?

Fortunately, people in the Fargo United Blood Services' service area have rarely experienced a severe local blood shortage. Most people in our area have never lived in a city where the local blood center cannot collect enough blood to completely meet the needs of area hospitals. Usually, enough donors give blood day after day, and the supply keeps up with the demand, quietly and without fanfare.

"Usually" is the key word here, and forces are at work locally that could shift the balance negatively if everyone is not mindful of the trends.

During the past year or so, it has become more difficult for blood drive coordinators to fill their appointment schedules. People are busier. There are more activities. Both parents are working. It's not convenient. There is no time.

Still, despite all of the obstacles, donors have managed to give blood, and the total number of donations locally had increased for the past few years. However, the use of blood products has increased also and at a greater rate. Therein lies the potential danger. The gap between available supply and demand is widening, and more donors are needed to replace those who can no longer give.

Despite medical technology, man has yet to invent a substitute for human blood. There is still just one source — generous, caring people who are willing to roll up their sleeves and spend an hour saving others.

Jam session at Heritage Center Sunday, Nov. 18

Eric Bergeson

Since that October snowstorm, when it looked like we were condemned to an early winter, the northland has been graced by the rarest of weather boons, a true Indian summer.

The days are almost as short as they are going to get yet, because the grass is still a rich green, it is almost bearable to have the sun set at five o'clock. When one can run around outside, one doesn't notice the short days.

A reprieve. A respite. A comeback. When the billows of white powder roared by the window three weeks ago, one would have thought autumn was over. But here we are, back in the fields, in our shirt sleeves with a second wind, milking a few more drops out of the season.

We know winter will come eventually. It always does. But there is something especially nostalgic and stirring about the unexpected good fortune of an Indian summer.

In my years watching baseball, nothing captured my imagination more than the old ballplayer, nearly retired, in the sunset of his career, who put it all together for one last burst of glory.

I remember when the great Tony Oliva, late in his career, with his knees reduced to jello, hit two home runs in one game. I was too young to remember Oliva in his glory days, but I could tell from the croak in broadcaster Herb Carneal's voice that night that seeing the decrepit Oliva hit two long ones brought back memories of something grand.

Baseball historians would point to creaky old Grover Cleveland Alexander, long past his prime, soon to die a dissolute death, who, despite his questionable health and state of mind, stumbled to the mound in the ninth inning of the seventh game of the 1926 World Series to strike out the mighty Yankees and preserve a championship for the St. Louis Cardinals.

Ted Williams hit a home run in his last at bat. Babe Ruth hit three home runs in one of his last games. The mighty Nolan Ryan threw a no-hitter at age 46.

Winston Churchill was 69 before he first became prime minister, the same age Ronald Reagan was when he was inaugurated president. Both had long before been written off as too old. Both were seen as dangerous. Reagan was viewed as an impulsive simpleton, and Churchill as a semi-crazy schemer. Both had suffered years of defeat.

But both Reagan and Churchill were underestimated and misunderstood by those who act intelligent for a living. Whatever one might think of their politics, the persistence and resilience of Churchill and Reagan, as well as their eventual triumph over their critics during the Indian summer of their lives, makes for a stirring story.

We know an Indian summer can't last. That is why it is so precious, and so appreciated. Winter will come, and soon. But the sight of a sunset over rich green grass in Minnesota in mid-November is as bittersweet and nostalgic to me as an unexpected cluster of home runs late in the season by an aging but beloved slugger.

SPEAKING OF . . .

Sherry LaCoursiere

...For Better or Worse

I can see them now, little Snidely Whiplashes, with their slyly curving mustaches and wispy beards, hunched over a rough wooden table, surrounded by new age, modern television sets turned to different channels. Right now the Snidleys in my imagination are all wearing babushkas wrapped around their heads and are tall and thin and look like (my cousin says a praying mantis - I say a grasshopper, since I recently watched "A Bug's Life") Osama bin Laden. (To differentiate, when we were in the war with Iraq, all of my bad guys had chunky, somewhat Hitler-like mustaches, wore military gear and were short and stout and looked like Saddam Hussein [who looked like a strutting little beetle to me].)

Those bin Laden Snidleys are very busy at that wooden table. They are watching the television screens and writing on legal pads. What are they writing? The Snidleys are writing down all of the terrorism ideas that talking heads are giving them on the various television channels. And they are getting pages and pages full of new ideas on how to kill us and terrorize us.

What is the media thinking, or aren't they thinking? Is it that they are trying to get a "one-up" on the other news stations? This is not a good way to do it. We, the public, don't want to know where the weakest entry spots are in the U.S. and we don't care if channel 6 knows more of them than channel 11. We don't want to know the exact place where the fuel tanks are on a particular type of airplane, or how to get into the working areas of a large airport, or exactly where every nuclear facility is in the U.S., or how our water systems work and exactly how much of a certain type of poison is needed to contaminate a particular water system. WE DON'T WANT TO KNOW THIS STUFF!

No, if it going to hurt the U.S. and make it easier for our enemies to get us, we don't want to know everything. We can get by with a lot less information right now. Don't tell us all of the details of what it would take to hurt us, because our enemies are listening and learning too. We can wait to hear about it until the end of the war, even if it is years down the road. Some day we will be told and we can be patient when it comes to saving lives.

Not only are we providing our enemies with ideas for bigger and better ways to damage us and our country, but we are helping them do it. I know, I am as much of a ghoul as anyone else when it comes to watching live television coverage of catastrophic events, but it is making me very nervous to see television cameras stuck in the faces of those who are trying to deal with the event. I know the reporters must be in the way.

Note the airplane crash that happened Monday. I suppose many of the pictures came from long range cameras, but it appeared that the reporters and photographers were right on top of the fires, stuck in the faces of the firemen and policemen who were trying to deal with the tragedy. I wanted to shout, "Get out of the way," to the cameramen, as the firemen tried to drag hoses from one place to another and the policemen tried to direct emergency vehicles around the packed streets.

All of the media people milling around with their cameras and microphones must be at least a terrible distraction for those who are trying to deal with the tragedy, if not a complete hazard, dangerous to the lives of everyone involved in the rescue efforts. I understand freedom of the press, but I think the press and other media might be getting a little too much freedom now. Freedom of the press does not mean that reporters are allowed to endanger lives in their quest for news.

And what sensitivity is shown by these reporters who are on the scene. Shove a mike and a camera into the face of a sobbing citizen and ask them how they feel. Isn't that what the public wants to see - pain and suffering? And who are all of those idiots who show up in back of the reporters? The same people walk back and forth behind the reporters, sneaking sly pecks at the camera, growing bolder and bolder. In a few minutes, one expects to see them waving and grinning like monkeys at the camera, perhaps holding up a sign that says, "Hi, Mom," no matter what kind of horrors are going on around them.

Considering we are a country who knows the power of the media (and also how to use it against enemies, we learned after the Persian Gulf war), you would think we would be a little more sensible, a little more cautious, a little more sensitive in our reporting. Who knows, maybe after this war we will find out that all of the reporting stupidity was planned as a propaganda ploy against the terrorists. I shouldn't be surprised.

ON THE OTHER HAND

Andrea Hagen, Lincoln High School

When the majority of high schoolers ~~are out and about~~ On weekends, I am usually stuck behind the stainless steel counter top of McDonald's. I cannot even begin to count the number of nights I have spent there, making burgers and taking orders. I have no intention to throw a pity party. I simply thought it was high time for people to understand a little more about my second home. McDonald's has always been a wonderful working environment for me. What more could I possibly ask for? I have learned much more from working there than I ever expected to. I have learned to be more tolerant of people. There have been many times when I have had to swallow my pride, and take the humiliation that some people automatically assume you deserve because you are in a buttoned tip maroon uniform. There are a few customers who insist you treat them as superiors before they are truly satisfied. It hurts to be looked down on. At times it is very hard for me to be nice to every single customer. When it gets really busy, and I have things to do, I don't want to wait for someone to decide what they would like to drink with their value meal. I don't have time, but McDonald's has always made our objectives very clear. That is to make each customer happy to be there. They are to be satisfied with their food, with our speed, and with the service provided. Surprisingly enough, that is no easy task I have been working at McDonald's for a total of two years, and I still do not have the customer service thing down.

There are also many benefits to working at McDonald's. For one thing, I get to be with my friends. It is wonderful to have an assembly line filled with your closest companions. My best friend in the world works with me as well. I never thought she and I would be getting paid to hang out with each other. There are many chances to meet new people, which is my favorite thing about working there. Now, I know people who I never would have talked to before I worked there. Everyone has such dynamic personalities, which adds to the atmosphere.

I never realized how much a person could learn from working at a fast food restaurant. It is a very rapid paced working area. Often times I wish I had a job where I could wear my regular clothes, and let my hair down. Then I think of all the good times I have had working there, and I realize that there is no other place I would want to work at this point of my life. I wouldn't want to be there forever, but for now I am having a lot of fun and am learning good work ethics. As long as I live, I will always appreciate waitresses and McDonald's employees, because I know how truly difficult it can be.

Q&A SOCIAL SECURITY

Provided by the Social Security District Office in Grand Forks, ND

The Social Security Administration released the following questions and answers regarding social security benefits.

Retirement benefits that are started near age 62 will be reduced because of age. Will the benefits go up again once full retirement age is reached at 65 and four months based on birth year?

Other than cost-of-living increases, and perhaps a change based on current work, benefits are permanently reduced. However, in most situations the person is financially ahead for many years by starting retirement benefits before their full retirement age. Annual earning limits are sometimes high enough for benefits to be fully paid even with steady wages.

For retirees within the ages of 62 through 64, new earning limits for calendar year 2002 will be $11,280 gross wages or net self-employment. A modified work test exists in the year that a person attains age 65.

In other words, a person who is 63, and working with gross earnings expected to be less than $11,280 would not earn enough to lower Social Security retirement. The person could continue working if desired and still receive Social Security. Receiving reduced SSA benefits could be well worth the consideration, even though they would be somewhat reduced for age.

How much will Supplemental Security Income payments be next year?

After the 2.6 percent cost-of-living adjustment takes place for next year, the maximum SSI monthly payment to an individual will be $545 per month. As usual this maximum amount is reduced by other income. Living arrangements are also used in setting the SSI payment amount. SSI is a national, need based program for the elderly, disabled adults and disabled children. It is separate from Social Security and paid for by general Treasury revenues, not SSA taxes.

For readers' information, as of Nov. 1 the Social Security Administration had received about 4,000 benefit applications related to the September 11 attacks.

TIMES FOR TODDLERS

ACTIVITIES
Fine-Feathered Holder

This fine-feathered Thanksgiving project holds plenty of treats! To make one holder, cut six inches off the top of a brown paper lunch bag and save the bottom part. Cut six 2"x 5" strips of brown construction paper. Fringe each strip along one side. To both the front and back of the bag, glue three strips (fringe down) so that they overlap slightly. Bend the fringe upward. Cut a brown head, a yellow beak, a red wattle and tail, and white eyes with black centers from construction paper, then glue the red tail on one end of the unfringed side and the completed head on the other unfringed side. Fill the completed holder with treats, such as pretzels or bags of candy corn. Gobble, gobble!

PARENTING TIPS
Fostering Creativity

Creativity is the ability to originate ideas, to redefine old situations with new perspectives, to find new solutions to old problems, and to see new relationships between seemingly unrelated objects, ideas or actions. We often think of creativity as an artist's special ability to translate thoughts, words or actions into a new form. But creativity should be a part of everyone's life beginning during the preschool years.

Creativity is a valuable personal resource. Because the world is rapidly changing, we cannot predict the needs of the future. One of the most important tools you can give your child is the ability to shift gears and take a new approach in the fact of change.

SOMETHING TO TALK ABOUT

One way to talk to your child and to encourage creativity is to ask questions that require more than one word answers. For example, instead of asking "What is it?" say "Tell me about it."

School News & Views

The election is history and District #564 has a referendum in place once again. I thank all of you who supported the referendum on behalf of the school district. I also thank all of you who went to the polls last Tuesday and voted. This is a tremendous privilege we Americans have. It is because many men and women through the years have fought for that freedom, and many gave the ultimate sacrifice of their lives for our country, for you and me, that we have the privilege to vote. Voter turnout should be higher at all our elections in this country, but one of our freedoms is the freedom to choose whether or not to vote.

I don't know how heavy voter turnout was across the state in these school referendums. I know it varied from district to district. Some districts were voting for school board members as well as referendums, and in those cases I'm sure voter turnout was higher. Minnesota's governor was campaigning against school funding. The Minnesota Chamber of Commerce was campaigning against school funding and really against rural Minnesota. Other groups campaigned statewide against all referendums and all schools in general. Our freedoms allow us each to have one vote, and we are allowed to examine the information relative to our local schools and local communities and make a choice. It is good that our whole state is not controlled by one governor, or one governmental body, but we have the freedom to make local decisions and local choices, and to choose who we want to represent us in St. Paul and Washington D.C. Hopefully these freedoms will continue for many, many years to come.

In my last column I referenced the state honor that one of our teachers at Lincoln High School received this fall. Connie Stock was recognized as one of nine outstanding teachers statewide as a "Minnesota 2001 Teacher of the Year Honor Roll" teacher. Others of our teachers receive various awards and recognitions throughout the year every year because we have an outstanding staff. We have many students who receive honors and awards throughout the year in a wide variety of areas because they are good students, have good and supportive parents, work hard, and have great leadership provided to them through our schools. With the passing of the current referendum, the programs and people we have in place will continue to be available to our students to a large degree. Although we will still have to make reductions, we can continue to place a high priority on preparing students for the future. We will continue to have many students recognized locally, regionally, and statewide for their hard work and their accomplishments.

In the weeks ahead you will have many opportunities to experience firsthand the talents of our young people. We will have many fine arts presentations in music and drama. We will have many young people performing in various athletic competitions, and we will continue to have examples of student work and recognitions presented in the media. I urge you to make every attempt to experience the talent exhibited by our students when these opportunities arise.

Last week the students at Lincoln High School presented a patriotic program for their peers. What a tremendous showing of pride and concern for the United States of America. Students presented and performed pieces of their own work through poetry, prose and music. It was a great current events lesson and a great tribute to the understanding and compassion these young people have for our country. A few weeks ago our students from Franklin Middle School, Challenger Elementary School, and I believe private schools in Thief River Falls, made posters and flags and displayed at the MEC Center during a Prowler football game and the community wide tailgating rally to raise funds for the Red Cross efforts in New York and Washington D.C.

As the war against terrorism continues and spreads to other parts of our country and the world, and as the threat of further terroristic actions increases, we need to be diligent to protect ourselves, our students, and our community every way that we can. For several years we have had crisis management plans in place in our schools. Not only on an annual basis, but as situations arise throughout our country, we examine our crisis management plans to be sure they are current and appropriate. This fall we at District #564 have taken steps to remain diligent on behalf of all of our students and staff in this regard. As your children, and young people express concerns and ask questions, it gives rise to opportunities for good family discussions as well.

Our young people are in tune with what is happening in our country and the world to a much greater degree than they have been in a number of years. Educators capitalize on this understanding and awareness in ways that further enhance student learning and student patriotism in schools and in daily lives. We have only to look around us to see the great teaching and learning that is going on in our community. We can be proud. Let us always be thankful for those who dedicate their lives to help young people and all people grow and learn and mature. These people are not only teachers, but these people are leaders - leaders in our community and city affairs, in our churches, in our service groups, and in our families and neighborhoods. Thank God for our leaders and our freedoms. Let us always be diligent to continue to work on their behalf. Thanks for all you do.

The weather in northwest Minnesota is as clear and beautiful as in New York, sans the falling airliner. We can only sympathize with all those hurting people. These nice days are shortening the coming winter, for which we are grateful. I peek in on my dahlia corms in the basement to see if they are OK and not drying or wrinkling, nor are they in a hurry to be planted that they are sprouting like the potatoes do. So far they are looking good and I'm the one who is thinking of spring again.

Elphie Adlis is always ready with dinners and lunches during hunting season, a work of love which she gives to her many friends. Her guests on Sunday were Terry Herr of Minneapolis, Richard Johnson of Albertville, Mike and Betty Johnson of Warroad, Alan, Kelly, and Robert Rogalla, and Cory, Lari, Kyle, Jordon, Aaron and MaryAnn Wikstrom.

LaVerne Rasmussen of Frazee and Phaela Thompson visited Peter and Pearl Thompson on Saturday afternoon.

Judy Kleinvachter kept more than her big coffee pot going for her visitors this week as some were hunters and as a rule they are hungry from tramping through all the mess that the fallen trees have made. Roy says no more cranberry picking for me, which was one of my favorite jobs in the summertime. He's sure I'll break a leg or just get hurt. No hunting for me too, he thinks I'm too old and could get lost. Judy's guests this week were Vance and Kelly Lofrooth, Mario Stellon, Kay Turnwall of St. Hilaire, Ronnie Kleinvachter from Stillwater, and Don and Ivadell Douglas from Park Rapids.

Donnie, Greg and Austin Lofrooth and Pearl Thompson visited Elsie Lofrooth on Saturday.

Jim Sundby of Alvarado, visited Isaac and Betsy Thompson on Monday. Other visitors there this week have been LaVarna Rasmussen and Richard and Carol Thompson. On Saturday, Betsy called and invited Roy and I for liver and onions for a noon meal and that's a meal we could never miss. It was great though it was just a few hours before we went to Roseau to enjoy Jon's specialty, deep fat-fried walleye fish and all the trimmings, plus ReNee's birthday cake. We were hard on the liver and onions. Thanks Betsy.

On Tuesday evening, Betsy Thompson with Cathy as chauffeur, took Pearl Thompson, Colleen Pendleton, CoCo Hemple and me to Hasting's Landing in Drayton, where we were met by Marie Johnson, Denise Aakre, and Sally Wagner for dinner and ladies night out. We had a wonderful time.

Moms and Hazel Anderson are celebrating Veterans Day on Monday in Thief River Falls commemorating the day that Hazel was inducted into the U.S. Air Force 58 years ago. We are mighty proud of you and I still have the picture of the Mayor of Minneapolis shaking your hand.

have purchased the series for their grandchildren and, as a result, the grandparents and grandchildren are developing a special connection.

One local grandmother said her grandson could hardly wait to read the books. His interest was exceptionally pleasing, especially when he asked, "Grandma, do you think it's better to read a book or see a movie about a book?" After a discussion, he concluded that he thought books were better "because you could see more in a book than in a movie."

If it is true that the book is the most popular children's book of all time, the movie has a lot to live up to. Regardless, the book is encouraging a new group of readers.

Franklin Middle School also has a program that encourages reading. The students who complete the series obtain quite a few points in the Accelerated Reading Program by finishing the series. Nordheim noted that students who complete the series are often interested in reading more books. Some of the more popular books have been from C.S. Lewis or the Tolkien Hobbit series.

In the past, students would visit the school media center (library) to obtain books for a book report. Now Nordheim reports that many visit the media center to read books for enjoyment. "It's just wonderful to see," said Nordheim.

Marketing Harry Potter

Many merchants are hoping that the interest in the movie will have a magical impact on sales this holiday season.

Kim Nelson, assistant manager at Pamida in Thief River Falls, said they just received a whole new shipment in for the holiday season. Nelson said she hasn't heard of a lot of demand for Harry Potter items, other than the books yet, but believes there will be a big demand during the holiday season for anything that has anything to do with Harry Potter.

Kmart has a large display involving Hagrid, a giant of a character in the Harry Potter series, at the entrance, and numerous licensed toys and clothing throughout the store. Sales of this merchandise could have a big impact on overall sales this year.

Part of the magic of the Harry Potter series seems to be the fact that J.K. Rowling, the author, has tapped into mainstream experiences, which includes marketing. Parents and children everywhere can relate to a child's demand for brand name clothing or equipment. When Harry gets a new flying broom, in the story, it's not just any broom, it's the fastest broom, it's a "Nimbus 2000," which is not unlike some shoes that seem to promise its wearer the ability to run faster and jump higher.

The show also tickles the fancy of children and imagination with such items as Bertie Bott's Every Flavor Beans, which were being served up to the curious at Kmart in Thief River Falls on Sunday. What's so special, you ask about Bertie Bott's Every Flavor Beans? In the book, the beans consist of every flavor, including ear wax and vomit. (No reports yet on what they taste like.)

Nick Bosh, manager of Kmart in Thief River Falls, said he never knows how licensee products are going to sell. Although marketing for the Harry Potter books, movie, and licensed products appears to have been good, Bosh said it really depends on public perception and interest.

Experts are saying that Harry Potter and the Sorcerer's Stone could well overtake Titanic as the biggest money-making film of all time. So this film could be the object merchants are looking for to turn an ailing economy.

Regardless of what the experts are saying there's something magical about the Harry Potter story that has children and adults looking for the Hogwarts Express and Platform nine and three-quarters, and it all begins on Friday.

LHS Concert Choir has many adventures awaiting them this year

It's performance tour year for the Concert Choir at Lincoln High School, and two destination spots have been identified.

The trip out-of-state will be to the city of Chicago where the singers will be competing with choirs from around the country in a choral competition. The 16-voice jazz group, Swingsations, will also be competing in Chicago. Audition tapes are being sent to Chicago for various other performance venues such as performances at Six-Flags or Navy Pier for Swingsations and churches for Concert Choir. Hopeful sites could be the Fourth Presbyterian Church or the Reform Synagogue. The students are also hoping for the chance to sing the National Anthem at a Cubs game. All performance opportunities will be confirmed by Christmas. Mrs. Reese is also working out the details for other cultural activities for the singers while in the city. This performance tour will begin around 11 p.m. on May 1 and end about the same time on May 7. Buses will be the means of transportation this year — no planes in the plans!

The cost per student for the performance tour is $891. There are 67 singers going on the trip and each one of them is committed to making monthly payments of $85. They will pay $595 in payments and will need to fund raise the remaining $296. If they do not fund raise the entire amount they will pay the balance on March 15, 2002. The amount needed to fund raise for the trip is $19,832. The big kick-off for fundraising will take place this Sunday, November 18, as the choir presents the Chicago Bound Telethon live on channel 3. Pledges will be accepted from 1 to the end of the show that day. Students are also working odd jobs for money through Hire the Choir.

An added performance was just confirmed November 7 as the Jewish Council from Minneapolis-St. Paul asked the choir to be the premiere performers in a Minneapolis Synagogue on the National Holocaust Remembrance Day April 9, 2002. The choir will be leaving at 2 on April 8 and returning on April 10. The choir was selected because of the works they performed on their May 21, 2001 concert that they presented at Lincoln High School entitled "Never Again." The concert was based on poetry written by children who were forced into concentration camps during the Holocaust. The "Butterfly Songs" will again be performed during the service at the synagogue. Minneapolis connections are trying to make it possible for Minnesota Public Radio to broadcast all or part of this performance on April 9 but that has not been confirmed as of yet.

Accompanying the singers will be the musicians that accompanied the choir on their latest CD entitled "Butterfly." Performers include Kenny Holman, saxophone and flute player for Janet Jackson, Prince and Lori Line; Gordy Johnson, bassist for Lori Line and Chuck Mangione; Don Stille, a fabulous jazz pianist from Chicago and Michael Philhofer, drummer and son of the drummer for the Steve Miller Band and graduate of Julliard. The recording took place this past June in Studio M at Minnesota Public Radio. The recording also has the voices of three Holocaust survivors telling their personal stories. The CD should be available this winter. The beautiful banners that were flying during the "Never Again" concert will also be hanging during the April 9 performance. Alissa Norland, a junior at Lincoln High School, has sent her banners to Minneapolis where they will be displayed at the Jewish Council Center in Minneapolis and be sent out on loan to various organizations that have a need for them throughout the Minneapolis and St. Paul area.

Because of this remarkable performance opportunity in Minneapolis, the choir is also trying to set-up another performance of the "Butterfly Songs" in Chicago during their performance tour. Don Stille from Chicago will be accompanying them in Chicago if the Reform Synagogue approves the performance. Henry Oertelt, the Holocaust survivor, will again be part of each of the performances in Minneapolis and Chicago. Mrs. Reese and the choir believed that the May 21 concert would be the end of the Butterfly project. They were shocked and very excited when they were asked to record the pieces at Minnesota Public Radio in June. They are now extremely honored to be asked to sing these moving selections once more for the Jewish population of Minneapolis/St. Paul. It seems a fitting way to end the story of our beautiful "Butterfly."

Olson, Lisa Watts, Heidi Steele, Allison Burns, Amanda Franks and Nick Norland.

What would imaginary places be without children and imagination . . . especially Lost Children who just haven't quite found the place where they belong? Enter Slightly the Know-it-all child, Rebekah Solem; Tootles, who always seems to get into trouble-Mandi Johnson; precocious Nibs-Allison Page; Curly, who is not always quite with the program-Kay Steiger; the colorful twins-Roxanne Berg and Katie Hruby; the naughty twins-Kate Levinson and Stacy Schultz, and the children who just want to play, Skittles-Cathy Erickson and Sheena-Ruchi Patel. In any child's imagination lurk the fears they need to overcome. . . the pirates! However, these dancing pirates are more comical than fearsome, and their somewhat bitter leader even strikes fear into their hearts — the elegant, awesome, Captain Hook played by Josh Frazer. His "right-hand" men are the Gentleman Starkey-Chris Leach, and the non-conformist Smee-Dane Froiland. The pirates who do his dirty work are Cecco (Trent Christensen), Bill Jukes (Joaquin Westerman), Noodler (Trevor Christensen), The Sinister Pirate (Brent Fulton), Cookson (Lance Pearson), Mullins (Nathan Browning), and Whibbles of the Eye Patch (Nick Olson). Completing this motley crew are Nathan Olson, Cody Knutson, Vanessa Tieman, Bobby Edwards, Jeff Vennes, Megan Bruno, Amy Abercrombie, and Vanessa Tieman. Throughout the show, the arch-nemesis of Captain Hook and the most cartoon-like character in the production makes his presence known without a word. . . the crocodile played by Tad Tureson.

Adding interest and texture to the play are wonderful dances using music from the musical "Peter Pan" and the movie "Hook" choreographed by Michelle Duffy. The ultimate fight scene between Captain Hook and Peter Pan was choreographed by Moorhead State University instructor, Craig Ellingson. A water-filled lagoon, working fountain and anything else that needed doing with the set were built by Art Heinze, Mike Melby, Scott Bornholdt, Lyle Hanson and Mike Hickey. Creative abstract trees were designed and painted by magnet arts students, Allison Wheeler, Brenda Wood, Alyssa Norland, Allisa Holmaas, Sheena Carter, Amy Haten, and Rebecca Delmore under the supervision of their instructor, Marilyn Adams. The underwater scene on the lagoon has been designed and painted by Expressive Connections student and artist, Chris Krapohl. Adding more richness to the production are the costumes coordinated by Diane Marshall. This show will be the first major production using the new lighting system which was donated by Mr. and Mrs. Bob Dondelinger. The lighting technician for the production is student, Philip Hoks. Other student production workers are sound technicians, David Edwards and Tad Tureson; stage managers, Shannon Linder and Steve Bergland; and student assistant, Cathy Erickson.

With over 70 students involved in the production of "Peter Pan," the evening should prove to be one where imagination, joy, and the power of believing come alive in the heart of every audience member, whether a child or an adult. Experience the place where dreams are born on Friday, November 16, and Saturday, November 17, in the Lincoln High School auditorium. Tickets are $2 for students, and $5 for adults and will be available at the door.

MN tourism industry recognizes generosity of students

Students from the Angle Inlet School, Minnesota's last one-room schoolhouse, explored the Twin Cities recently as guests of Minnesota tourism businesses after they donated the money they had raised for a class trip to help the children of Afghanistan.

As part of their visit to the Twin Cities, the students helped kick off the "Explore Minnesota Now!" travel fair at the Mall of America on Friday, November 9.

Officials of the Minnesota Office of Tourism first learned of the school through news reports explaining how the entire class - all nine students - responded to the events following the September 11 attacks by sending all of the money they had saved for an annual class trip to America's Fund for Afghan Children.

To recognize the students' generosity, tourism industry members donated a class trip for the students and their teacher which would coincide with the travel fair November 9-10. After their 600-mile trip from Minnesota's Northwest Angle, they were welcomed by Governor Jesse Ventura at the kick-off of the travel fair at 10:30 a.m. Friday.

Teacher Linda Kastl leads the Angle Inlet School class of children who range in age between five and 12. The group takes an annual class trip. Last year, they went to Duluth, but this year, instead of a trip, opted to send part of what they'd saved to children on the other side of the world.

Minnesota's travel and tourism industry responded to the selfless gesture by providing a class trip to the Twin Cities with all expenses paid. Northwest Airlines flew the group from Winnipeg, Manitoba, and they stayed at the historic St. Paul Hotel.

The trip included visits to places the students said they wanted to see, and at the Mall of America, they were given unlimited access to rides at Camp Snoopy and visited the Underwater World aquarium. Students also visited the State Capitol, Minnesota Zoo and downtown Minneapolis, view the skyscrapers which are unusual sights for young residents of the north woods.

The Northwest Angle, while part of Minnesota, is surrounded by Canada. It's the northernmost point of the contiguous United States. Noted for Lake of the Woods fishing, Northwest Angle and its islands are a tourism destination, offering resorts and guides to travelers who come for fishing and birding.

Swim title stays in Warroad

Thief River Falls came up with five state meet-qualifying performances during the 2001 Section 8A girls high school swimming and diving championships held Friday and Saturday at the new Bemidji High School pool.

The Prowlers' Chelsea Haviland won individual titles in both diving and the 200-yard freestyle, while also swimming a leg on a first place 200 freestyle relay team that included Cami Hendrickson, Allyson Helling and Brittany Haviland.

Those first place finishes were complemented by state meet efforts from Helling, with a third in the diving competition, and a third place in the 400 freestyle relay team – the same foursome that won the 200 freestyle event.

Top two finishers in each event and top four divers earned automatic berths in the Nov. 19-21 state meet at the University of Minnesota Aquatic Center in Minneapolis. Swimmers could advance by matching state meet-qualifying standards – a feat accomplished by the Prowlers' 400 freestyle relay team.

Both Thief River Falls state meet-qualifying relay teams set records during the meet. A 1:42.74 in the 200 freestyle finals bettered both the Section 8A mark and the Prowlers' school standard, while a 3:49.44 in the 400 freestyle prelims established a school record.

Top eight qualifiers in Friday prelims swam Saturday championship finals, while prelim places 9-16 made up the second-day consolation finals.

Warroad successfully defended its Section 8A team title by collecting 475.5 points, followed by Park Rapids Area with 373.5, Thief River Falls 325, Fosston/Bagley 238, Roseau 221, Detroit Lakes 211, Crookston 125, and Perham 97.

It was the exact order of finish as the 2001 meet, except that Crookston finished ahead of Perham for seventh place this time around.

A week earlier Warroad won the North Border Conference title by a 433-309.5 margin over runner-up Thief River Falls.

Caroline Schik of Park Rapids Area won the 50 and 100 freestyle races to join Chelsea Haviland as the only double-event individual winners in the meet.

Named Section 8A swimming Athlete of the Year, Chelsea Haviland will be diving at the state meet for a sixth time. After a second place finish to Jenny Gardner of Bemidji as a seventh grader in single-class competition in 1996, Haviland has won five straight Section 8A diving titles.

Success has also followed her to the state level, where she was 18th as a seventh grader and Class A state runner-up as a eighth grader before beginning a championship run that has included state titles as a freshman, sophomore and junior (1998-1999-2000).

At the 2001 state meet, Chelsea Haviland will try become Minnesota's second four-time state diving champion, a feat first accomplished by Jamie Sanger of Wayzatta from 1995-98.

Chelsea Haviland has also had a pair of place finishes in state meet swimming events during her career, including a 12th in the 200 individual medley as a sophomore and a third in the 100 freestyle as a junior.

Thief River Falls coach Dawn Coauette was more than satisfied with the Prowlers' post-season performances. "They all did very well," she said.

In addition to the two school record relay swims, Prowlers turning in personal-best times included Dani Sorvig, 200 freestyle and 100 freestyle; Brittany Haviland, 100 butterfly; Katie Pribula, 500 freestyle; Tevia Reese, 100 backstroke; April Peterson, 100 backstroke; Casey Engelstad, 100 breaststroke; and the 200 medley relay combination of Reese, Tiffany Sorenson, Michelle Johnson, and Jenna Dillon.

Top six place finishers in each event were presented with Minnesota State High School League medals.

Todd Fritze of Park Rapids Area was named Section 8A Swim Coach of the Year; Kim Meindl of Detroit Lakes was selected Section 8A Diving Coach of the Year; and Park Rapids Area was honored as the Section 8A swimming academic champions.

Prowlers open year with win

■ TRF girls stake by EGF 7-2 in hockey debut

Four second period goals carried Thief River Falls to a 7-2 girls high school hockey win over East Grand Forks Monday at the Huck Olson Memorial Civic Center. It was the 2001-02 season opener for both teams.

The Prowlers saw a 2-0 lead turn into a 2-2 tie before their second period scoring outburst that included two goals in 23 seconds, three goals in 4:08 and four goals in 7:28.

"I was very happy with the second period," said Thief River Falls coach Tim Magnusson. "The second period is what killed us last year, and we talked about that with the kids in the locker room. It was nice to see them come out and score like that."

East Grand Forks had tied the game just 1:20 into the second period when Stacie Nunn poked the puck under Thief River Falls goalie Stacy Schultz.

Thief River Falls took over, however, when Jamie Dahlen scored on a scramble in front of East Grand Forks goalie Katy Nelson at the six-minute mark and a quick 23 seconds later Kelly Bendickson picked up her second goal of the game by putting a point-blank rebound into the net.

It became 5-2 when Kara Larson came up with a steal and a shorthanded breakaway goal at 10:08.

At 13:28 Steph Hoard scored off a face-off to the right of Nelson to complete the Prowlers' mid-game offensive surge.

If that wasn't enough, Hoard scored on a close-in backhand during a 4-on-4 situation just 17 seconds into the second period to cap a five-point night for the junior center.

"We started a little slow – maybe it was first-game jitters or something," said Magnusson. "We played well in the second period. Third period our goal was to keep them from scoring and to give them just two shots. We gave them three."

Magnusson wasn't too disappointed missing that final period objective. "It was a good way to open the season," he said. "I'm very happy with it. We played good position hockey."

Bendickson scored the season's first goal 9:20 into the game by converting a goal mouth pass from Hoard.

Allisa Holmaas made it 2-0 at 10:45 when she reached out and knocked the puck into the net as she was being tripped up during a scramble in front of Nelson.

The Green Wave cut into the the Prowlers' lead at 11:18 after a puck that was centered from behind the Thief River Falls net was deflected past Schultz by Heidi Carey.

The Prowlers out-shot the Green Wave 39-10.

A busy first-week schedule for the Prowlers included a home game Tuesday vs. Warroad and a Friday trip to Park Rapids. They will be at home again Tuesday against a Grand Forks cooperative program.

Scoring

First period - TRF, Kelly Bendickson (Steph Hoard-Kalia Kazar), 5:40, TRF, Allisa Holmaas (Kara Larson-Stacey Olsun), 10:45; EGF, Heidi Carey (Kaley Johnson-Ashley Hangslaben), 11:18.

Second period - EGF, Stacie Nunn (un.), 1:20, TRF, Jamie Dahlen (Hoard-Meagan Lunke), 6:00, TRF, Bendickson (Hoard-Lisa Wigand), 6:23, TRF, Larson (un.), 10:08, TRF, Hoard (Holmaas), 13:28.

Third period - TRF, Hoard (Abbie Houske), :17.

Goalie saves - TRF, Stacy Schultz 3-2-3-8; EGF, Katy Nelson 10-12-10-32.

Carrying the puck behind the net, Thief River Falls defenseman Meagan Lunke set up the Prowlers' breakout play in the first period of Monday's girls high school hockey game at the Huck Olson Memorial Civic Center. Thief River Falls won the 2001-02 season-opener 7-2.

Minnesota 2002 state park permit available

The public is invited to celebrate the beauty of Charles A. Lindbergh State Park and a piece of American history when they purchase the Minnesota state park annual vehicle permit for 2002. According to officials from the Department of Natural Resources, the new permit not only showcases the state park in Little Falls, it also honors the 75th anniversary of Charles Lindbergh Jr.'s historic flight to Paris in 1927.

"The permit, designed by Minnesota artist Louis Ruymer, showcases two of the special natural features of the park," said Kate Brady, state parks public affairs and marketing supervisor. "The permit artwork includes white pine trees and an eagle in flight, plus a drawing of the young aviator, Charles Lindbergh, who made history when he completed the first solo trans-Atlantic flight in 1927."

The park itself is actually named after the famous aviator's father. "The senior Lindbergh represented Minnesota in Congress from 1907-1917," Brady said. "In 1898, Lindbergh purchased the land on which the family built a summer home where young Charles spent his boyhood days."

The home is open to the public and is managed by the Minnesota Historical Society, which offers daily tours of the residence from May 1 through Labor Day, and weekends through mid-October.

"This permit will be valid for a full year from the month of purchase," Brady said. "The sticker, which is applied to the vehicle windshield, is framed by a border that includes the months of the year."

Customers who purchase the permit in November, for example, will have the month of November punched on their pass. The pass will then be valid for an unlimited number of visits to all 72 Minnesota state parks and recreation areas through November 2002.

With 2002 marking the 75th anniversary of Lindbergh's famous flight, and the 100th anniversary of his birth, many events and activities are being planned for the Lindbergh house and visitor center. New exhibits are being prepared, and the community is planning many events throughout the year, as well as a major celebration for August 2002. The August festivities coincide with the month that Lindbergh returned to Little Falls in 1927 after his famous flight. It was the only time that he flew his legendary aircraft, The Spirit of St. Louis, to the town of Little Falls. Information about special anniversary activities and events will be posted on the Charles Lindbergh State Park Web site at www.dnr.state.mn.us.

Cost for the 2002 state park annual vehicle permit is $20. A second vehicle permit costs $15. A special permit for Minnesota's residents with disabilities is $12. The annual permit can be purchased at any state park or at the DNR Headquarters, 500 Lafayette Road, St. Paul. Permits can also be ordered by phone from the DNR Information Center by calling toll free 1-888-MINNDNR (646-6367).

Grateful parents thank the community

Dr. Dixie Klein recently submitted some information about her children to The Times. Along with that information she shared some thoughts, which I thought would seem appropriate and thought provoking for most of our readers. It's not that we don't receive a lot of mail from justifiably proud parents and grandparents. Dr. Klein just put in words what I think many people have difficulty saying. Like many people, Dr. Klein wrote that she wanted to thank every person who in some way positively touched her children's lives when they were growing up, but I think by making her comments a little more personal and direct, she makes an important point.

I think many readers will be able to relate to the following:

Klein thanked the neighbors who tolerated and forgave the noise of practicing guitars, drums and basketballs.

She thanked the teachers who provided positive encouragement and never said, "You can't do that, or become that, or hope that, because you aren't talented enough, or kind enough, or brilliant enough." She thanked the teachers who stuck by them through the good times and the times that weren't so good.

She thanked the clergy and religious education teachers for supporting the ideals they valued in their home.

She thanked businesses, like the public library, Subway, Evergreen, Best Western, Pizza Hut and Kmart, who employed their kids and gave them a strong midwestern work ethic.

And, she thanked their grandparents and aunts and uncles, who supported them in whatever they did.

"It is not that my children haven't faced difficulties, challenges or obstacles," wrote Klein. "But, they always seem to know how to rise above the difficulties, take challenges head-on and find a way through the obstacles. I believe it is because of the roots we gave them together, that they have the wings to fly. It has been said that it takes a village to raise a child. I express gratitude to all in my village.

"In addition, I hope to encourage parents who are raising children in this and other small communities. I want them to know that kids, from small towns who attend small schools, public or Catholic, are well prepared for the future. And, with the love and support of parents, grandparents, extended family, teachers and neighbors, I believe children have awesome opportunities to achieve their hearts desires."

What does the vote mean in MN

About two-thirds of the school district levy referendums on November 6 ballot were approved by Minnesota voters. Many have been making observations about what the results mean.

The first observation many have made is the fact that referendums in rural areas tended to pass, while referendums in urban settings did not fare as well. There may be many reasons for the success in rural areas. The tax break given to farmers by legislators in the last session, for example, may have been a big part of that. That legislation limited a farmer's tax liability to his or her house, garage and one acre.

The second observation many make is that if passed, rural districts stood to receive more state aid matching funds because of the formula being used. I would hazard to guess that the majority of rural school districts qualify for substantial equalization aid. This made it more attractive to voters in rural areas.

How else could one explain the fact that the Crookston school district has tried, and tried, to get a levy referendum passed, only to see it defeated every time, until this year?

Some groups that actively campaigned against the levy referendums met with success in urban districts. These advocates said their victories were due to persuading voters to take a closer look at their school district's financial situation. While that may be true in urban districts, I think rural voters have had to take a closer look at school district budgets in the past. This may be seen as an advantage and a disadvantage, because districts accustomed to putting a request for a levy referendum in front of voters are accustomed to close scrutiny of budgets, but these voters have tired of the demands for more money as well. The other truth is that, there did not appear to be any active campaigning against the levy referendums in rural areas.

Pundits seem to be avoiding, however, what this election means in terms of the entire state. Urban organizers who asked voters to vote against the levy referendum see their success as an "overwhelming" success. To me, however, when two-thirds of the levy referendums in the state are approved, it's a lopsided success for those who were asking for more money. The fact that so many were asking for voters to approve additional money signals to me that there's an overall educational funding problem in the state; and, when voters approved of the requests, it should be seen as a signal to legislators and the Governor.

Dayton proposes prescription drug tax credit

Saying that no senior citizen in this country should be forced to choose between purchasing needed medicine and other essentials, such as food, clothing, rent, or utilities, Senator Mark Dayton today introduced legislation that would help seniors cope with the skyrocketing cost of prescription drugs.

The Dayton "Rx Relief for Seniors Act" provides a one-time refundable tax credit of up to $500 per individual and $1,000 per couple to help Medicare beneficiaries offset the cost of any prescription drugs purchased this calendar year. Dayton said the tax credit, which qualified Medicare recipients would receive as either as a credit on their federal taxes due next April 15th or as a refund from the Internal Revenue Service (IRS) shortly thereafter, would help seniors bridge the gap to a permanent prescription drug benefit, on which Congress should begin work next year.

"In the changed political landscape that has followed the terrorist attacks of September 11, chances of passing a comprehensive prescription drug benefit this year have become extremely slim," Dayton said. "But that doesn't change the fact that America's senior citizens have been among the hardest hit by rising costs during 2001, especially the escalating costs of prescription medicines, forcing thousands of seniors to reduce their expenditures for other essential needs. The 'Rx Relief for Seniors Act' would provide senior citizens in Minnesota and across the country with immediate relief until Congress passes a permanent measure."

Dayton Tax Credit Would Help Stimulate the Economy

Dayton said his legislation is also designed to provide an immediate boost to the nation's sagging economy. In order to qualify for the tax credit, he said, Medicare beneficiaries must submit receipts or other proof of purchase for prescription drugs during the 2001 calendar year. With the knowledge that they will soon receive a $500 or $1,000 tax credit to cover these costs, seniors who might otherwise be unable to afford necessary medication would have an immediate incentive to spend money on this important item.

"Our economy is struggling in the wake of the terrorist attacks of September 11, and desperately needs a shot in the arm," Dayton said. "Senior citizens, especially the majority who are forced to live on limited and fixed incomes, would be among the people most likely to spend any new tax relief on necessary goods and services."

Fulfilling Our Promise To Seniors. The principle that no senior citizen in this country should be forced to choose between buying food and buying prescriptions is one that is shared by members of the Senate and the House of Representatives, Democrats and Republicans, and by the President of the United States.

However, with the Congressional recess looming and the budget surplus dwindling, the chances of passing a comprehensive prescription drug benefit under Medicare have become negligible.

Mark Dayton believes that Congress and the President have a responsibility to fulfill the commitment they have made to our nation's seniors. The country's faltering economy in the wake of the September 11 terrorist attacks has made the need to provide senior citizens with some prescription drug assistance that much more dire. Furthermore, giving our seniors a way to afford their prescription drugs will encourage them to spend money, thus helping to stimulate the economy.

Helping Seniors Afford Necessary Medication. The Dayton "Rx Relief for Seniors Act" provides a one-time refundable tax credit of up to $500 per individual and $1,000 per couple to help Medicare beneficiaries cover their prescription drug costs for 2001. Qualified Medicare recipients would receive this one-time tax credit either as a credit on their federal taxes due next April 15th, or as a refund from the Internal Revenue Service (IRS) shortly thereafter.

This tax credit would allow seniors to offset the cost of expensive medications not covered by Medicare, and would prevent them from having to choose between purchasing needed medicine and other essentials, such as food, clothing, rent, or utilities. The measure, while temporary, would help seniors bridge the gap to a permanent prescription drug benefit, on which Congress should begin work next year.

Stimulating the Economy. The Dayton "Rx Relief for Seniors Act" is designed to provide an immediate boost to the nation's sagging economy. In order to qualify for the tax credit, seniors must submit receipts or other proof of purchase for prescription drugs during the 2001 calendar year. With the knowledge that they will soon receive up to a $500 or $1,000 tax credit to cover these costs, seniors who might otherwise be unable to afford necessary medication would have an immediate incentive to spend money on this important item.

The Dayton "Rx Relief for Seniors Act" would direct the Secretary of Health and Human Services to quickly notify all Medicare beneficiaries of their eligibility for this one-time refundable tax credit, thereby ensuring that all Medicare beneficiaries are aware of this relief in order to maximize its stimulative effect.

Americans can give with confidence

by Robert Hirshon
President
American Bar Association

Since the September 11 terrorist attacks, Americans have given to private charities in unprecedented amounts — more than $675 million as of October 1 — to help the victims of these vicious assaults. But just as the attacks brought out the best in some people, they have brought out the worst in a few. There is growing evidence that some of the funds established in the wake of the attacks may be shams, designed to take advantage of Americas' grief and generosity.

The American Bar Association Section of Taxation has some common-sense suggestions to help ensure that the money you give goes where you intend it to go. And while a tax deduction may be the last thing on your mind right now, this advice will also help you claim any tax deduction to which you are legally entitled.

- Do your homework. With so many new organization being founded, you may well be approached by one you have never heard of. You owe it to yourself and to the victims to make sure that the organization is legitimate. Especially if you receive a phone solicitation, ask where you can learn more about the group. Do your research, and then decide if you want to give.
- Protect your personal information. Don't give out information like a credit card or Social Security number to an organization you don't know. Again, do your research and then contact the organization directly.
- Ask how your money will be used — and how much will go for overhead. Some sham organizations funnel donations into overhead expenses like excessively high salaries, and spend little on the people they are supposed to help.
- If it sounds too good to be true, it probably is. Beware of pitches that sound too good to be true — like promises that your gift will be matched dollar-for-dollar by a corporation you have never heard of.
- Understand the organization's tax status. Most legitimate charities have either obtained or applied for tax-exempt status from the Internal Revenue Service. Only contributions to tax-exempt charities are tax deductible.
- Contribute by check or credit card. Not only are there more difficult for an illegitimate charity to misuse than cash, but they are easier to track for tax purposes.
- If you're planning to make a substantial donation, talk to a tax professional. Lawyers, accountants and enrolled agents — other professionals who are qualified to represent taxpayers before the IRS — are the ones who understand the ins and outs of giving. Consider consulting one of them, to protect both yourself and those you want to help.

If you'd like more help, the ABA Tax Section's Web site www.abanet.org/tax contains additional information to help identify legitimate charities and get the proper tax benefits for gifts. There are also useful links and information on many of the complex tax questions that have surfaced due to the attacks, using this information can help you make decisions that are both generous and wise.

Sen. Moe.

Time to focus on security

by Sen. Roger Moe

Senate hearings on the state's security preparedness and response got underway on Nov. 1. The first meeting provided an overview, but future hearings will focus in-depth on the areas of public health, law enforcement, the National Guard and transportation, among others.

How well is the State of Minnesota responding to the concerns all citizens have in the wake of the Sept. 11 attack on America?

The Senate hearings are an opportunity to learn about the measures being taken, and identify areas where we can become better prepared. The public should be well-informed about these activities so that we all can feel secure that our state is fully prepared for possible threats, or taking the steps necessary to accomplish that goal.

Government cannot remove all risk from people's lives. But it can, and must, do its best to anticipate attacks; take steps to prevent them; and, if they occur, move quickly to minimize, and repair the damage. In times of challenge, we depend on government to respond effectively.

This is not just a federal responsibility. It is shared by those of us at the state level, at the county and municipal level, and at the neighborhood level. It is particularly heartening to find so much activity on a block-by-block basis throughout the state. We are much stronger and better prepared due to the renewed sense of community.

As a public official, it is my duty to be sure we are ready to respond to any number of possible threats, and at the same time, assure the public that there is no reason to feel frightened or alarmed. Citizens need to know that Minnesota has not been the target of any specific terrorist threat. They also have a right to know more than blanket statements like "trust us, everything is under control."

At the state level, we need to pinpoint any gaps that may exist, and identify ways to build on our existing strengths to fill those gaps and provide the tools needed to keep our communities as safe as possible. Effective coordination is essential, not only among state agencies, but between the state and local public safety and health authorities.

Finding gaps in our ability to respond is important. In a recent report assessing possible improvements in bioterrorism response laws and procedures, Attorney General Mike Hatch commented on nine areas of concern. These recommendations do not necessarily mean that Minnesota was inadequately prepared in the past, but simply recognize that a higher level of readiness is appropriate in response to the events of Sept. 11 and events since then.

One recommendation in the Attorney General's report included restoration of hazardous materials emergency response teams. Compared with other Midwestern states, Minnesota has a strong reputation for its ability to deal with hazardous materials accidents and possible bioterrorism attacks. However, fire chiefs across the state are expressing concerns about a funding cutback that could create a gap in our response to hazardous materials accidents.

In the past, state funding allowed for four strategically placed hazardous materials emergency response teams (ERTs) located in Moorhead, Duluth, Rochester and St. Paul. Due to a cutback proposed in the Governor's budget, the only emergency team remaining since July 1 is located in St. Paul. The other three ERTs are now downgraded to chemical assessment status and are prohibited under federal law from attempting to clean up a hazardous materials incident.

Due to the long drive from St. Paul, our part of the state no longer can expect a rapid clean up response to a hazardous materials mishap. At a cost of less than $130,000 a year, the state could restore the full complement of four emergency response teams.

Restoring funding for ERTs and other issues will be considered as the Senate continues with hearings focusing on the state's preparedness for a security threat. We will continue to work with the Administration, the Attorney General, and local officials to assure our ability to respond to any future breach of security.

Light Plant Loses 12,000 Gallons Of Fuel Oil Saturday

"When a long-used fuel oil storage tank at the municipal power plant burst a seam Saturday evening at 6 o'clock, a total of 12,000 gallons of fuel oil escaped and made its way to the river below the power dam. The tank is located outside the power plant building on the west side of the structure. The plant has three other larger storage tanks with a total capacity of about 50,000 gallons, Morris Owen, chief engineer, stated.

"Fire Chief Roy Langevin and some of his men were called to the scene and helped to clean up the resulting mess, following which gravel was spread on the oil-covered ground. Langevin and Clarence Cherry, deputy state fire marshal, examined the tank, but no definite conclusion was reached as to the cause of the break."

"Mayor-elect Kratka is receiving much advice just now as to whom he should appoint on the police force, but as yet has made no decision in the matter. He states, however, that inasmuch as he will be personally responsible for the actions of the chief of police, he does not believe that he should be guided by others in his selection, but will follow his own inclinations.

Series of Suppers

"The Presbyterian church has arranged for a series of 'Family Suppers' during the winter months in order to cultivate the social life of the church. The first of the series takes place next Wednesday, November 17, at 6:30 p.m. After the meal there will be an informal social time with organized games arranged by Miss MacMillan of the school faculty. The dates for the other suppers are January 19, February 16, March 16 and April 18. One of the unique features is that they are selling books of tickets for the suppers at two dollars for the series. Children under fourteen years of age will be served at the rate of twenty-five cents a plate. It is hoped that Dr. W. R. Harshaw of Minneapolis and Rev. William J. Bill, who is in charge of the church work done on the Range, will speak at one of the later dates."

Music Notes

"How could a program be interesting without music? A pleasing feature of our Education Week program was the variety of musical numbers. First we had two songs by the seventh grade, followed by a song by the eighth grade. After this 'The Star Spangled Banner' was sung by the audience. Three eighth-grade girls, Virginia Quale, Lois Oden and Evelyn Nelson, played a piano trio. The Girls' Glee club sang for the first time this year. Two seventh-grade boys, James Barnett and Clifton Hanson, played a violin duet. We ended our program by singing the 'Central School Song.'"

The Salvation Army

"Envoy and Mrs. H. E. Rolfe, officers in charge. Thursday evening at 8:00 p.m. Holiness meeting. Saturday evening at 8:00 p.m. Christian's Free and Easy Praise service. Sunday services: 10:00 a.m. Knee drill or prayer service. 10:30 a.m. open air service. 11:00 a.m. Holiness service. 2:30 p.m. Company meeting or Sunday school. 6:30 p.m. Young Peoples Legion: 7:30 p.m. Open Air services. 8:00 p.m. Salvation service.

"Staff Captain A. W. Brewer of Fargo, North Dakota, will conduct the meetings here November 26 and 27.

"A cordial invitation is extended to the public to attend any or all of these services. Special music at every service."

Zion Lutheran Church

"Rev. J. A. Pederson will conduct evangelistic services at Zion church. The Zion Lutheran church invites its many friends to attend a series of services conducted by Rev. J. A. Pederson of Alexandria. Rev. Pederson has had much experience in this line and is at present a successful pastor at Alexandria. The services will be held at the church beginning Wednesday evening, December 8, and continues until Sunday evening, December 12. Special singing will be a feature of these services. Rev. Pederson is also an able and interesting speaker. Note the dates and plan to be with us."

Band Boys Are Thankful

"At the last regular business meeting of the St. Hilaire band, held on Monday evening, it was proposed and seconded that 'a vote of thanks be extended to Julius Pleth for the liberal financial assistance which he has rendered this organization during the past summer and fall.' Needless to say the motion was carried unanimously. Mr. Pleth has been decidedly liberal with the band boys and they appreciate it fully."
